Youths Bait Police Nightly at Harvey Plant

IDLERS STAGE CARNIVAL OF DISORDER

(Editor's Note: Police Reporter Bill Hazlett rushed to the scene when word came Tuesday night that violence might break out as night-shift workers leaving the Harvey Aluminum plant passed through a crowd of strikers. He has been there every night since. Going to the center of the action to report and photograph it for I.P-T readers, he has been threatened by mobs, cursed, spattered by a paint bomb and hit by a rock. Here is his report on the changing character of the crowd which now gathers nightly.)

By BILL HAZLETT

"Hey man . . . a guy's gotta do somethin' for kicks . . . so what's better than a boss riot?"

That, in a nutshell, is the vicious philosophy sparking the continuing violence at the strike-bound Harvey Aluminum Company plant—scene of four nights battling and bloodshed.

What began as an admittedly troublesome labor dispute has been turned into a carnival of disorder, in which thrill-seeking teen-agers, shaggy-haired hoodlums, and a so-called "lunatic fringe" have engaged in an orgy of lawlessness.

SPEWING obscenities, a youthful agitator jeers at deputy sheriff at moment photographer triggered his flashgun.

Skirmishes outside the sprawling plant, which straddles the Los Angeles-Torrance border near Western Avenue and 190th Street, have resulted in injury to seven persons and the arrest of 26 others.

The cost of police units and emergency equipment used to prevent even greater violence has been estimated at almost $50,000.

And the trouble isn't over.

Police units from Los Angeles and Torrance, along with sheriff's deputies and highway patrolmen, already have been alerted for further duty at the strike scene.

The "word" is out. Spreading like a fever from Los Angeles to Long Beach are rumors of the "boss" action in Torrance. Like a magnet, the promise of excitment attracts the rowdies and hoodlums.

THE YOUTHFUL troublemakers are expected to return. In fact, they've hurled a challenge at police.

Even in the heat of Friday night's battle their threats were being screamed.

"Okay cops . . . we'll be back tomorrow night . . . bigger and better."

"Yeah man, you dirty gestapo cops . . . just watch our stuff."

Jeers, gibes and obscenities were emphasized with a barrage of rocks, bottles and pieces of junk.

In the jails between police charges, scores of yelling teen-agers paraded up and down Western Avenue in their rakish, overpowered cars — unmuffled engines roaring and crackling.

The legitimate strikers, for the most part, long since had left the scene in compliance with a court order when the youthful mob began creating trouble.

"These aren't strikers," one veteran deputy remarked grimly, "some of them look as if they never had a job in their lives."

The man next to him nodded in agreement.

"Yeah, just look at that crew. The same ones you see when there's trouble downtown (Los Angeles), or at a beach riot, or when there's a street fight someplace."

The "crew" to which he referred stood facing the fire of deputies. They looked little unlike the disgruntled metal workers as they milled about in sloppy shirts, tight jeans, and footwear which ranged from tackshoes to sandals.

A few girls — some in their early teens — were in the mob. Some, their hair piled high on their heads, were barefoot. Almost all were dressed in the loose-fitting, tight-pants combination which has become a teen-age uniform.

A few chanted and screamed the stock phrases which seem to be a part of every demonstration . . . "Just police brutality" . . . "We want freedom."

The obscene language used by others at times reddened the face of a grizzled veteran sergeant.

Asked why they were at the plant, some mumbled about mothers or fathers who worked there. Others flatly said they didn't know, or made some passing reference to "kicks" or excitement.

SEVERAL times during the latest melee spokesmen for the striking workers approached police officials to disclaim any connection or sympathy with the howling horde.

Trouble in the 120-day strike actually began Tuesday night when about 50 disgruntled men and women joined four picket-carrying strikers outside the plant gate on Western Avenue to taunt workers who were leaving at the end of night shift duties.

Held in check by at least 50 Los Angeles and Torrance police officers, the angry workers threw a few rocks, swung a few punches, and disrupted traffic before dissolving.

THE NEXT night the crowd of strikers had grown to more than 200 by midnight.

Viet War Status Under Discussion

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Hawaiian conference of military leaders Monday will follow up weekend talks by President Johnson with his chief advisers on the Viet Nam War.

During the day, the President at his ranch home talked by phone with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk and summoned Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, for an on-the-scene session.

The diplomatic portions of these talks presumably centered on the peace-seeking aspects of the U.S. approach which are going forward simultaneously with reinforcement of American power in the Southeast Asian theater of war.

But his discussions with McNamara presumably turned largely on implementation of the 50,000-man increase in U.S. forces which Johnson ordered and announced Wednesday.

MEANWHILE, preparations are under way for the meeting in Hawaii of three top military officials.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, chief of American forces in Viet Nam, will meet with Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Adm. U.S.G. Sharp, over-all commander of the Pacific, at Sharp's Hawaiian headquarters, a Pentagon announcement said.

Maxwell D. Taylor, recently resigned Ambassador to Saigon, who is returning home to the United States, made a stopover in Hawaii Saturday but Sharp said Taylor would not attend the Monday conference.

Viet Army Buildup Is Promised

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—With U.S. forces steadily increasing in South Viet Nam, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky pledged Saturday a buildup in the Vietnamese Army until victory is achieved.

There now are about 500,000 in the Vietnamese armed forces, including regional troops in the provinces. President Johnson has announced U.S. forces will be increased to 125,000 men. There are about 80,000 American military personnel in South Viet Nam now.

In an interview with a Vietnamese newspaper, Ky said increases in the armed forces would be made in the near future but, for security reasons, gave no figures.

"EVERY spot in this country may be the battlefield," he warned.

As Ky spoke, the ground war was in a lull, with only scattered clashes. The main activity was the steady pounding of Communist targets in North and South Viet Nam by U.S. and Vietnamese warplanes.

65 WHITE TURBANS

Cong Gang Flees Reds Near Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — At least 65 members of the White Turbans, a gang of bandits controlled by the Communist Viet Cong, have defected to government troops, it was announced Saturday.

Officials said the number of defectors may go as high as 100.

The bandits operated in the Mekong Delta southwest of Saigon, where the Viet Cong are in control of large areas of the rice-producing countryside.

U.S. military spokesmen said the bandits were not Vietnamese but of Khmer descent. Most Khmers live across the border in Cambodia.

The spokesman said the gang was supplied, armed and controlled by the Viet Cong. It got its name from the headgear its members wore presumably to distinguish themselves from the regular guerrillas, whose dress resembles black pajamas.

THE DEFECTION of such a large number of Communist-controlled terrorists was considered a major victory for Vietnamese phychological warfare experts in the Mekong Delta.

But the spokesmen did not disclose how the white turbans were won over to the government side.

The bandits surrendered two days ago, he said, taking with them the weapons they had been issued by the Viet Cong.

The news of their defection was kept quiet until Saturday in the hope that other members of the gang might join them.

Officials said the figure of 65 was a minimum and when final reports were in the total of bandits might go to 100.

Aid-on-Rent Bill Ready for Signing

$350 Million for Low-Income Folk When LBJ Acts

By Associated Press

Only President Johnson's signature is needed on a housing bill that includes the first program of rent subsidies to aid low-income families.

Swift presidential approval of the final version of the administration's housing program for the next four years is expected.

The rent - subsidy proposal makes available $350 million over a four-year period to help some of the families eligible for public housing.

In effect, the program would provide an alternative for publicly financed housing developments for such persons. Eligible low-income families—the standards would vary from place to place—who are occupying substandard housing, or are elderly or handicapped, or have been displaced from their homes by governmental pre-emption or natural disaster, would be eligible for the subsidies.

THESE would help pay a fair rent for accommodations in structures owned or to be built by churches, cooperatives or other non-profit or limited-dividend organizations. It was estimated the subsidies would stimulate use of 375,000 such units. Subsidies would not be paid to private landlords in business for profit.

While the congressionally approved legislation went along with the principle of subsidies, a new departure advocated by the President, it changed the application significantly. The original proposal was designed to help those with income too high for low-

Georgia Whites Attack Negroes

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP)—Five Negroes were injured when white men attacked demonstrators in this southeast Georgia town Saturday shortly before funeral service for a white man shot down on a street corner Wednesday night.

About 500 persons attended the service for Andrew A. Whatley, 21, in First Baptist Church. The minister said Americus is a community as divided as "a room full of unruly children."

Whatley, a Marine Corps enlistee of one week, was killed by shots fired from a passing car. Two Negroes have been charged with murder.

SOON AFTER the funeral, Negro and white demonstrators marched to the Sumter County Courthouse. They were escorted by state troopers.

The head of the state patrol, Col. Lowell Conner, had increased the number of troopers in Americus from 100 to 130 during the day.

As the demonstrators marched, troopers escorted a pistol-toting white bystander away from the area and stopped another as he walked toward the group at the courthouse.

"WHO ARE you going to shoot next?" one white man yelled at the marchers.

Earlier in the day, five Negroes were struck, one with a snub-nosed revolver, as about 30 white men broke up a demonstration by an equal number of Negroes.

One of the five, Denny LeNow, 21, a civil-rights worker from Wisconsin, was treated for head cuts caused when he was struck with the gun.

Tito to Seek End of Crisis in Asia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Tito of Yugoslavia is expected to write President Johnson and Premier Alexei Kosygin of the Soviet Union in a bid to help end the Viet Nam crisis, it was reliably learned Saturday.

A foreign diplomatic source said that President Tito will also get in touch with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and request that he explore with Red Chinese and North Viet Nam leaders the minimum terms for getting them to a conference table. According to the source this action was agreed upon during talks between President Tito and Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India here last week.

The source said that because of the Indian-Chinese conflict it was considered that Shastri should not be involved in this diplomatic action and that Nasser, who is on good terms with the Chinese, has better chances to succeed.

THE APPROACH to parties involved directly or indirectly in the Viet Nam crisis is based on the belief that there is a chance of agreement on talks under provisions of the Geneva agreement provided the United States stops bombing North Viet Nam.

It is understood here that Tito communicated these views to W. Averell Harriman Saturday in a long talk he had with President Johnson's roving envoy. It was the second time Tito and Harriman had conferred this week.

Tito and Shastri also signed a joint communique on the Vietnamese situation Saturday but, because of the time difference between Belgrade and New Delhi, asked that it not be published until today. This would assure simultaneous publications in both countries.

L.A.C. Says:
Two Views of Americanism

Mario Savio, leader of the Berkeley Free Speech Movement, has refused probation and therefore is sentenced to 120 days in jail, along with his bride, who took the same position. Savio said: "I welcome the chance to reject probation because it imposes orders on how men should act. I am also rejecting the coercive state power which acts against the claim of individual liberty." He goes on to say: "Revolution is a positive duty when power is in the hands of the morally and intellectually bankrupt."

From a U.S. Army sergeant I just received quite a different view. I do not know where this young man, Daniel Synovec, is now stationed because he has been in action. But he is disturbed over the kind of demonstrations which Savio and many others carry on in this country. Synovec says: "I am beginning to wonder about some of my fellow citizens and their left leaning friends and neighbors. I wonder why we haven't done something about college professors that are advocating the right of the Communists to wage so-called wars of liberation."

He goes on to say: "I am wondering why speakers have the right to spread the ideals of Marx and Lenin throughout the universities of America. With my fellow soldiers dying in Viet Nam today, nothing is more un-American to me than what I refer to above. I believe that Americans with average intelligence can realize that the Communists have declared war on us. Pick up your newspaper any day and count the number of American servicemen killed going into battle against Communist forces in North Viet Nam."

Synovec, a Long Beach boy, has been serving in the Army for the past six or eight years. It is apparent he voices the views of a large portion of our servicemen who are facing an ever more dangerous war, and who have seen their buddies killed in action. It is understandable that they are wondering what the American people are doing to back them up when sit-ins and violence are rampant on our college campuses and city streets.

As for Savio and his demands of freedom, the jail sentence is small punishment. He led the Berkeley mob that invaded the campus administration building for an all-night sit-in last December. The mob refused to leave on orders of the university and Berkeley police. They had to be dragged from the building and over 700 were arrested. All this happened as service men were being rushed into action under orders of their government.

There are many who disagree with the policies which have placed so many of our men in a shooting war in Viet Nam. Each of them has a right to orderly debate on these policies. But none has the right to defy the laws of this nation. They have the legal right to uphold the Communist actions and advocate that we appease them. But, when they break the laws, they must be punished if we are to have respect for law in this country. If we do not, then we will turn over the country to anarchists who recognize no law other than that of violence. The Berkeley judge deserves great credit for giving Savio and his followers the punishment they deserve. We need more judges like him.—L.A.C.

FAMILY'S TUB THUMPED

Brown Boosts Maloneys' Sale

By JIM McCAULEY
I-P-T State Bureau

SACRAMENTO—An Indiana family, "for sale" in Long Beach, Saturday landed a new sales agent.

Their new huckster: Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

The sales campaign for the handsome Roger C. Maloney family began earlier this summer when they wrote Long Beach Mayor Edwin Wade from Indianapolis:

"We Maloneys are up for sale. After 10 rather waterless years in Indiana, we have decided to pick up for California to gaze on the Pacific Ocean permanently.

* * * *

"IF YOU KNOW of any one interested in a Maloney family purchase, please have them contact us."

As a result of a July 4 column on the Maloney family by George Robeson in The Independent, Press-Telegram, things began to happen.

First, they received some tentative job offers from Robeson readers.

Second, Maloney came to Long Beach and made his "sales" headquarters at 0859 Muriel Ave.

And finally, Maloney extended his sales pitch statewide by writing Gov. Brown an identical letter to the one sent Mayor Wade earlier.

The governor's office Saturday reproduced the Maloney "for sale" offer, and sent pictures of the Maloney family to newspapers throughout California. Brown thus became their No. 1 agent.

And though Brown turned down the opportunity to buy the Maloney family, his office gave the Maloney job hunt statewide publicity.

* * * *

"THE CALIFORNIA Legislature recently approved my state budget but it contains no funds for the purchase of displaced Indianans," said Gov. Brown.

The governor wrote the former Indiana women's apparel salesman:

"In contrast to your waterless years in Indiana you will find here an abundance of water, excellent schools, an unsurpassed climate, famous recreation areas. . . ."

Brown invited Maloney for a personal Sacramento welcome "when you are settled down."

Start Fund for Victim of Gunman

A fund for Gerald Conroy, 55, who was disabled permanently by a bandit, has been started by a group of his neighbors.

Conroy was shot in the neck in his grocery store at 1338 Artesia Blvd. last Monday. His spinal cord was damaged and it is probable that he will be paralyzed for the rest of his life. He is in Memorial Hospital.

* * * *

CHAIRMAN of the fund committee is Robert Gibbons, of Western Management Services, 1312 Artesia Blvd. The donations will be handled through a branch of the Farmers and Merchants Bank. Gibbons will give details of Conroy's needs to all who call or write him. He said that insurance, although considerable, will not meet the needs of Conroy and his family.

Conroy has a wife, Billie, and two daughters, Patricia, 18, and Kathleen, 17.

Police have good descriptions of the two bandits but so far have been unable to find them.

Clines Directs Foreign Student Job Bureau

F. James Clines, coordinator of vocational education at Harbor College, has been appointed director of the Southern California Foreign Student Job Palcement Council.

The council, which is sponsored by the U.S. Department of State, assists foreign students in finding employment.

Clines brings to the job five years of experience in supervising the college placement office, according to Wendell C. Black, college president, who announced his appointment by the council's executive board.

LBJ Asked to Sign Rights Bill in Dixie

A telegram hearing the names of King and other officials of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was sent to the President Friday.

L.A.C. Says:

Two Views of Americanism

Mario Savio, leader of the Berkeley Free Speech Movement, has refused probation and therefore is sentenced to 120 days in jail, along with his bride, who took the same position. Savio said: "I welcome the chance to reject probation because it imposes orders on how men should act. I am also rejecting the coercive state power which acts against the claim of individual liberty." He goes on to say: "Revolution is a positive duty when power is in the hands of the morally and intellectually bankrupt."

From a U.S. Army sergeant I just received quite a different view. I do not know where this young man, Daniel Synovec, is now stationed because he has been in action. But he is disturbed over the kind of demonstrations which Savio and many others carry on in this country. Synovec says: "I am beginning to wonder about some of my fellow citizens and their left leaning friends and neighbors. I wonder why we haven't done something about college professors that are advocating the right of the Communists to wage so-called wars of liberation."

He goes on to say: "I am wondering why speakers have the right to spread the ideals of Marx and Lenin throughout the universities of America. With my fellow soldiers dying in Viet Nam today, nothing is more un-American to me than what I refer to above. I believe that Americans with average intelligence can realize that the Communists have declared war on us. Pick up your newspaper any day and count the number of American servicemen killed going into battle against Communist forces in North Viet Nam."

Synovec, a Long Beach boy, has been serving in the Army for the past six or eight years. It is apparent he voices the views of a large portion of our servicemen who are facing an ever more dangerous war, and who have seen their buddies killed in action. It is understandable that they are wondering what the American people are doing to back them up when sit-ins and violence are rampant on our college campuses and city streets.

As for Savio and his demands of freedom, the jail sentence is small punishment. He led the Berkeley mob that invaded the campus administration building for an all-night sit-in last December. The mob refused to leave on orders of the university and Berkeley police. They had to be dragged from the building and over 700 were arrested. All this happened as service men were being rushed into action under orders of their government.

There are many who disagree with the policies which have placed so many of our men in a shooting war in Viet Nam. Each of them has a right to orderly debate on these policies. But none has the right to defy the laws of this nation. They have the legal right to uphold the Communist actions and advocate that we appease them. But, when they break the laws, they must be punished if we are to have respect for law in this country. If we do not, then we will turn over the country to anarchists who recognize no law other than that of violence. The Berkeley judge deserves great credit for giving Savio and his followers the punishment they deserve. We need more judges like him.—L.A.C.

Youths Hunt 'Kicks' Nightly at Scene of Labor Dispute

More police were rushed to the scene to meet the threat of violence. Helmeted officers cordoned off the gate area, while squads of uniformed patrolmen and plant guards escorted the workers across the street to the parking lot.

Strikers and their supporters surged against the police lines. A few broke free and rushed into the group of workers. Fists and feet flew, and isolated fights broke out in the parking lot.

* * * *

MORE strikers began battling police. Others, who couldn't get into the front-line fights, vented their violence on parked police cars. A windshield was kicked out. The tires on six cars were slashed.

For a few minutes a pitched battle raged between strikers and the outnumbered Torrance police. Then, a flying wedge of Los Angeles officers rushed across Western Avenue to help.

The club-wielding officers swept the strikers back across 190th Street and set up a skirmish line, only to be met by a hail of stones and pieces of metal.

Again and again the Torrance police, reinforced by sheriff's deputies, swept into the mob of strikers forcing them back toward the nearby San Diego Freeway overpass.

* * * *

STRIKERS caught throwing rocks or slugging police were grabbed and hustled off to waiting police cars. Each police charge was answered by a renewed barrage of stones. The battle lasted for more than an hour before the strikers began leaving the area — some to a nearby bar, others to parking lots.

By late Thursday night, the intersection of Western Avenue and 190th Street had become a no-man's land. Helmeted police formed a line almost across the street. Portable spotlights were set up to sweep across the 300 strikers and onlookers assembled across the street.

The troublemakers and the hoodlum element were already present.

Some wore motorcycle crash helmets or other hard hats as protection against the police nightsticks. Others came armed with paint and acid bombs —bottles of white paint, and surphuric acid in a child's balloon.

* * * *

INSIDE the plant the frightened workers, recalling the previous night's fracas, also were arming. A police search of a group of departing workers turned up aluminum billy clubs, bludgeons, heavy wrenches and crude clubs.

Outside, plainclothes officers from the famed Los Angeles "Metro" squad infiltrated and circulated among the striker group, spotting potential troublemakers and group leaders.

Despite the precautions, violence flared anew. More fighting ranged up and down Western Avenue for more than a block. Two persons were injured, two others were arrested.

* * * *

DURING the day Friday, union representatives, company officials and police took steps to prevent additional rioting, while preparing for further outbreaks.

The company asked, and was granted, a modified restraining order to keep strikers 200 yards away from the strife-torn company property.

A combined force of police, including about 150 deputies from sheriff's substations and the Special Enforcement Detail, was assigned to enforce the order signed by Superior Court Judge Harold F. Collins.

By midnight, a striker crowd estimated at between 300 and 400 had gathered on 190th Street opposite the plant.

* * * *

A SOUND truck, equipped with loudspeakers and manned by deputies, was rolled up facing the strikers. The lengthy injunction was read and explained by a tape-recorded voice. The group's leaders were asked to comply with the court order, and were given time to move their group.

The strikers gathered in angry knots, discussing the injunction, and giving voice to their feelings. Group leaders held hurried conferences before asking their followers to disband. An orderly exodus began.

Most of the legitimate strikers left the area to attend a rally and discussion at a nearby shopping-center parking lot. A few stayed behind to jeer the assembled deputies. They were joined by several hundred spectators and teen-agers.

* * * *

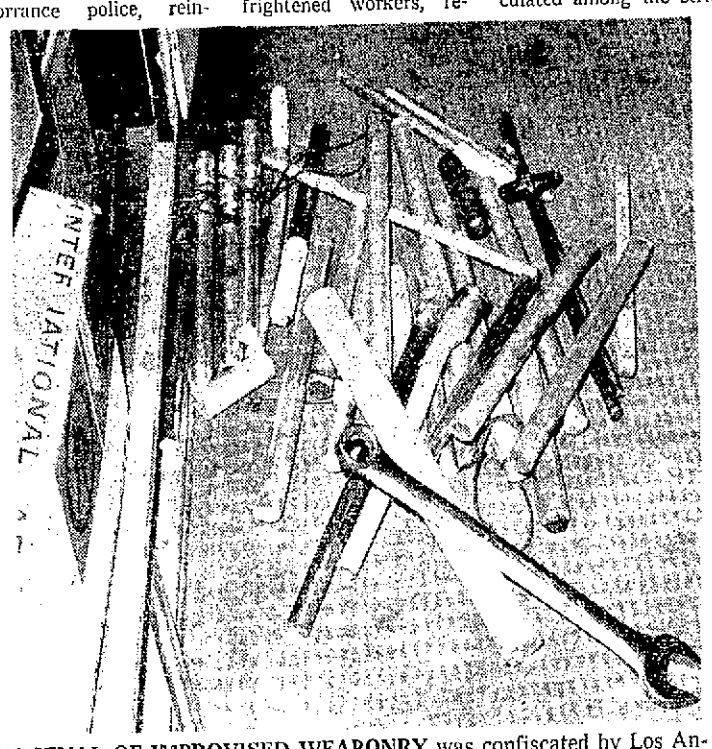

AS THE TIME limit ran out, the deputies, marching in shoulder-to-shoulder ranks along both sides of Western Avenue, began herding the group back the required 200 yards. Slowly, with clubs in a two-hand grip across their chests, the deputies moved ahead.

The group moved. The march continued in slow segments, until the required distance had been covered. Then, almost as if on signal, someone hurled a rock. A deputy was hit in the leg and downed. He quickly got up. Another rock struck a second deputy on the side of his head. He flinched and stared straight ahead.

Torrance police moved in, and the action touched off another flareup. Before it ended, more than an hour later, at least 16 persons — most of them teen-agers — had been arrested.

FACES AT TROUBLE SCENE include a shouting teen-ager obviously enjoying himself, a sweater-clad girl who snarled at officers pushing her out of harm's way, and a mature man who donned a World War II tanker helmet, the better not to be hit on the head.

ARSENAL OF IMPROVISED WEAPONRY was confiscated by Los Angeles police Thursday in shakedown of Harvey workers just before swing-shift quitting time at midnight. Homemade hammers, billy clubs of rolled aluminum, wrenches, and fist-sized knuckle supports were gathered up. Minutes later, riot erupted in spite of advanced preparations in and outside the plant.

Find Bodies of Missing AF Fliers

LANCASTER (AP)—A sheriff's posse recovered the bodies of two Air Force men Saturday in the wreckage of a light plane that crashed last Jan. 24 on the east slope of Mt. Baden-Powell.

The posse went to the scene after a hiker, Anthony R. Trusdell of 12457 Paramount Blvd., Downey, discovered the wreckage and brought out a log belonging to M/Sgt. Gerald Henderson, 31, pilot of the surplus T34 trainer.

* * * *

HENDERSON'S passenger was Airman 1.C. Allen L. Yeager.

The two men, both laboratory technicians at the Edwards Air Force Base Hospital, were on a civilian flight to San Diego when the plane crashed. A widespread search was conducted for them at the time.

Trusdell turned the log over to officials at the Big Pines Ranger Station.

CARY GRANT
Fifth Marriage

DIANE CANNON
Marries Secretly

LONDON, Sunday, (AP) — Actor Cary Grant, 61, secretly married 27-year-old actress Diane Cannon in Nevada last month, the Sunday Express reported today.

It is his fourth marriage. He was previously wed in 1934 to Virginia Cherrill, in 1942 to Barbara Hutton and in 1949 to Betsy Drake. All these marriages ended in divorce.

Grant and Miss Cannon first met four years ago when she was appearing on a television show. Grant, who was about to cast a new film, got in touch with her agent.

The paper quoted Miss Cannon as saying:

"That agent also happened to be my good friend. She told me: 'I promise you: You are going to meet this man, fall in love with him and marry him.' And see—I did."

She and Grant have been constant companions for more than three years.

Grant revealed the marriage during an interview Saturday night.

His statement came five weeks after the Rand daily mail of Johannesburg published an expose on the subject.

seriously hurt. None of the five was admitted to the hospital.

A witness said several Negroes were slugged with fists during the outbreak, broken up by state troopers.

The incident came at a supermarket where Negroes had gathered in a picketing attempt.

An hour earlier, a racially mixed group of demonstrators were locked inside another supermarket and the store temporarily closed when the group waved signs urging a boycott of the business. Police then escorted the demonstrators out of the area.

In their appearance at the second supermarket, Negroes began to chant and sing and the whites appeared. Witnesses said there was some jeering by both groups before a white man pulled a revolver from his pocket and slugged LeNow.

At the service for Whatley, Dr. Harold A. Collins said the death was caused by "hate nurtured in many things—a lack of consciousness, one for another, indifference, distrust and selfishness."

MISSILE TRACKER HEADING WEST
The USS Hoyt S. Vandenberg, a missile-tracking ship jammed with tons of radar, computers and sophisticated electronic gear, has been a Long Beach Naval Station visitor since Thursday. It leaves Monday to go on station in the Pacific Missile Range in the Kwajelain area. It is a Navy ship, leased to the Air Force, operated by the Military Sea Transport Service with a civilian crew. Pan Am and RCA technicians complete the mixed picture.

Rent-Subsidy Bill Ready for Signing

A FAMILY receiving the subsidy would have to pay 25% of its income for rent. The subsidy would then make up the difference between this payment and the rent needed to obtain adequate housing in the specified kind of project. If the family's income increased, the subsidy would decline or be eliminated entirely.

Other major sections of the bill authorize 240,000 more public housing units, make available an additional $2.9 billion for urban renewal, provide $955 million for the college dormitory loan program and $800 million in grants for water and sewer facilities in cities.

The public housing portion contains a new feature, too. Limited until now to new construction, the measure provides that 100,000 of the 240,000 units could be obtained by purchase or rent of existing housing.

Other provisions include:

—An extra $150 million for a program of direct loans to the elderly.

—A new program of grants for urban beautification and land improvement.

—An additional $1.62 billion for the Federal National Mortgage Association, most of it for a moderate-income subsidized interest rate housing program started in 1961.

—An increase on the readjustment payment for small businesses displaced by urban renewal and public housing from $1,500 to $2,500.

—A reduction in down payments on Federal Housing Agency - insured homes for servicemen and veterans.

—A new mortgage insurance program to assist in assembling tracts of land for development.

Here are some questions and answers on major provisions of the housing bill.

Q. Will the government pay part of the rent for everybody who thinks he needs a bigger or better apartment or house than he can afford?

A. No. In the first place, only those families whose income is low enough to qualify them for the present kinds of public housing would be eligible.

Q. How much is that?

A. The figure varies from place to place and according to family size. Local housing authorities set the level in each community. A family that meets this income test, is inadequately housed, or elderly or handicapped, or has lost its housing because of official condemnation or property or natural disaster, would be eligible for the subsides.

Q. How much help would this mean?

A. The family would pay rent equivalent to 25% of its income. The subsidy would cover the difference between that figure and a fair rent for safe and sanitary housing.

Q. The government would just pay the family's landlord the difference?

A. Not to just any landlord — no private landlord renting property for profit. The payments could be made to groups like churches, cooperatives, labor unions or limited-dividend organizations building or owning moderate cost housing. Part of the idea is to encourage such groups to biuld housing. The present bill would help finance 375,000 family units.

Q. Does the bill do anything else for inadequately housed people?

A. Several things. For example, there is a program of grants to impoverished homeowners to help them make their rundown properties livable. Those with annual incomes of $3,000 or less could get a grant of up to $1,500. The bill also provides for 240,000 units of public housing, with a new feature intended to provide housing quickly: up to 100,000 of these units could be obtained by purchase or rent of existing housing.

Q. How about the ordinary homeowner or would-be homeowner?

A. In general, existing housing, mortgage guarantee and similar programs are continued. There is a new plan of FHA-insured homes for servicemen and veterans with reduced down payments and a new plan for rural housing loans. An extra $150 million for direct loans for housing for the elderly also is provided.

Q. Does the legislation do anything about city improvement and real estate development?

A. A number of things, there are grants for urban beautification and land improvement, an additional $325 million for acquisition of land to be kept in open spaces, a new mortgage assistance program to assist in assembling tracts for development—and the urban renewal programs for slum clearance and the like are continued.

Police Officer Critical, Hit on Motorbike

A 30-year-old Torrance motorcycle officer was described in "very, very critical" condition late Saturday night after he was struck by an auto making a left turn.

Carel Van Wankum, the father of two children, was taken to Little Company of Mary Hospital.

His injuries included a broken hand, ankle, pelvis, shoulder, clavicle, a possible skull fracture, undetermined internal injuries and a damaged spinal cord.

Booked on suspicion of driving while intoxicated was Wiley Orville Pinson, 34, of 1309 Kornblum St., Torrance.

Van Wankum, on the Torrance force for three years, was knocked more than 40 feet through the air.

Sales of Autos Outranking Food

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Duval County residents paid more for automobiles than they did for food in 1963.

As U.S. Department of Commerce business survey released recently showed automobile dealers reported sales of $154,288,000 with an annual payroll of $13,734,000.

Grocery sales for the same year totaled $142,199,000 and food store payrolls amounted to $10,438,000.

4 Rocket-Firing Vessels Activated

By BUCK LANIER

Two rocket-landing ships are being reactivated in the Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

The Carronade and White River, both boasting vicious firepower, have had shipyard crews working around the clock to get them ready for sea trials in about five weeks.

Undergoing similar work in San Francisco Naval Shipyard are two other ships of the same class (LCMR), the USS St. Francis River and the Clarion.

CALLUP of this four-ship squadron pinpoints the value of the 178-ship Pacific Reserve Fleet in San Diego where the ships had been mothballed, along with destroyers and cruisers.

Reactivation of the reserve fleet does not appear as an immediate possibility, though.

A high Navy official told The L. P-T Saturday that "the Pacific Reserve Fleet is ready if needed but present plans do not call for this fleet to be wholly reactivated now. We have 80 ships in the Western Pacific, including 48 destroyers, and that represents some pretty good firepower."

THE NAVY has about 500 ships in its reserve fleet.

Also, at the Naval Station's Pier E, the USS Hoyt S. Vandenberg, a missile-tracking ship, will leave Monday for Pearl Harbor. It will proceed to the Pacific Missile Range in the Kwajelain area. A step-up in U.S. Pacific missile activity is foreseen. The Vandenberg arrived here Thursday from the Atlantic Missile Range.

ing said the conferees would discuss "certain phases of implementing the President's announced decision concerning Viet Nam."

PENTAGON spokesmen told reporters the meeting would be concerned with working out details on the expansion of U.S. forces in Viet Nam from a present 75,000 to 125,000. No new steps nor any new actions are expected in the Monday meeting, it was said.

It was disclosed only a few hours after Johnson's Wednesday announcement that some units already were headed for a port to embark for Viet Nam. While advanced units with helicopters and other heavy equipment are moving by sea, more troops will be on the way by air transport.

Because Johnson reached his final decision only on Wednesday morning, it had been impossible for the military to work out any details on deployment of new forces in advance.

Vietnamese, U.S. Planes Hit N. Viet

SAIGON, Viet Nam, Sunday (AP)—U.S. and Vietnamese planes dumped 20 tons of bombs Saturday night on a North Vietnamese ammunition dump, inflicting heavy damage, a U.S. spokesman reported today.

The four American F104 jets and 10 Vietnamese propeller-driven Skyraiders left the buildings at Xom Rung, 75 miles northwest of the border, either destroyed or extensively damaged, the spokesman said.

The raid highlighted an evening of steady air activity against North Viet Nam. The spokesman described the other flights as routine reconnaissance missions in which the pilots searched for military traffic heading south.

All the planes returned safely, he said. The attackers met no enemy ground fire or planes in the bombardment of the munition dump.

AGROUND, the Communists continued their terrorism in Saigon as well as harassments elsewhere.

A terrorist lobbed a grenade into a police chief's house near downtown Saigon, killing a child and wounding a woman, two police officers and three children. Earlier in the evening, a grenade went off in an Australian enlisted men's billet, slightly wounding one Australian guard.

About 290 miles northeast of Saigon, the Viet Cong attacked three outposts on Highway 1 early today in an apparent effort to destroy highway and railroad bridges along the vital north-south route.

A government spokesman said more than 100 rounds of mortar fire hit Thua Luu, Nuoc and Ngot and My Gia, about 30 miles southeast of the northern city of Hue. A Vietnamese air force flare plane was sent to the attack area to help the beleaguered defenders spot the Viet Cong in the darkness.

THE COMMUNISTS broke off the barrage before dawn, leaving at least one railroad bridge and one highway bridge damaged.

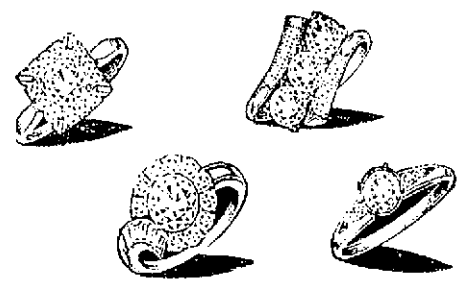

On Friday night, two U.S. Navy A6 Intruders from the 7th Fleet carrier Independence struck the Thanh Hoa power plant, about 80 miles south of Hanoi, a military spokesman reported.

The planes searched out the target in the dark with radar.

Seven tons of 1,000 and 2,000-pound bombs were used in the strike. Both planes returned safely, he said.

MISSILE TRACKER HEADING WEST

The USS Hoyt S. Vandenberg, a missile-tracking ship jammed with tons of radar, computers and sophisticated electronic gear, has been a Long Beach Naval Station visitor since Thursday. It leaves Monday to go on station in the Pacific Missile Range in the Kwajelain area. It is a Navy ship, leased to the Air Force, operated by the Military Sea Transport Service with a civilian crew. Pan Am and RCA technicians complete the mixed picture.

rent public housing but too low for privately built homes and apartments at the going rates.

* * * *

A FAMILY receiving the subsidy would have to pay 25% of its income for rent. The subsidy would then make up the difference between this payment and the rent needed to obtain adequate housing in the specified kind of project. If the family's income increased, the subsidy would decline or be eliminated entirely.

Other major sections of the bill authorize 240,000 more public housing units, make available an additional $2.9 billion for urban renewal, provide $955 million for the college dormitory loan program and $800 million in grants for water and sewer facilities in cities.

The public housing portion contains a new feature, too. Limited until now to new construction, the measure provides that 100,000 of the 240,000 units could be obtained by purchase or rent of existing housing.

Other provisions include:

—An extra $150 million for a program of direct loans to the elderly.

—A new program of grants for urban beautification and land improvement.

—An additional $1.62 billion for the Federal National Mortgage Association, most of it for a moderate-income subsidized interest rate housing program started in 1961.

—An increase on the readjustment payment for small businesses displaced by urban renewal and public housing from $1,500 to $2,500.

—A reduction in down payments on Federal Housing Agency - insured homes for servicemen and veterans.

—A new mortgage insurance program to assist in assembling tracts of land for development.

Here are some questions and answers on major provisions of the housing bill.

Q. Will the government pay part of the rent for everybody who thinks he needs a bigger or better apartment or house than he can afford?

A. No. In the first place, only those families whose income is low enough to qualify them for the present kinds of public housing would be eligible.

Q. How much is that?

A. The figure varies from place to place and according to family size. Local housing authorities set the level in each community. A family that meets this income test, is inedequately housed, or elderly or handicapped, or has lost its housing because of official condemnation or property or natural disaster, would be eligible for the subsides.

Q. How much help would this mean?

A. The family would pay rent equivalent to 25% of its income. The subsidy would cover the difference between that figure and a fair rent for safe and sanitary housing.

Q. The government would just pay the family's landlord the difference?

A. Not to just any landlord — no private landlord renting property for profit. The payments could be made to groups like churches, cooperatives, labor unions or limited-dividend organizations building or owning moderate cost housing. Part of the idea is to encourage such groups to biuld housing. The present bill would help finance 375,000 family units.

Q. Does the bill do anything else for inadequately housed people?

A. Several things. For example, there is a program of grants to impoverished homeowners to help them make their rundown properties livable. Those with annual incomes of $3,000 or less could get a grant of up to $1,500. The bill also provides for 240,000 units of public housing, with a new feature intended to provide housing quickly; up to 100,000 of these units could be obtained by purchase or rent of existing housing.

Q. How about the ordinary homeowner or would-be homeowner?

A. In general, existing housing, mortgage guarantee and similar programs are continued. There is a new plan of FHA-insured homes for servicemen and veterans with reduced down payments and a new plan for rural housing loans. An extra $150 million for direct loans for housing for the elderly also is provided.

Q. Does the legislation do anything about city improvement and real estate development?

A. A number of things. there are grants for urban beautification and land improvement, an additional $325 million for acquisition of land to be kept in open spaces, a new mortgage assistance program to assist in assembling tracts for development—and the urban renewal programs for slum clearance and the like are continued.

Police Officer Critical, Hit on Motorbike

A 30-year-old Torrance motorcycle officer was described in "very, very critical" condition late Saturday night after he was struck by an auto making a left turn.

Carel Van Wankum, the father of two children, was taken to Little Company of Mary Hospital.

His injuries included a broken hand, ankle, pelvis, shoulder, clavicle, a possible skull fracture, undetermined internal injuries and a damaged spinal cord.

Booked on suspicion of driving while intoxicated was Wiley Orville Pinson, 34, of 1309 Kornblum St., Torrance.

Van Wankum, on the Torrance force for three years, was knocked more than 40 feet through the air.

Sales of Autos Outranking Food

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Duval County residents paid more for automobiles than they did for food in 1963.

As U.S. Department of Commerce business survey released recently showed automobile dealers reported sales of $154,288,000 with an annual payroll of $13,734,000.

Grocery sales for the same year totaled $142,199,000 and food store payrolls amounted to $10,438,000.

4 Rocket-Firing Vessels Activated

By BUCK LANIER

Two rocket-landing ships are being reactivated in the Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

The Carronade and White River, both boasting vicious firepower, have had shipyard crews working around the clock to get them ready for sea trials in about five weeks.

Undergoing similar work in San Francisco Naval Shipyard are two other ships of the same class (LCMR), the USS St. Francis River and the Clarion.

* * * *

CALLUP of this four-ship squadron pinpoints the value of the 178-ship Pacific Reserve Fleet in San Diego where the ships had been mothballed, along with destroyers and cruisers.

Reactivation of the reserve fleet does not appear as an immediate possibility, though.

A high Navy official told The I. P-T Saturday that "the Pacific Reserve Fleet is ready if needed but present plans do not call for this fleet to be wholly reactivated now. We have 80 ships in the Western Pacific, including 48 destroyers, and that represents some pretty good firepower."

* * * *

THE NAVY has about 500 ships in its reserve fleet.

Also, at the Naval Station's Pier E, the USS Hoyt S. Vandenberg, a missile-tracking ship, will leave Monday for Pearl Harbor. It will proceed to the Pacific Missile Range in the Kwajelain area. A step-up in U.S. Pacific missile activity is foreseen. The Vandenberg arrived here Thursday from the Atlantic Missile Range.

Viet War Status Under Discussion

ing said the conferees would discuss "certain phases of implementing the President's announced decision concerning Viet Nam."

* * * *

PENTAGON spokesmen told reporters the meeting would be concerned with working out details on the expansion of U.S. forces in Viet Nam from a present 75,000 to 125,000. No new steps nor any new actions are expected in the Monday meeting, it was said.

It was disclosed only a few hours after Johnson's Wednesday announcement that some units already were headed for a port to embark for Viet Nam. While advanced units with helicopters and other heavy equipment are moving by sea, more troops will be on the way by air transport.

Because Johnson reached his final decision only on Wednesday morning, it had been impossible for the military to work out any details on deployment of new forces in advance.

The influx of thousands more men into Viet Nam will require that the conferees in Hawaii get together detailed timetables for movement and arrival of units. Facilities to billet, supply and feed the swarm of new men must be ready.

Annual Beauty Congress Opens Two-Week Run Today

The annual International Beauty Congress, with contestants from more than 36 states and 37 foreign countries, begins its two-week run this week in Long Beach.

Although judging won't begin for more than a week, the contest officially opens today with the arrival of the reigning Miss IBC, Gemma Cruz, Miss Philippines last year.

The total number of contestants probably will increase. Contest officials said that tentative acceptance from at least four additional states and eight countries has been received. Final acceptances must be in writing.

* * * *

NATIONS which have not yet filed written acceptance include Canada, Turkey, Italy, Liberia, Holland, Puerto Rico, Korea and the Philippines.

Crowning of the new Miss IBC Aug. 13 will culminate the two-week-long activities.

For the first time in the contest's history, there will be no gala arrival celebration for the contestants en mass. Instead, the girls will be arriving at various times throughout the week.

Contest judging begins Aug. 9 in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium with the preliminary round of the American Beauty contest. Miss American Beauty will be chosen Aug. 10.

The competition for the international title begins Aug. 11 when the 15 finalists will be picked.

* * * *

THE GIRLS will follow a hectic schedule of social events from the time each one steps off the plane until the new Miss IBC is crowned.

The Mayor's Annual International Banquet Thursday night marks the first appearance by the girls as a group. The public, however, will not be allowed to attend.

The International Beauty Parade will be held Sunday, Aug. 8, along Ocean Boulevard between Atlantic and Magnolia Avenues.

Merv Griffin, host of a nighttime television show, will serve as grand marshal of the parade, which will be televised in color by KTTV (11).

In addition to appearances at various local clubs and television shows, the contestants will participate in the Wedding of the Waters ceremony Aug. 10 at the Friendship Fountain in front of the Long Beach Port Administration building. Each of the girls, dressed in a costume native to her state or country, will pour water brought from her homeland into the fountain.

* * * *

A MAJOR event of the pageant will be the Coronation Ball in the Long Beach Arena, Friday, Aug. 13. Lawrence Welk and his orchestra will play at the ball and present a one-hour stage show.

The girls will begin departing for home Aug. 15.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Screen Actors Accept Contract

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Negotiators for the Screen Actors Guild reported Saturday they had agreed to terms of a new contract with motion picture producers five hours before a midnight strike deadline.

Terms of the agreement were not announced.

The contract is subject to approval by the boards of directors of the guild, the Society of Independent Producers and the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers.

The guild said Wednesday its members voted 20 to 1 in favor of strike action to support their demand for increased payments when motion pictures are sold to television.

Under the present contract, a guild spokesman said, actors get 3.6% of the gross television sales price and this amount is distributed "rateably" to the cast of the picture.

In some cases, he said, this has resulted in most cast members getting $5 to $10, with some getting less than $1, when a picture was resold.

Kate Smith A Catholic

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Singer Kate Smith, 56, has become a Roman Catholic, the New York Journal-American reported Saturday.

KATE

The account said she was baptized at St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church here July 23 by the Rev. Albert G. Salmon of Glenfield, the same priest who administered last rites for Ted Collins, Miss Smith's manager more than 30 years. Collins died of a heart attack May 27, 1964.

Although born of a Catholic father, Miss Smith had not practiced Catholicism until she began taking instruction in the faith last year. Her mother was a Presbyterian.

The singer maintains a residence here.

Tax File Ordered Open

OAKLAND (UPI)—Alameda County Superior Court Judge William McGuiness Saturday granted the district attorney's office permission to search the files of a Castro Valley tax consultant named in an alleged statewide tax scandal.

Investigators for Dist. Atty. J. Frank Coakley opened the files of tax consultant James C. Tooke immediately after the search warrant was issued by the judge.

Rendering the decision in an informal proceeding, McGuiness said he had made an exhaustive study of the law and had found no reason why the warrant should not be issued.

Coakley said Norman Phillips, an ex-employe of Toke's, who has claimed the files contained evidence of tax assessing irregularities involving several California counties, will be allowed to examine the files with the district attorney's investigators.

Shipping Strike Continues

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A government proposal for ending a 46-day-old shipping strike was rejected Saturday by the eight strike-bound shippers.

The plan was offered by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz. He said the walkout was "weakening the country's economy at a time when it must be at full strength." More than 90 ships are tied up.

Admits 'Peep' Slaying

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—A young father confessed Saturday he choked a pretty 14-year-old babysitter to death on a window-peeping tour and forced his wife to help bury the body beside a country road near their home.

Chief Deputy Sheriff George Weber said the man, Dennis Linehan, 24, wept after signing a 15-page confession and said, "What a load off my mind."

Linehan, muscular unemployed mechanic, told officers he had prayed over the grave daily since he buried the body the night of June 11—two days after the killing.

The victim—Barbara Iverson, blonde junior high school student and daughter of a warehouse foreman—disappeared late the night of June 9 while babysitting for neighbors.

Greek King Won't Retreat

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—King Constantines' government Saturday night defied its opponents and, with his renewed support, obtained agreement for another attempt at a parliamentary confidence vote debate.

Arabs' Plane Output Near a Full Halt

CAIRO (UPI)—The United Arab Republic's jet aircraft industry is in a "state of anarchy," highly placed sources said Saturday.

Egyptian-born industrialist Hassan Kamil has stopped salary payments to West German aircraft experts and delivery of materials from abroad to build the jets in Egypt, they said.

Kamil was the intermediary for the U.A.R. government when it hired the German technicians in 1960. He lives in Switzerland.

His reasons for stopping the payments was not clear, but Egyptian authorities were reported to suspect he is under pressure from the Bonn government, which wants the Germans to leave Egypt.

The aircraft plant here has only 146 employes now, production has been reduced to a trickle and there is only about a three-month supply of materials remaining, these sources said.

Billion-Dollar Pact Averted Douglas Strike

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

A billion-dollar bonanza in commerical plane orders and another billion in potential government business rode on the backs of Douglas Aircraft Co. officials last week as they negotiated a contract settlement with two aerospace unions.

How decisive the two factors were in averting a strike a peaceful settlement, but the company and giving the United Auto Workers and the International Association of Machinists one of the handsomest contracts ever negotiated in the aerospace industry is still open to speculation. (The contract gives Douglas workers 50 cents an hour in wages and benefits over three years, including some important "firsts" in the industry.)

* * * *

COMPANY officials are loath to admit that anything but mutual goodwill and mature bargaining brought about some union and company sources privately acknowledged that the two economic factors at least weighed heavily on the company's thinking.

The feeling among many people at Douglas is that the company, throughout the contract talks, was anxious not to jeopardize its current high level of business and its chances of landing one of the juciest govenment plums ever to be awarded—the C5A production contract.

It's no secret that Douglas is going for broke on the C5A, a flying behemoth that will carry up to 1,000 passengers. And so, industry sources say, are Boeing and Lockheed, the other two bidders.

"Our commitment of manpower and other resources to this (C5A) program," declared Douglas vice president Jackson McGowen recently, "has resulted in an effort which is the greatest ever made by Douglas to undertake the development of a new military system."

* * * *

IT'S CONSERVATIVELY estimated that Long Beach will get a $40-million yearly shot in the arm if Douglas wins the $1 billion-production contract. And Douglas officials have said employment in the area would jump by more than 6,000. In addition, of course, there's the enormous civilian potential bound up in the C5A, which could mean years of additional peacetime business.

Whether the C5A contract, due to be awarded soon, had a higher priority in the company's considerations than the billion dollars in orders for DC8 and DC9 commercial transports seems open for debate. Opinion is divided.

On the other hand, there's a school of thought which believes the importance of each has been highly exaggerated.

"As a matter of fact," says one company representative, "both the union and the UAW (representing Douglas' Long Beach workers) realized the C5A was coming up." And since both had a stake in it, he says, it follows that neither really wanted to risk a strike.

* * * *

MOREOVER, while he agrees that Douglas gave the UAW and the IAM a good contract, it was anything but a king's ransom, he asserts. Overall, in fact, it falls short of the union's initial demands.

Observers note, however, that no union, not even under the most ideal conditions, ever gets all it asks. The point is, they say, the union got an awfully good settlement, and chances are that Douglas would have been more inclined to strike a harder bargain, and more willing to risk a walkout, if it had less to lose.

Normally, in a large industrial firm, management always is anxious to protect its economic flanks when a strike threatens.

* * * *

OBSERVERS say this is particularly true of the aerospace industry, where the economic pendulum has an unnerving tendency to swing between lean times and fat times, and hardly ever in between.

Douglas being in one of its fat periods, so the theory goes, it was not about to jeopardize its highly favorable position with a very stubborn stand at the bargaining table.

The same people find it interesting that Lockheed, another bidder for the C5A, settled with the machinists' union at its Marietta, Ga., plant at virtually the same time that Douglas settled with the UAW here. And Marietta, they point out, is where Lockheed would build the C5A. Lockheed, then, was no more willing to risk a strike than Douglas, they feel.

Drive-in Traffic Court Suggested by Woman Jurist

By DON BRACKENBURY

A traffic court should be geared to today's living—with drive-in windows for bail payments, night sessions, and concealed areas for television coverage — according to Los Angeles Municipal Judge Noel Cannon.

JUDGE CANNON
One-Stop Service

It should be an all-purpose building, with branches of the Department of Motor Vehicles and Air Pollution Control District, and a consulting room for Alcoholics Anonymous, Judge Cannon said.

The glamorous blonde jurist was asked by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, chairman of the county's court department, to make suggestions for the proposed new Central Traffic Court Building, which the county plans to build at Washington Boulevard and Olive Street in downtown Los Angeles.

Judge Cannon is the senior traffic-court judge in the Los Angeles Municipal Court District.

* * * *

JUDGE Cannon, pointing out that the Los Angeles area has the highest vehicular concentration in the nation, said the court building should be "a traffic center catering to all driving needs."

She acknowledged that television coverage of court proceedings has been the cause of heated debate in legal circles and was denounced by the Supreme Court, but declared:

"The traffic center must look to the future."

* * * *

THE SUPREME Court's objection more precisely is an objection to television conducted in the courtroom, she said.

"These objections will be met by providing the traffic center with hidden TV camera areas," Judge Cannon said. "Development of proper TV facilities would assure that parties in the courtroom be unaware of the television equipment, or whether, in fact, they are being televised.

By providing space for the Department of motor vehicles and APCD, the traffic center would permit a "one-stop transaction" in cases where action by such agencies is needed before the court can rule.

The drive-in window for paying bail not only would speed bail payments for the public, but also would eliminate additional costs to the driver.

"The drive-in has become part of our culture," Judge Cannon said. "Drive-in bail payment is a modern answer to a modern problem."

Penalty for any violation should be only that imposed by the judge, not such added handicaps as lost wages, parking fees and unnecessary delays.

The problem of lost wages also would be solved by night traffic court, the judge said.

* * * *

AS FOR HER suggestion for a consultation room for Alcoholics Anonymous, Judge Cannon said, "One of the greatest traffic-court problems is that of the drinking driver. Many judges have found Alcoholics Anonymous to be an effective aid in decreasing the problem-drinking and thereby the drinking driver."

She said she had been trying out a system in her court for almost a year of referring "likely defendants" to consult with a part-time volunteer representative of Alcoholics Anonymous.

JUDGE Cannon also proposed that the traffic center include traffic-school facilities.

To help the public use the center, she recommended an information booth, located in a conspicuous place, with painted lines of different colors leading from the booth to various designated destinations in the building.

Hahn said Judge Cannon's suggestions would "lead to a building in which service to the public will be emphasized through educational and counseling facilities." Plans for the traffic center now are being prepared.

AID Agency Moves to Reduce Malnutrition in Children, 1-14

By ANN TERRY
I. P-T National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The agency for International Development has begun a program to stamp out borderline starvation caused by malnutrition among the millions of children in the underdeveloped countries.

An AID official said Friday that the agency hopes to have eight pilot projects set up by fall aimed at curtailing the causes of the increasing malnutrition in children between the ages of one and 14.

Frank Ellis, food for peace director at AID, said the projects would be divided among the four major sections of the world. The Far East, Near East and South Asia, Africa and Latin America.

* * * *

THE AID project is one result of an increasing concern expressed recently by Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn. That the food for peace program is failing to meet the needs of starving persons in underdeveloped countries.

In an announcement released today AID said that each of its 70 missions abroad was being asked to submit possible pilot programs for their respective countries. The programs would include:

1. Encouraging development of child-food industries in the host countris.

2. Enrichment of local grain, especially with proteins

3. Shift in the emphasis in food for peace child-feeding programs from simply doling out the food to children and their mothers to a program that would involve them in learning about sanitation and home economics.

4. Giving technical assistance to food recipients in the host country.

5. Establishment of community nutrition committees in the country.

Ellis emphasized that probably none of the countries selected for pilot projects would utilize all five of the above suggestions and added that AID has already begun putting protein in powdered milk which we send abroad under the food for peace program.

* * * *

AID has estimated that almost 70% of the 667 million children in underdeveloped countries are suffering from serious malnutrition and has pointed out that malnutrition causes "permanent, irreversible physical and mental retardation."

AID officials said that the greatest cause of malnutrition is the lack of protein and stressed the fact that food for peace donation alone cannot solve the problem.

"Any major and lasting improvement must come through greater commercial sale of pruteins already produced in the developing countries, such as peanuts and soybeans," the announcement said.

The AID announcement continued that only 2% of the preschool children are being reached by food for peace donations at this time.

Latest California Tax Laws on Sales, Leases Start Today

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Starting today, you'll have to pay a 4% tax if you buy a car, boat or airplane from a private party.

Also going into effect will be new tax laws affecting some 20,000 California firms with $17,000 or more in monthly sales and many companies that lease equipment.

The legislature passed the new tax measures at its special session to raise a total of $105 million, after adjourning the regular session with Gov. Brown's budget out of balance.

* * * *

AMONG the new laws is extension of the use tax to cover an estimated 370,000 private sales of cars, trucks, trailers, boats and planes annually.

Boat and aircraft buyers will pay the 4% tax to the Board of Equalization. The Department of Motor Vehicles will collect the same tax on sales of vehicles, including house and utility trailers.

Firms that lease vehicles, computers, office machines, building equipment and other tangible personal property will have to pay taxes on the rentals. The only exceptions will be where the person leasing the equipment does so on a "tax-paid" basis.

* * * *

MOST of the money brought in by the new measures will come from a law requiring larger businesses to pre-pay state taxes.

Merchants whose monthly sales exceed $17,000 in either of the first two months of a calendar quarter will have to prepay 90% of state taxes due by the 25th day of the following month.

The first pre-payment will apply to August sales and will be due Sept. 25.

Such taxes currently are paid on a quarterly basis.

Billion-Dollar Pact Averted Douglas Strike

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

A billion-dollar bonanza in ommerical plane orders and nother billion in potential overnment business rode on ne backs of Douglas Aircraft o. officials last week as they egotiated a contract settlement with two aerospace unons.

How decisive the two factors were in averting a strike t the company and giving he United Auto Workers and he International Association f Machinists one of the andsomest contracts ever egotiated in the aerospace industry is still open to speculation. (The contract gives Douglas workers 50 cents an hour in wages and benefits over three years, including some important "firsts" in the industry.)

* * * *

COMPANY officials are loath to admit that anything but mutual goodwill and mature bargaining brought about a peaceful settlement, but some union and company sources privately acknowledged that the two economic factors at least weighed heavily on the company's thinking.

The feeling among many people at Douglas is that the company, throughout the contract talks, was anxious not to jeopardize its current high level of business and its chances of landing one of the juciest govenment plums ever to be awarded—the C5A production contract.

It's no secret that Douglas is going for broke on the C5A, a flying behemoth that will carry up to 1,000 passengers. And so, industry sources say, are Boeing and Lockheed, the other two bidders.

"Our commitment of manpower and other resources to this (C5A) program," declared Douglas vice president Jackson McGowen recently, "has resulted in an effort which is the greatest ever made by Douglas to undertake the development of a new military system."

* * * *

IT'S CONSERVATIVELY estimated that Long Beach will get a $40-million yearly shot in the arm if Douglas wins the $1 billion-production contract. And Douglas officials have said employment in the area would jump by more than 6,000. In addition, of course, there's the enormous civilian potential bound up in the C5A, which could mean years of additional peacetime business.

Whether the C5A contract, due to be awarded soon, had a higher priority in the company's considerations than the billion dollars in orders for DC8 and DC9 commercial transports seems open for debate. Opinion is divided.

On the other hand, there's a school of thought which believes the importance of each has been highly exaggerated.

"As a matter of fact," says one company representative, "both the union and the UAW (representing Douglas' Long Beach workers) realized the C5A was coming up." And since both had a stake in it, he says, it follows that neither really wanted to risk a strike.

* * * *

MOREOVER, while he agrees that Douglas gave the UAW and the IAM a good contract, it was anything but a king's ransom, he asserts. Overall, in fact, it falls short of the union's initial demands.

Observers note, however, that no union, not even under the most ideal conditions, ever gets all it asks. The point is, they say, the union got an awfully good settlement, and chances are that Douglas would have been more inclined to strike a harder bargain, and more willing to risk a walkout, if it had less to lose.

Fortas Vote May Decide on Court TV

BY GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex., (UPI) — Newspaper readers and television viewers have a special interest in the selection of Washington lawyer Abe Fortas as the new U.S. Supreme Court Justice.

The new judge may cast the deciding vote when the nation's highest court decides whether it will take another look at a decision which, in effect, outlaws live telecasts of a criminal court trial. It also may affect still photography in the court room.

Fortas, until Wednesday's appointment, was serving as a member of the American Bar Association's advisory committee on fair trial and free press, a group making a study which is part of a program to formulate standards of criminal justice administration in the courts.

LAST JUNE 7 the nation's highest court ruled 5 to 4 that televising of criminal trials denies defendants their constitutional rights. The ruling was against the state of Texas and the Texas state bar in an appeal by Billie Sol Estes of a state court conviction on swindling charges. Estes presently is serving a federal prison sentence on a mail fraud conspiracy conviction.

One of the Supreme Court Justices voting against Texas in the Estes' appeal was Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, who resigned recently to become U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

A favorable vote by the Justice replacing Goldberg on Texas' pending motion for a rehearing of the June 7 judgment possibly could reverse the entire court's opinion.

TEXAS' attorneys argued in the appeal that the live telecasting of portions of Estes' trial in Tyler in no way denied the defendant a fair trial. All cameras were in a specially-built booth at the rear of the court room. Also joining with Texas in the appeal were the state of Colorado and the National Association of Broadcasters.

Joining with Estes in asking reversal of the conviction were attorneys from the American Bar Association and the American Civil Liberties Union.

State Bar authorities have predicted that if the Supreme Court decides against live telecasting stands, judges will prohibit the use of newspaper photographers during a trial. At present, under state bar guide lines, each state judge may determine whether television or still photographers may record portions of a trial. Colorado is the only other state that allows such discretion.

Bomb Wing Reunion Set for August 7

Annual reunion of the former 452nd Bomb Wing (L) will be held August 7 in the non - commissioned officers open mess, Space Systems Division, 5800 Arbor Vitae St., Building 11, Inglewood, at 8 p.m.

Long Beach's 452nd Bomb Wing was called to active duty as a tactical bombardment wing on August 10, 1950. After only 77 days training at George Air Force Base near Victorville the Wing was transferred to Japan and into combat.

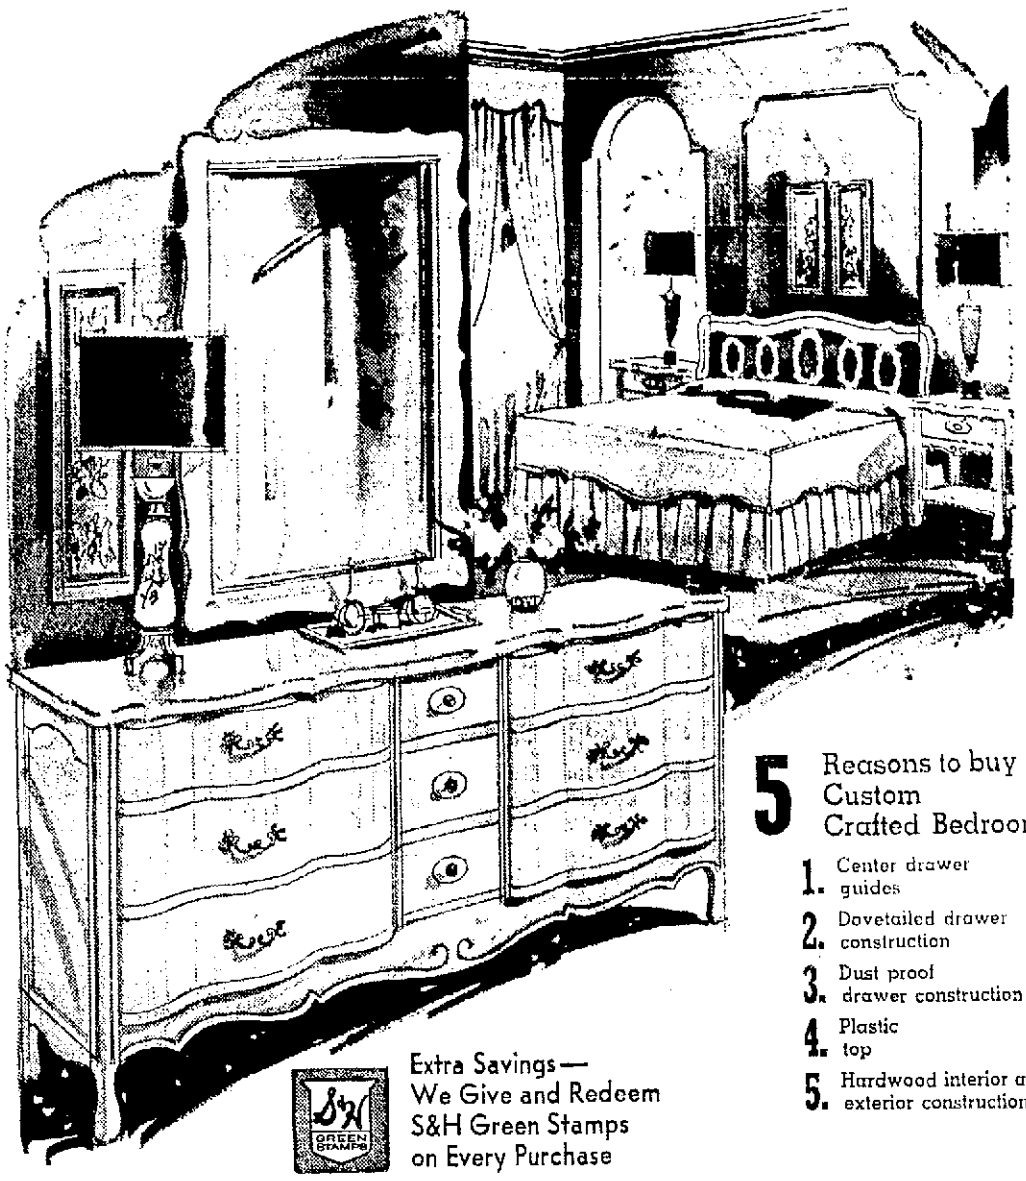

It was the first Air Force Reserve unit to enter combat in the Korean conflict and earned the Korean Presidential Citation.

After the Korean War was over the Wing was deactivated and later the 452nd Troop Carrier Wing was formed with new personnel at Long Beach.

Fortas Vote May Decide on Court TV

BY GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex., (AP) — Newspaper readers and television viewers have a special interest in the selection of Washington lawyer Abe Fortas as the new U.S. Supreme Court Justice.

The new judge may cast the deciding vote when the nation's highest court decides whether it will take another look at a decision which, in effect, outlaws live telecasts of a criminal court trial. It also may affect still photography in the court room.

Fortas, until Wednesday's appointment, was serving as a member of the American Bar Association's advisory committee on fair trial and free press, a group making a study which is part of a program to formulate standards of criminal justice administration in the courts.

LAST JUNE 7 the nation's highest court ruled 5 to 4 that televising of criminal trials denies defendants their constitutional rights. The ruling was against the state of Texas and the Texas state bar in an appeal by Billie Sol Estes of a state court conviction on swindling charges. Estes presently is serving a federal prison sentence on a mail fraud conspiracy conviction.

One of the Supreme Court Justices voting against Texas in the Estes' appeal was Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, who resigned recently to become U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

A favorable vote by the Justice replacing Goldberg on Texas' pending motion for a rehearing of the June 7 judgment possibly could reverse the entire court's opinion.

TEXAS' attorneys argued in the appeal that the live telecasting of portions of Estes' trial in Tyler in no way denied the defendant a fair trial. All cameras were in a specially-built booth at the rear of the court room. Also joining with Texas in the appeal were the state of Colorado and the National Association of Broadcasters.

Joining with Estes in asking reversal of the conviction were attorneys from the American Bar Association and the American Civil Liberties Union.

State Bar authorities have predicted that if the Supreme Court decides against live telecasting stands, judges will prohibit the use of newspaper photographers during a trial. At present, under state bar guide lines, each state judge may determine whether television or still photographers may record portions of a trial. Colorado is the only other state that allows such discretion.

Bomb Wing Reunion Set for August 7

Annual reunion of the former 452nd Bomb Wing (L) will be held August 7 in the non - commissioned officers open mess, Space Systems Division, 5800 Arbor Vitae St., Building 11, Inglewood, at 8 p.m.

Long Beach's 452nd Bomb Wing was called to active duty as a tactical bombardment wing on August 10, 1950. After only 77 days training at George Air Force Base near Victorville the Wing was transferred to Japan and into combat.

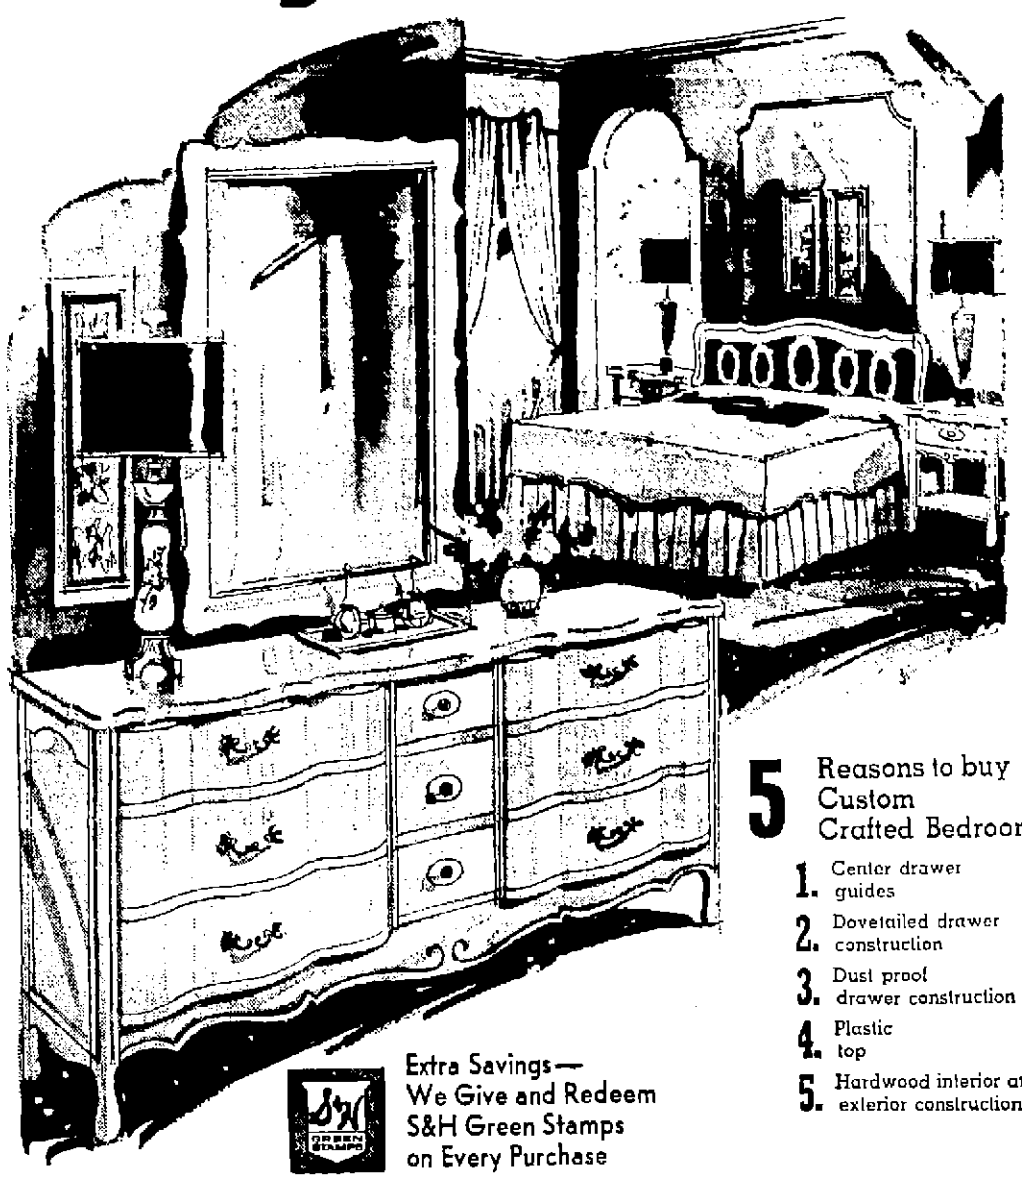

It was the first Air Force Reserve unit to enter combat in the Korean conflict and earned the Korean Presidential Citation.

After the Korean War was over the Wing was deactivated and later the 452nd Troop Carrier Wing was formed with new personnel at Long Beach.

Dutch Waterlogged

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The first six months of 1965 have been the wettest in the Netherlands since weather records began 200 years ago, the Dutch Meteorological Bureau announced. Authorities said the 23½ inches of rain for the January - June period boosted movie and museum attendance, but hurt crops, causing vegetable prices to rocket.

Same Training for Citizens

By BILL DUNCAN

A 106mm recoiless rifle, mounted on a jeep, lurches backwards, spewing fire as it hurls a deadly projectile across a sunburned plain. The target, a tank fashioned of old oil drums welded together, explodes sending up a pall of black smoke laced with tongues of flame.

A second 106mm shell streaks across the plain like a ball of fire and finds the target. A third and fourth shell follow in close behind.

As the shelling continues, a tank, churning up a smoke screen of dust, races over the plain. A squad of infantrymen, crouched low in an assault boat, inches its way across a swift river and lands in thick vegetation at the water's edge.

* * * *

THE infantrymen storm out of the boat amid the crack of small-arms fire and advance toward a machine-gun nest. Shell explode near the soldiers, causing the ground to tremble convulsively.

The action is over the rolling hills and plains on the 44,000 acre Camp Roberts military reservation at Paso Robles. The area is almost desert-like, except for scattered forests of trees that thrive on the moisture from the winding tributary coursing the reservation and emptying into the Salinas River.

It is a typical Army camp. It is typical Army training for infantrymen and artillerymen. Only the men are different.

Hours before they were out in the workaday world, punching time clocks, teaching school, minding a business or even extracting a tooth. They are citizen-soldiers.

* * * *

WHO IS THE citizen-soldier?

He is an oral surgeon from Burlingame who is on the consulting staff for Mayo Clinic. He is a music teacher at Santa Ana High School. He is a furniture worker for a Downey manufacturing plant.

He is a San Francisco architect who leaves his plush offices and becomes a corporal in the ranks. He is a Santa Barbara carpenter, a Los Angeles college student, a Downey doctor, a Palos Verdes college professor who switches hats to become an infantry general.

He is a civilian most of the year, working at any profession, trade, craft or job you can name.

Today, nearly 10,000 citizen - soldiers are encamped at Camp Roberts. They are members of the famed 63rd Infantry Division, the largest reserve division on the West Coast.

Beach Combing with Malcolm Epley

TINY Stacy Guy, 3, daughter of Atty. Art Guy, slipped into the family car and slipped the brake. Parked on an incline, the machine rolled for a way and bumped into a neighbor's station wagon. Said Stacy's 11-year-old brother, Doug: "There's a woman driver for you!"

SOMETIMES I wonder.

The other day one of our men, recently out of the Midwest, wrote a bit of editorial banter under the heading, "We're Being Invaded." With tongue virtually sticking through the cheek, this piece playfully sugested a ban on the immigration movement that brought virtually all of us here, and if not us, our parents.

Yet a few readers took this literally. They thought we really were advocating an electric fence patrolled by dogs to keep the would-be new settlers out.

To anyone as humorless as that, how can you even explain that you didn't mean it?

AMONG local train buffs is Adolph Gutohrlein, State College student, whose fanship for rails and rolling stock has won a notice in the national magazine, "Railroad."

Adolf, native of Germany who now lives in Lakewood, is the youngest subject of a long series in the mag titled "Interesting Railfans."

This young fellow is a former newspaper boy of the Press-Telegram, and developed his interest in the rails when, while carrying his route, he saw trains switching on the Union Pacific freight branch here. He has since spent considerable time traveling to logging camps and elsewhere to ride the lumber company rail lines, and he worked a couple of years as a Union Pacific fireman. His hobby also took him to Latin America.

Adolf and a pal are about to take off for Colorado where they'll inspect the operations of the Denver and Rio Grande Western's narrow-gauge line over Cumbres Pass, the last narrow gauger in general service operation in the country.

This young fellow is having a lot of fun. He also plans to write a book that may turn the hobby into something more practical than fun.

RED Cross has asked this dept. to put out a special appeal for volunteers to serve elderly patients at Long Beach General Hospital. Some 400 patients at the hospital are lonely, many have no visitors, and there's a great field there for some good humane service.

Needed are women of the 30-55 age bracket who can give one day a week, shopping for the patients and visiting with them. An automobile is needed for the errands. Persons interested should call Kate Rogers, Volunteer Services, Long Beach chapter of the American Red Cross.

LONG Beach Public Transportation Co. is running a special bus on Sundays, whereby a passenger can ride all day for 50 cents and see the town.

One fellow who tried it is Irving Gaspard. He says he had an enjoyable experience, learned a lot about the things he hadn't known before about the city, and figures it was a four-bit piece mighty well spent.

Here's a way to see the community while leaving the driving to somebody else.

Police Loyalty

THE CASE OF the Los Angeles policeman who was suspended for participating in a civil rights demonstration brings up the knotty question as to what are the proper limits on the off-duty actions of a law enforcement officer.

A policeman is, after all, an American citizen and as such has a right to choose his beliefs. And yet the nature of his oath and of his official duties does suggest restrictions which do not necessarily apply to other citizens.

In the Los Angeles case, a hearing board ordered a firing and Chief Parker modified the decision to make it only a suspension. He stated the suspension was ordered not because of the officer's philosophy but because of his actions in participating in a demonstration that created a police problem. The officer's attorneys have promised to take the issue to the highest court if necessary.

IT SEEMS TO US that the L.A. chief had no alternative. A policeman must be dispassionate and uninvolved in matters likely to require police action. His loyalty to the general public is paramount. He has taken an oath to protect life and property, preserve the public peace and enforce the law of the land.

If he cannot do that, he shouldn't try to keep his job. While it may be possible to make a case for civic disobedience under some extraordinary circumstances, civil disobedience by a policeman goes beyond the pale.

We are not saying that policemen should not belong to political organizations, civic clubs, churches, or any organization whose action program is lawful and orderly. We are saying that they should remember that their first loyalty is to their job, on duty and off. And that job is just about as vital as any in our society.

During the 1920s the Ku Klux Klan infiltrated and often ruled police departments. There but for the grace of God was the machinery for an American Adolf Hitler.

EVERY PROFESSION demands limitations. A clergyman should not fall on his face at a cocktail party—in fact, in many denominations he should not even go to such a party. At the cost of personal inconvenience, a physician must act to save life. A newspaperman must report fact, no matter what his personal feeling about the fact is. Everybody must put certain limitations on his conduct.

A policeman's task is a hard and often thankless one. He is a man and he has a right to think—but there are certain actions which he must limit as long as he is a policeman.

Fast Obsolescence

IN BRITAIN there is a strange discotheque tribe of girls known as Dolly Rockers.

In the daytime they are just girls who work in offices and shops. Come night and their true nature appears. They doff their modest skirts and blouses and put on garish, eccentric, somewhat outrageous costumes.

The important thing about a Dolly Rocker's garb is its immediate obsolescence. No self-respecting Dolly wears the same outfit more than a week. Fashion is no longer for a season. It is for a week.

Women's fashions are always a comment on current history. The Dolly Rockers are saying in effect: "Live it up! Live it up! Take no thought of the morrow!"

Time was when women chose their clothes to establish a lasting personality image. Many still do—but maybe they are "obsolete."

This is, in many ways, a Dolly Rocker world. Everything changes from week to week—and those of us who try to cling to some verities, some permanent values, often feel we are in a world gone mad.

The Dolly Rockers, we fear, are "with it," the true moderns of our times.

Solons Could Avoid Pocket Veto by Legislating Early

Independent, Press-Telegram State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — A legislative campaign to abolish the pocket veto has been given new impetus—by extensive 1965 use of the pocket veto.

Of some 298 Legislature-passed bills killed by Gov. Brown, 165 bit the dust under pocket vetoes in July. They involved pet projects of some lawmakers. Result: a further irritant on already-stormy relations between the legislative and executive side of government.

* * * *

THE POCKET veto method for killing a Legislature-passed bill is where the Governor vetoes a bill simply by neither signing it nor specifically rejecting it.

Both Gov. Brown and his Republican predecessor, Goodwin Knight, used it extensively. It is an effective device for avoiding some of the political heat that comes from a direct veto of a bill.

This has been a sore spot with lawmakers for years.

Assemblyman Robert Stevens, R-Santa Monica, got majority bipartisan support for a proposed constitutional amendment that would abolish the pocket veto's death-dealing effect to legislation.

* * * *

UNDER the Stevens constitutional amendment that will be before California voters in 1966, the Legislature merely would go in recess after the transaction of its regular business.

Then the Legislature would come back in session for five days at the end of the pocket-veto season to decide whether to override gubernatorial vetoes.

Gov. Brown quickly went on record against the Stevens proposal. He contends it would disrupt the balance of power between the two branches of government.

And Stevens personally felt the sting of a pocket veto on his major piece of 1965 legislation. Killed by the Governor was a Stevens bill that might have paved the way for a Florida keystype causeway and freeway off the shoreline of Santa Monica.

Gov. Brown could have killed the Stevens bill with an ordinary veto. But he used a pocket-veto—a bit of irony in the wake of the Stevens-inspired battle over the propriety of the pocket veto.

Stevens has plenty of legislative support — in both parties.

A quick glance at the latest pocket-veto bill list shows why.

It was a pocket veto that killed the three crime-control bills of Assemblyman George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach. The bills would have made life in prison the minimum sentence for rapists, robbers and burglars who injure their victims with a deadly weapon.

ROBERT STEVENS

It also was a pocket veto that knocked out the bill authorizing a dial-zero-for-emergency trial phone program in the South Bay and North Long Beach area. Assemblyman Joseph Kennick, D-Long Beach, was the author of the pocket-vetoed phone bill.

Assemblyman Carley Porter, D-Compton, also lost to a pocket veto his legislation to earmark $5 million a year in state tidelands-oil revenue for water-recreation development.

A host of other controversial bills, including the anchovy legislation of Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, died a pocket death.

Legislators feel strongly they should have a chance to salvage their bills by overriding a veto.

They would have a second chance if legislation is pushed faster during the regular session. It is only possible for a governor to use a pocket veto on measures passed during the final 10 days of a session.

* * * *

DURING the session, any passed bill must be vetoed within 10 days or it automatically becomes law.

Why don't legislators do their legislative work early and avoid the pocket-veto pitfall?

Lawmaking is a little like shopping for Christmas, according to veteran lawmakers. Few ever really get down to business until just before the final deadline.

A result: at least half the bills produced in a session usually are eligble for pocket veto. And it usually is the more controversial bill that remains before the Legislature as a cliff-hanger till it squeaks through the last few days of a session.

That is why "pocket" is a dirty word in legislative corridors.

Casady Fuses Demo Harmony Bomb in Blast at CRA Chief

I, P-T Political Editor

INSOFAR AS UNOFFICIAL, volunteer political organizations of California are major vote-delivering forces, the California Democratic Council (CDC) made overtures last week which could be among the most significant of the budding 17-month campaign for political control of the state.

HOUSER

In a single line of rebuttal to the California Republican Assembly (CRA), CDC President Simon Casady bid boldly to patch his own and CDC's perennial quarrel with Democrat Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh and to set the Democrats' magic time bomb which explodes in multicolored harmony every two years.

The words from Casady, who a few months ago said Unruh couldn't be elected to statewide office even if he were unopposed, were somewhat startling:

"AS LONG AS political dinosaurs like the CRA keep trying to turn the clock backward, until the CRA suggests positive solutions to the grave problems facing mankind and renounces its archaic preoccupation with nay saying," said Casady, "Mr. Stevenson (CRA President Cyril Stevenson Jr.) will find the CDC and its 60,000 members standing shoulder to shoulder with President Lyndon Johnson, Governor Edmund G. Brown, Speaker Jesse Unruh and all the other progressive Democratic leaders who have enabled California to achieve prominence as the number one state in the nation."

What made Casady hopalong Stevenson's frame? Stevenson had suggested cutely that CDC might join forces with CRA in sponsoring an initiative amendment to the California Constitution. It would give CRA's conservative Republican wing control of the GOP State Central Committee and would guarantee the right of preprimary endorsements by volunteer political groups.

Unruh has opposed endorsements in the primary. Such endorsements have been the raison d'etre of CDC. So the suggestion had some basis of hope in a common-ground cause between CRA and CDC. Stevenson taunted further: "The CDC may help us because this will be a thorn in the side of Jesse Unruh."

BUT THE WHOLE PITCH, said Casady, "is laughably naive. In the first place, CDC is not concerned with any internal squabble for power within the Republican Party. . . . While it may be considered acceptable behavior in Mr. Stevenson's party for various factions to turn cannibalistic and devour each other in their greedy struggle for power, such behavior is frowned on in the Democratic Party as irresponsible and not conducive to maintaining public confidence."

Casady admitted to "family arguments" in the Democratic Party but "no sadistic need to stick thorns in each other, nor would we ever think of going outside the party to arrange an unholy alliance with any group of confused extremists."

CDC now claims 60,000 members—marked down from 70,000 claimed for the past several years. CRA claims upward of 20,000.

Unruh and a sizable group of moderates in his camp have faulted CDC not only for their preprimary endorsements (rather than leaving the choice to the Democratic electorate) but also for CDC's emphasis on issues which Democratic nominees and office-holders often find impossible to campaign on because of their ultraliberal cast.

CRA, ONCE the mainstream of volunteer Republicanism, has through right-wing vigilance recast that organization to an ultraconservative fringe. Thus it is fitting that the two bodies lock horns. But strange indeed would it be if they ever held hands even in an anti-Unruh gambit.

And so, if Cyril Stevenson didn't come out of this exchange with egg on his face, at least he stands there stirring his cannibal's pot with a lean and hungry look.

In reply to a recent letter published from Mrs. Lorraine Cole, where would law and order prevail if police officers and individual citizens took the law into their own hands? Doesn't our society believe in a fair trial for all of us? If the case were reversed and her son had been shot by a police officer because the officer thought our country would be better off without him, would she still feel that the officer did the right thing? Doesn't it resemble a Jack Ruby case?

I agree, many of us do want to read clean literature and read of persons who have fine standards (did she read the article on Capt. Sweet in Robeson's column?) but one doesn't expect literature in the newspaper and let us be thankful that shootings, rape, destruction etc. still are news items.

EDITOR:

Mr. Frank R. Wynne's recent letter taking exception with Mr. Cariaga restored my faith in critics. Ever since I attended a performance of "Rigoletto" at the Shrine and hearing Jan Peerce crack twice in the last act I haven't had much faith in critics. The Los Angeles papers raved at the "flawless" performance turned in by Mr. Peerce, the following morning. I haven't believed a critical review since.

If Dan Cariaga was quoted accurately in Mr. Wynne's letter, then at last I've found a trustworthy critic.

Regarding Maestro Toscanini's preference of Jan Peerce as tenor soloist, I might point out that the Maestro did not seem to like using Enrico Caruso. The reason appears to be that Caruso considered the orchestra as his accompaniment whereas the Maestro considered soloists as musicians to be under the discipline of the conductor.

Work Rights Repeal Opposed

EDITOR: I am deeply disturbed in regard to our playing political football with our Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

I am wondering by what authority, the powers invested and entrusted in our hallowed and revered forefathers to their preceding generations, have the constitutional rights to take that liberty from us. Must we rewrite the Constitution to enable us to choose the place in which we may follow our line of endeavor? I am referring to the Bill 14B (Right to Work Repealer).

It is unbelievable and incomprehensible to think that this bill would take away our inalienable right to choose. Please consider our future generations, whereby they might look on this generation as being as farsighted as was our forefathers.

British Not Reserved About Politics

I AM IN the midst of preparations for a trip to England, Scotland and Ireland. This trip was planned before Mr. Johnson asked us to do our touring at home, and is not in defiance of his wishes. Like many of my fellow citizens, I am not in much of a mood to defy Mr. Johnson right now; he has it tough enough. Also, I am so heartily in favor of his appointment of Henry Cabot Lodge as Ambassador to Viet Nam that a spirit of bipartisanship has me momentarily in a loose grip. Let us hope that Lodge's appointment has not come too late. Let us devoutly hope. The failure of John F. Kennedy to make Lodge Secretary of State in the first place cannot be rectified, but Kennedy's failures were not confined to his Cabinet selections. They just happened to be more conspicuous than some others.

Mr. Rusk an uninspired workhorse, seems to be headed for pasture-land, for no spectacularly dramatic reason, and it does not take a soothsayer's talent to guess that Lodge will succeed him. It will be a rather cruel correction of Kennedy's odd rejection of the obvious qualified man. Kennedy,after all, did appoint Douglas Dillon and Robert McNamara, who were Republicans, but the logical man was Lodge. How long Lodge would have lasted in a Kennedy Cabinet is conjectural, and yet interesting because the conjecture is instantaneous, automatic.

Kennedy and Lodge had opposed each other in a political campaign, with Kennedy emerging victorious, and there were such fundamental differences between the two men that they might have been unable to work together. It would not be the first time that the President of the United States and his Secretary of state failed to see eyeball to eyeball. Nevertheless I somehow have faith in the Johnson-Lodge coalition, if only because their fundamental differences are so much more different than those that existed between Lodge and Kennedy.

* * * *

THESE observations, strangely enough, are part of the preparations for my trip to Britain and Ireland. I have bought my "steamship" tickets, for wife, self, and automobile, and booked hotel reservations for wife, daughter, and self. The word has gone out to my friends, and my business associates are sharpening their wits. In view of the fact that I shall be at the wheel of the car on our journeys, the islands' populace should be alerted. My car is English, but with a left-hand drive, and those foreigners are just going to have to be extra careful. If I can go to so much trouble to make my visit a pleasant and mutually profitable one, those people ought to do their share.

Most of the people I will see are politically Liberal or Labour. Not all, but most of them. They are considerably more polite about my switch to the conservative side than American liberals tend to be. The last time I was in London I helped to celebrate the Conservatives' victory, and it's possible I may bring them luck again. They were worried about Nixon. Not that he would lose, but that he would win. I had lunch at White's Club, which is not a hangout of the radical left, and my companions were made uneasy by my prediction that Nixon would make a good showing if he did not actually win. Despite their conservatism and their lingering hostility toward Joseph P. Kennedy from his ambassadorial days, they had somehow convinced themselves that Jack Kennedy woul be more sympathetic to Britain's problems than Nixon.

The Liberals and the Labour people were, of course, terrified that Nixon would get in. The foolish notion that the British take their politics lightly is as absurd as the legend that their favorite comestible is Brussels sprouts. You can get Brussels sprouts if you ask for them, but if you ask for them you deserve them. The myth of lethargy during a British political campaign is strictly American journalese, as unreliable as the fictional contrast between an orderly British football crowd and the rowdyism of a game between the Detroit Lions and the Cleveland Browns. In Liverpool and Glasgow people get killed over football arguments. (They get killed here, too, on the day of the Yale-Harvard game — in motor accidents on the way home.) And while I was not threatened with bodily harm by my Liberal and Labour friends, they implied that I had gone crackers because I wanted to get home in time to vote for Nixon. Goodness knows what they would have implied if they had heard me say I was voting for Goldwater.

* * * *

WHAT I TRY to do in England is to correct some of the false impressions and misstatements that are sent back to the British press by their New York and Washington correspondents. The men and women who represent the foreign press in this country are generally so hidebound liberalistic that they see no other side. They are wasting their paper's money by being here at all. They share their employers' hostility toward the U. S., a circulation ploy that pays off in Britain. The idea is a continuation of lend-lease; Bertie McCormick orginated it in Chicagoland, with his one-man war against Britain.

Police Loyalty

THE CASE OF the Los Angeles policeman who was suspended for participating in a civil rights demonstration brings up the knotty question as to what are the proper limits on the off-duty actions of a law enforcement officer.

A policeman is, after all, an American citizen and as such has a right to choose his beliefs. And yet the nature of his oath and of his official duties does suggest restrictions which do not necessarily apply to other citizens.

Ever since I attended a performance of "Rigoletto" at the Shrine and hearing Jan Peerce crack twice in the last act I haven't had much faith in critics. The Los Angeles papers raved at the "flawless" performance turned in by Mr. Peerce, the following morning. I haven't believed a critical review since.

If Dan Cariaga was quoted accurately in Mr. Wynne's letter, then at last I've found a trustworthy critic.

Regarding Maestro Toscanini's preference of Jan Peerce as tenor soloist, I might point out that the Maestro did not seem to like using Enrico Caruso. The reason appears to be that Caruso considered the orchestra as his accompaniment whereas the Maestro considered soloists as musicians to be under the discipline of the conductor.

Work Rights Repeal Opposed

EDITOR: I am deeply disturbed in regard to our playing political football with our Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

I am wondering by what authority, the powers invested and entrusted in our hallowed and revered forefathers to their preceding generations, have the constitutional rights to take that liberty from us. Must we rewrite the Constitution to enable us to choose the place in which we may follow our line of endeavor? I am referring to the Bill 14B (Right to Work Repealer).

It is unbelievable and incomprehensible to think that this bill would take away our inalienable right to choose. Please consider our future generations, whereby they might look on this generation as being as farsighted as was our forefathers.

British Not Reserved About Politics

I AM IN the midst of preparations for a trip to England, Scotland and Ireland. This trip was planned before Mr. Johnson asked us to do our touring at home, and is not in defiance of his wishes. Like many of my fellow citizens, I am not in much of a mood to defy Mr. Johnson right now; he has it tough enough. Also, I am so heartily in favor of his appointment of Henry Cabot Lodge as Ambassador to Viet Nam that a spirit of bipartisanship has me momentarily in a loose grip. Let us hope that Lodge's appointment has not come too late. Let us devoutly hope. The failure of John F. Kennedy to make Lodge Secretary of State in the first place cannot be rectified, but Kennedy's failures were not confined to his Cabinet selections. They just happened to be more conspicuous than some others.

Mr. Rusk an uninspired workhorse, seems to be headed for pasture-land, for no spectacularly dramatic reason, and it does not take a soothsayer's talent to guess that Lodge will succeed him. It will be a rather cruel correction of Kennedy's odd rejection of the obvious qualified man. Kennedy,after all, did appoint Douglas Dillon and Robert McNamara, who were Republicans, but the logical man was Lodge. How long Lodge would have lasted in a Kennedy Cabinet is conjectural, and yet interesting because the conjecture is instantaneous, automatic.

Kennedy and Lodge had opposed each other in a political campaign, with Kennedy emerging victorious, and there were such fundamental differences between the two men that they might have been unable to work together. It would not be the first time that the President of the United States and his Secretary of state failed to see eyeball to eyeball. Nevertheless I somehow have faith in the Johnson-Lodge coalition, if only because their fundamental differences are so much more different than those that existed between Lodge and Kennedy.

* * * *

THESE observations, strangely enough, are part of the preparations for my trip to Britain and Ireland. I have bought my "steamship" tickets, for wife, self, and automobile, and booked hotel reservations for wife, daughter, and self. The word has gone out to my friends, and my business associates are sharpening their wits. In view of the fact that I shall be at the wheel of the car on our journeys, the islands' populace should be alerted. My car is English, but with a left-hand drive, and those foreigners are just going to have to be extra careful. If I can go to so much trouble to make my visit a pleasant and mutually profitable one, those people ought to do their share.

Most of the people I will see are politically Liberal or Labour. Not all, but most of them. They are considerably more polite about my switch to the conservative side than American liberals tend to be. The last time I was in London I helped to celebrate the Conservatives' victory, and it's possible I may bring them luck again. They were worried about Nixon. Not that he would lose, but that he would win. I had lunch at White's Club, which is not a hangout of the radical left, and my companions were made uneasy by my prediction that Nixon would make a good showing if he did not actually win. Despite their conservatism and their lingering hostility toward Joseph P. Kennedy from his ambassadorial days, they had somehow convinced themselves that Jack Kennedy woul be more sympathetic to Britain's problems than Nixon.

The Liberals and the Labour people were, of course, terrified that Nixon would get in. The foolish notion that the British take their politics lightly is as absurd as the legend that their favorite comestible is Brussels sprouts. You can get Brussels sprouts if you ask for them, but if you ask for them you deserve them. The myth of lethargy during a British political campaign is strictly American journalese, as unreliable as the fictional contrast between an orderly British football crowd and the rowdyism of a game between the Detroit Lions and the Cleveland Browns. In Liverpool and Glasgow people get killed over football arguments. (They get killed here, too, on the day of the Yale-Harvard game — in motor accidents on the way home.) And while I was not threatened with bodily harm by my Liberal and Labour friends, they implied that I had gone crackers because I wanted to get home in time to vote for Nixon. Goodness knows what they would have implied if they had heard me say I was voting for Goldwater.

* * * *

WHAT I TRY to do in England is to correct some of the false impressions and misstatements that are sent back to the British press by their New York and Washington correspondents. The men and women who represent the foreign press in this country are generally so hidebound liberalistic that they see no other side. They are wasting their paper's money by being here at all. They share their employers' hostility toward the U. S., a circulation ploy that pays off in Britain. The idea is a continuation of lend-lease; Bertie McCormick orginated it in Chicagoland, with his one-man war against Britain.

Horatio Alger Legend More Than Fiction

WASHINGTON — Hubert Horatio Humphrey, who never objected when Barry Goldwater twitted him about his middle name, has not lost the youthful spirit of Horatio Alger. Last week he took time off to see two teen - agers in his office just behind the Senate rostrum where daily he gavels the Senate to order.

PEARSON

The two teen - agers admired the colonial furnishings of the office, and the Vice President gave them a brief tour.

"That chandelier used to hang in the White House," he explained, "but it kept President Theodore Roosevelt awake. Teddy Roosevelt was supposed to be a big brawny guy, a rough rider, but he suffered from insomnia. And in those days without air conditioning the White House windows were open at night, and the wind hitting that chandelier made it twinkle.

"Finally Teddy told his wife: 'Send that chandelier up to the Vice President's office where it can keep him awake.'"

In one corner was a marble bust of Vice President Henry Wilson.

"His real name was Jeremiah Colbath," Humphrey explained. "He was an orphan boy who became indentured to a shoemaker in Massachusetts — practically slave labor. But he learned how to make shoes. Took the name of the man he worked for, Henry Wilson, studied at night until he became quite a speaker, and finally was elected to the Senate where he served four terms. He was renowned for his oratory. He had the most polished language and perfect grammar of any speaker of his day and was finally elected Vice President in the Grant administration.

"I CALL Henry Wilson the No. 1 dropout. He never had one year of schooling, yet by hard work and an honest character he became Vice President. Somebody wanted to take that statue away, but I wouldn't let 'em. I have kept it there as an inspiration to young people.

"The other day Keith Funston, head of the New York Stock Market, came up to see me. He was born of very poor parents in Ramona, S. D., yet he has now come up to be the head of the New York Stock Exchange.

"It just shows what you can do in this country whether you have education or wealthy parents or not," continued the Vice President, who got his start over a drugstore in Huron, S. D.

Roger Blough, head of the U.S. Steel Corporation, began life as a steelworker. And there's Tony Celebrezze, who came over here as an immigrant boy but became Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

"And there's President Johnson, who worked as a schoolteacher. The other day he appointed Arthur Goldberg to the United Nations — who was born of Russian immigrants on the South Side of Chicago.

"There's no place that you can't go in this country if you are dedicated and honest and work hard," said the Vice President.

The Vice President concluded with a word of advice to his teenage visitors on the subject of bureaucrats.

"If you ever get into government, beware of the bureaucrats with the outside world. If not, you'll find yourself just seeing government people, and you'll get to thinking like government people. Tell your grandfather to keep close to some of these high officials and shake 'em up occasionally so they don't get into a rut. The State Department will try to hem Arthur Goldberg in so tight that he'll be afraid to open a letter. They won't succeed because Arthur's a stem-winder. But the bureaucrats will try."

So advised a Vice President who has kept his contacts with the non-bureaucrats of the outside world. The teenagers, who happened to be my two elder grandsons, departed.

Q—How do Alaska and Texas compare in size?

A — Alaska is two and one-fifth times the size of Texas.

WALTER T. RIDDER

Another at HEW to Study 'This Bureaucratic Monster'

WASHINGTON—The new Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, John W. Gardner, has the prime task of trying to cut his job down to size.

At the moment, HEW is a vast, sprawling, uncoordinated and probably uncoordinatable, bureaucratic maze, carrying out vastly different assignments in a wide variety of fields. It includes among its duties administering the Social Security program—quite an undertaking in itself—, the Food and Drug Agency, Howard University (a Negro university in Washington), the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration, the Office of Education, the Public Health Service and the welfare program.

RIDDER

It also takes care of several hospitals and a program for Cuban refugees. In fact, you name it and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare probably has it.

No one has yet made much of a reputation by being Secretary of HEW. That is partially because the job is relatively unexciting, unromantic, and not apt to get in the headlines. About the only time the Secretary of HEW gets into the news is when things go badly, as when the department was not prepared for the frantic demand for Salk polio vaccine when news of the serum was first released. Short of an imbroglio of that nature, the Secretary of the department works in blessed anonymity, more often than not overwhelmed by the sheer complexities of his assignment.

In the job as Secretary have been Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby (first woman to hold a Cabinet job), Arthur S. Fleming, Abraham Ribicoff (who fled the post at the first opportunity and ran successfully for the Senate from Connecticut) and Cleveland's former Mayor, Anthony J. Celebrezze, who has, probably to his own vast relief, just been appointed to the federal bench.

It is probable that when the new Secretary, Mr. Gardner, takes office one of the first things he will do will be to make a study of the whole field of HEW operations. He may well conclude, as other HEW secretaries have done, that the whole thing is an administrative nightmare and that a vast reorganization is badly needed. Those who have been intimately concerned with running the vast establishment have for a long time been convinced that a cold hard look should be taken at the operation, and its purposes and missions be redefined or defined more clearly.

Establishment of a department of urban affairs which can be foreseen in the not-too-far-distant future may give HEW a chance to shuck some of its activities into the new agency. Some of the welfare functions of HEW would seem to be far more at home in urban affairs than where they are today.

Almost all who have wrestled with the problem of administering what one under secretary of HEW called "this bureaucratic monster" are certain that many of its functions should be reorganized, shifted to other agencies, or set up independently on their own feet. When the department of urban affairs is created, a study of the relationships of the department to HEW will have to be made, for as things now stand the two agencies are bound to have overlapping functions.

The new Secretary of HEW would seem to be a good man to make the necessary studies. He has had long experience in the educational field, has shown himself to be an able administrator and, most importantly, he knows his way around the government. He has served as education advisor to three Presidents, has worked for such diverse government agencies as the Federal Communications Commission, the Office of Strategic Services, and has been a consultant to the U.S. delegation to the United Nations, the Air Force, the Department of Defense, the Agency for International Development, and the U.S. Office of Education, the latter now being one of his babies at HEW.

He will need all of his talents to bring some order out of the current chaos.

New Immigration Quota May Be Latin-American Pacifier

By The I, P-T National Bureau

WASHINGTON—Ruffled Latin American feelings over the Dominican Republic affair may result in legislation that would permit unrestricted immigration into the United States from other Western hemisphere countries.

The State Department has thrown its weight against an immigration bill amendment offered in the House Judiciary Committee by Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn. His bill would set an annual limit of 140,000 on the number of persons who could emigrate to the U.S. from the other 23 nations of the hemisphere.

McGregor says his amendment would given preferential treatment to American nations. The 140,000 persons would come from only 23 nations, while 105 nations in the rest of the world would have the same annual quota.

But the State Department, sensitive to Latin American reaction over the Dominican affair, wants the American quota left open, even though Secretary of State Dean Rusk has said privately that quotas can be set "administratively" if a Latin American immigration flood should develop.

Administrative quota-setting is understood to consist largely of the old bureaucratic game of letting applications and other forms gather dust while prospective immigrants wait.

ONE OF THE leading Democratic possibilities for Mayor of New York City dropped out of the race because of the city's deteriorating financial situation. He saw no chance of improving the fiscal picture ond figures that any Democrat who is mayor will have such a terrible situation on his hands at the end of four years that he'll stand no chance for re-election. Curiously, he thinks a Republican mayor has a much better chance to do something about the metropolis finances than a Democrat. The reason is that the Republican can go to the City Council which inevitably will be overwhelmingly Democratic and lay down his financial demands. If they are not met he can blame the Democrats and run for re-election on the platform that the Democrats blocked his efforts to solve the accumulating crisis.

PUBLICIST CRUISING AWAY FROM IT ALL

Ex-Bellringer Tolls Troubles of Surfdom

—Staff Photo
DON MURRAY . . . Admits Disillusionment

By DON KIRKLAND

A public relations man turned troubleshooter for surfdom's quasi-official voice, the United States Surfing Assn., has some revealing observations on the sport he's about to leave in frustration.

Don Murray, executive secretary of the USSA since late last year, announced he is giving up the post in favor of a world cruise with lifeguard Robert Hogan and his family next October.

But the cruise was really an excuse, Murray hinted, for a move he'd been contemplating for several weeks. Murray said he took the job last November in the hopes of "getting surfing organized."

But a lackadaisical, egocentric attitude on the part of almost everybody, Murray said, left him disillusioned—and frustrated.

"One of the best things that could happen to surfing now is utter calamity," says Murray. "It might wake somebody up."

WHAT HE MEANS by calamity, he says, is closing of some of Southern California's biggest surfing beaches—a move that has been threatened, and even carried out, in some cities.

Result of a move like this, Murray theorizes, would be a banding together of surfing enthusiasts for a common goal—a project that thus far has virtually flopped.

Murrays' biggest frustration, he says, has been trying to get the surfboard manufacturers and the surfing magazine publishers to look to the future.

"If surfing is outlawed or restricted, then their businesses will be out on a limb," says Murray.

Though the surfing businessmen may recognize the threat to their cash registers, Murray says, most of them won'd do anything about it.

"ONE OF THEM called me and said, 'Don, I realize the problem and I want to help. I'll do anything I can, as long as I don't have to come to any meetings, I don't have to make any public appearances, and I don't have to devote any outside time to campaigning.' That's the kind of help we get."

Although Murray has helped surfing clubs get organized and has sold them on the program of the USSA, he doesn't count on them for much help in out-and-out combat against legislation which threatens to curtail surfing.

"After all, who's going to listen to a club made up of members that are all under 21?" he asks.

Murray's biggest hopes for surfing? Realization by the surfing merchants that "tomorrow" may be just around the corner and it may bring disaster.

MURAY ALSO HAS hopes for a growing move in local high schools to include surfing as part of the regular curriculum. Two Inglewood high schools held a year-end surfing contest as part of their intramural athletic program "and the principals and athletic directors were quite pleased," Murray said.

It is this kind of acceptance, along with a "good, hard look" by surfboard manufacturers and magazine publishers, that holds the sports salvation, Murray says.

As for the sport itself, Murray has high praise.

"Even the schools are beginning to admit that as many as 60% of their students are active surfers, and they don't frown on it like they used to."

Capt. Edward J. Leonard is back home after a 19-year journey.

The veteran Naval aviator, reared in Long Beach, Poly High graduate of 1937 and married to a Wilson graduate, has taken over as chief of staff and aide to Rear Adm. Odale D. Waters Jr., Commander, U.S. Naval Base, Los Angeles.

He replaces Capt. Morton H. Lytle, Commanding Officer, U.S. Naval Station, who had been working in a dual capacity for the month prior to Friday's changeover.

The new chief of staff comes to Terminal Island from the Aviation Plans Division, Office of Chief of Naval Operations. "I'm going to have to learn the city all over again. It sure has changed," he said.

CAPT. LEONARD was a lieutenant at the since deactivated Naval Air Station, Terminal Island (Reeves Field) in 1945-46, following World War II combat missions in the Solomons, Tinian, Iwo Jima and the Philippines.

It was at Reeves Field that Capt. Leonard decided "the regular Navy was for me." He had entered service following graduation from the University of Oregon, was commissioned an ensign less than a year later, and designated an aviator in October 1942.

Duties since the war have included representative in charge for the Bureau of Aeronautics, Honolulu; Naval Air Station, Agana, Guam; Fleet Airborne Electronic Training Unit, Atlantic; Naval War College graduate and staff member; commanding officer, Patrol Squadron 6 and Airborne Early Warning Squadron 1.

Fighting-Fit Marines in Thursday Concert

The 90-man 1st Marine Division Band will play an hour-and-a-half concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in Bixby Park as part of the Long Beach Recreation Commision's summer program.

Led by W/O H. L. Bentley, the band plays both military and civilian pieces. S/Sgt. Gene Nilsen is to narrate the program, introducing featured band members and giving a short commentary on each selection.

W/O H. L. BENTLEY
Leads Marine Band

The band was organized in the summer of 1941, and since that time has played concerts all over the nation. In recent years it has been one of the highlights of the annual Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena.

Among unusual features of the band is that it is made up of infantry riflemen. Every member of the organization is qualified in all military weapons, with special emphasis on the rifle.

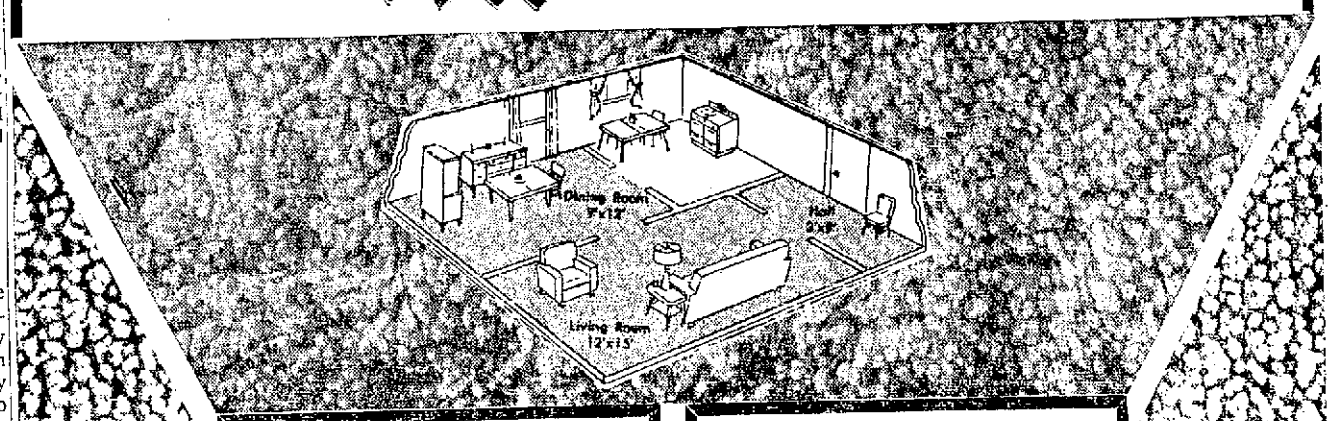

During World War II and the Korean conflict, members of the 1st Marine Division Band put down their instruments and took up rifles to fight side-by-side with front-line troops.

County Court Salary Hikes Unaffected

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The veto by Gov. Brown of a salary bill for superior court employes will not affect raises for about 500 Los Angeles County Court employes, according to County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy.

Presiding Judge Kenneth Chantry of the superior court expressed concern last week that the governor's veto of Assembly Bill 1342 would rescind raises granted by supervisors to the court employes.

The county counsel's office said, however, the vetoed bill would have affected only the superior court's executive officer, Edward Gallas, and six other court employes.

Gallas and the other six employes had not been among those court employes recommended for raises this year by L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer.

SHE MUST PAY

Wife's Suit for Divorce Boomerangs

A wife sues her husband for divorce.

Routine?

You bet!

Happened 40,000 times in Los Angeles County last year.

But not routine is the decision of Superior Court Judge John F. McCarthy involving a Downey couple.

The wife sued the husband for divorce.

But the divorce was granted to the husband, the custody of four children to the husband, and the wife was ordered to pay the husband $80 per month for child support.

The wife, working as a psychiatric technician in a hospital, was accused of misconduct by the husband in a cross-complaint. The husband also said he was suffering from rheumatoid arthritis and couldn't support the four children, ranging in ages from five to 14, by himself.

County Court Salary Hikes Unaffected

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The veto by Gov. Brown of a salary bill for superior court employes will not affect raises for about 500 Los Angeles County Court employes, according to County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy.

Presiding Judge Kenneth Chantry of the superior court expressed concern last week that the governor's veto of Assembly Bill 1342 would rescind raises granted by supervisors to the court employes.

The county counsel's office said, however, the vetoed bill would have affected only the superior court's executive officer, Edward Gallas, and six other court employes.

Gallas and the other six employes had not been among those court employes recommended for raises this year by L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer.

SHE MUST PAY

Wife's Suit for Divorce Boomerangs

A wife sues her husband for divorce.

Routine?

You bet!

Happened 40,000 times in Los Angeles County last year.

But not routine is the decision of Superior Court Judge John F. McCarthy involving a Downey couple.

The wife sued the husband for divorce.

But the divorce was granted to the husband, the custody of four children to the husband, and the wife was ordered to pay the husband $80 per month for child support.

The wife, working as a psychiatric technician in a hospital, was accused of misconduct by the husband in a cross-complaint. The husband also said he was suffering from rheumatoid arthritis and couldn't support the four children, ranging in ages from five to 14, by himself.

SUSPECT SHIPS PHOTOGRAPHED, PUT ON SPOT OFF VIET COAST

It's a Long Day Aboard Navy Patrol Plane

By SAM JONES

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—The dark speck on the blue-green surface of the South China Sea loomed larger and the big P2V dropped down to get in position for a "rigging."

After eight passes, it had been determined that the vessel was a Communist Chinesee ship named Heping. Details on the ship herself, possible cargo, direction and speed were relayed to the task force and the P2V, its 10-man crew and two Vietnamese observers went on to the next task.

* * * *

THE FLIGHT was one of those that go on day and night to provide a watch on the coastal area of south Viet Nam. Jobs assigned those "eyes" of the U.S. Navy include liaison with the Vietnamese junk force and observation of ground action in coastal areas.

"Rigging" is the most common job. The patrol plane lets down to about 50 feet above the ocean for visual checks and photographing of vessels. Planes of the P2V type are designed mainly for antisubmarine warfare, but they are mounted with cameras, 'fore and aft.

The idea is to get down low enough to have a ship's superstructure silhouetted against the horizon for pictures and to check off other details. These include descriptions of masts, radar antenna, bow and stern shapes, estimated tonnage, water-line indication of cargo, any unusual structures on deck, name and nationality markings, position, speed and direction.

"Rigging" of the Heping was relatively easy. The name stood out in letters three feet high. The plane commander, Cmdr. Charles M. Walker, checked a reference work and found the ship's nationality. That led to more passes to get more pictures.

* * * *

SPOTTED ON THE deck, 18 or 20 oblong objects became subjects of speculation.

"They couldn't be missiles," cracked one voice over the P2V's intercom system. "Well, they could be small antiaircraft missiles . . . that appears to be about an eight-inch gun on the bow—or it could be a missile."

After information on the Heping was passed on to task force authorities, the patrol plane got orders to look over an island where the Viet Cong were reported about to attack a hamlet.

It was midafternoon. The P2V had left Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport before 10 a.m. with 3,100 gallons of fuel.

Over Phu Quoc Island, crewmen located the fishing village of Ham Ninh and the two Vietnamese aboard made radio contact with junk force craft near the settlement.

The P2V circled 'round and 'round the island, taking care to remain as far offshore as possible because of the probability the Viet Cong below had a machine gun.

"Commander," came a voice over the intercom system, "how far can a 50-caliber shoot?"

"About 15,000 yards," replied Walker.

"Wow," came the response.

The P2V carried no armament, only smoke flares for markings.

As the afternoon wore on the problem of fuel became one of importance. Messages from the junk force gave conflicting accounts of whether the Viet Cong planned an attack.

* * * *

FINALLY, WALKER to navigator: "How much fuel do we have left? I want one hour over the field."

"We have three hours and 45 minutes flying time," the navigator replied.

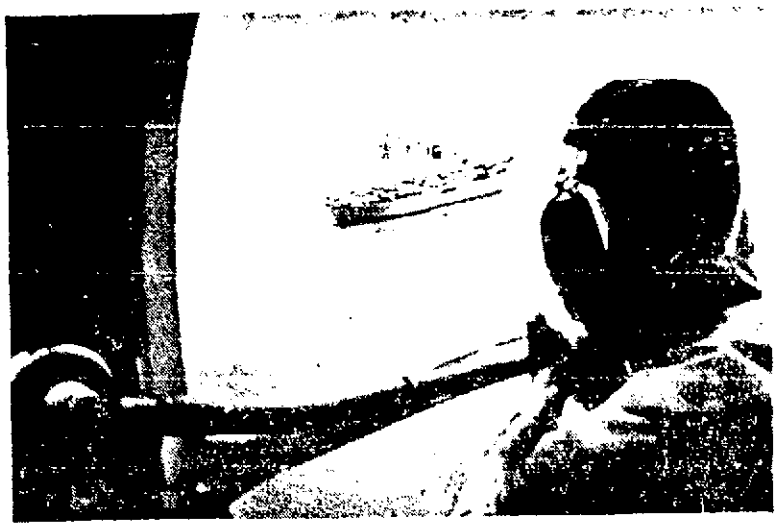

"Does that include one hour over the field?"

"No sir, total time."

A U.S. minesweeper had joined the junk force below and the P2V was in contact. As darkness began to settle in, the minesweeper passed up the word that headquarters had ordered the plane to "resume normal patrol" en route to base.

As the plane turned back for Saigon, crew members moved forward to offset the distribution of weight from empty fuel tanks.

It was an 11½-hour flight, three hours longer than scheduled. Commander Walker had "hand flown" the plane—routine Navy practice—on the entire flight.

Judge Pledges Crackdown on Young Drinkers

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Juvenile Judge Lindsay Arthur says he will increase the severity of sentences for first-offense drinking because of "grossly excessive" teen-age drinking in Hennepin County. He said convictions are running seven times the national average.

Offenders, he said, must appear with a parent—no exceptions—and will lose their driver licenses for at least 60 days, even if no car was involved.

Life Preserver Can Be a Killer If It's Mishandled

By JOHN KORD LAGEMANN

If you are one of the 38 million Americans who will go boating this summer, don't feel safe just because there are life jackets aboard. Most of those in use are little more than swimming aids, offering scant protection in a real emergency.

A "life preserver" can in fact be a killer. One hundred twenty-eight lives were lost when the Greek cruise ship Lakonia burned on the night of December 22-23, 1963. The sea was calm and warm — over 64 degrees — and the victims should have been able to float safely until rescued. An inquest was held on 58 bodies at Gibraltar. It showed that the majority of these people had been injured or stunned by the impact of their cork life jackets against their chins, then drowned when the jackets failed to hold their nostrils out of the water.

Recently, with the cooperation of the U.S. Coast Guard and the Yacht Safety Bureau, I tried out 17 U.S. made life jackets. It was fortunate that these were only tryouts because, with only two or three exceptions, the jackets would not have saved me if I had been unconscious or too numbed to tread water.

* * * *

BRITISH TESTS. How should a jacket perform? How can you pick the best type? The most helpful answers to date come from England, where for four years the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy have been cooperating with the British Standards Institution in tests to improve life jacket design.

To receive B.S.I. approval, a jacket among other things must: (1) Have a minimum buoyancy of 30 pounds. (2) Bring you rapidly to the surface and flip you over within five seconds to a backward-leaning position, even if you are unconscious. (3) Bring your head well out of the water and keep it from tipping sideways. (4) Turn you so that you ride with oncoming waves instead of being engulfed by them.

* * * *

HOW MUCH BUOYANCY? Most existing jackets, the British found, have too little buoyancy, poor distribution of buoyancy, or both. In the United States, buoyancy is determined by the weight of iron a jacket will sustain in fresh water. The U.S. Coast Guard accepts a minimum buoyancy of 15½ pounds in adult-size vests, 11 pounds in "child medium" vests, 7 pounds in "child small" ones. But the British tests demonstrate that jackets with these ratings are completely inadequate in circumstances where a life preserver is most desperately needed.

According to Dr. John E. Gabb of the R.A.F. Institute of Aviation Medicine, who headed the British research, 30 pounds' buoyancy — correctly distributed and secured —is the minimum adult jackets should have, and 38 pounds is preferable. Children's jackets ought to have even more, because children have proportionately more bone and muscle, less fat, and their weight in water may well be greater than a 200-pound adult's. But because it is impossible to fit enough buoyant material to their small bodies, the B.S.I. accepts a minimum of 20 pounds for children.

* * * *

IN CORRECT POSITION. The human body ordinarily weighs only 2 to 12 pounds when immersed, a few pounds more when fully clothed. What creates problems and calls for the extra buoyancy is the need to keep one's face above water. In the water the body of an unconscious or exhausted person tends to do all the wrong things. The head falls forward; the spine bends in the same direction. The power to pop you over on your back with your face well out of water has to come from the life jacket's reserve buoyancy.

A properly designed life jacket also helps you ride with the waves, facing them, while leaning backward at an angle of about 45 degrees. The upward surge of a wave then starts lifting your whole body before it reaches your head. This prevents the water from engulfing your head. Says Dr. Gabb, "Our tests show that the jacket which turns you over to the safety position also steers you automatically to a position facing the waves."

* * * *

RIGHT SIDE UP. Just as important as the amount of buoyancy is the way it's distributed. The standard cork or balsa-wood life preserver, for example, wraps buoyancy around the entire body—with a potentially lethal amount of it on the back and sides. Trying out one of these, I had to work my arms constantly to keep my face out of water.

Ski belts worn around the middle lower the body's center of buoyancy and make the body unstable in the water. Cushions, fastened on your back like a knapsack with your arms through the loops, as many people fasten them, also turn you face down in the water. According to the Coast Guard, buoyant cushions are mainly for holding onto; if worn, they should be placed over the chest, with the left arm through one loop and the right leg through the other.

A child's center of gravity is proportionately much higher than an adult's, and ring-type life preservers — inner tubes, plastic "life belts" — can readily upend him, holding him head down in the water. On the beach at Martha's Vineyard last summer I noticed that about half the small children playing in the surf wore bright "lifesavers" that looked something like footballs — but strapped to their backs! In the water, such buoyancy concentrated on the back tends to turn the wearer face down.

* * * *

FOR CALM WATER. Low-buoyancy vests and buoyant cushions of the kind found aboard American private boats do have some value under favorable conditions. Because they are better than nothing, the Coast Guard approves them for small private boats (under 40 feet). These vests do have buoyancy enough to turn most people so that their faces are out of water. As for the cushions, they will support you in calm water where help is immediately at hand.

But in boating accidents, conditions are seldom so favorable. Summer squalls, or even a strong breeze, can quickly produce choppy waves. If you fall overboard it is easy to become panicky. If struck by a boom or some other object, you may be stunded or unconscious when you hit the water. Tides and river currents can quickly carry you out of reach. Cold northern waters incapacitate even a capable swimmer within minutes. Genuine, all-purpose life preservers are as much needed on small private boats as they are on boats over 40 feet and on commercial boats, where the Coast Guard requires them.

ALL-PURPOSE LIFE PRESERVERS. There are three basic Coast Guard-approved models, identifiable by the type number on the jackets: cork block or balsa wood (160.003 and 160.004); plastic foam yoke (160.055); and the canvas jackets filled with kapok or fibrous glass (160.002 and 160.005). Because the cork or balsa jackets have been shown to have serious drawbacks, the Coast Guard has announced that it is withdrawing its approval of them as of July 1, 1965. (Jackets manufactured before that date retain their approved status until declared "unserviceable.")

The approved plastic-yoke life preserver is a rubbery slab of plastic foam with a keyhole-shape opening for the head. It is easy to store, almost impossible to damage and can be put on quickly and simply. It is rather expensive: $12 to $27. More important, it is of low buoyancy by B.S.I. standards—a minimum of 24 pounds. When I tried one out in a pool, this preserver brought me to a face-up position on my back, slowly, but it did not prevent my head from rolling sideways.

An approved jacket that does have the B.S.I. buoyancy minimum is the kapok life preserver (160.002) with 31½ pounds' initial buoyancy (22 pounds in the "child medium" size). It sells for $7 to $11. In my tests it swiftly flipped me over in the safety position and held me there firmly and comfortably, with ample freeboard between my nostrils and the water. Each time I assumed a face-down posture and feigned unconsciousness, I was turned over on my back.

The kapok life preserver also has drawbacks. It is bulkier than the low-buoyancy vests. It has kapok pads sealed in vinyl-plastic envelopes, and if the envelopes are torn the kapok gradually soaks up moisture and loses some of its buoyancy. (The Coast Guard calls for a minimum buoyancy rating of 25 pounds even with all envelopes slit.) Kapok is also damaged by high temperatures, by rough handling such as being sat on or stepped on, or by oil and gasoline. But with reasonable care it will keep its buoyancy for years.

An almost identical life jacket (160.005) uses fibrous glass which is little affected by water, gasoline, heat, and is more durable, lasting about three times as long. It is slightly more buoyant (33 pounds). But it is not currently being manufactured because of its greater expense (about $25). Both jackets are modifications of the standard U.S. Navy life preservers used on Coast Guard boats.

* * * *

FOR SAFETY. Here are rules for getting the most protection from any life-preserving devices:

- Stow them where they are easy to grab in a hurry. Treat life jackets with care, and don't use them as cushions or expose them to heat, oil, gasoline or moisture.
- Try them on, get used to them. Be sure everybody on board knows how to get into them. Any looseness because of improper adjustment seriously lessens the jacket's effectiveness.
- If you're in doubt about a jacket's performance, put it through these tests: Fall sideways into the water and "play dead." Does the jacket bring you up in the safety position? Try swimming a few strokes; then feign exhaustion. Does the jacket leave you face down or promptly turn you over? If it flunks these tests, look for a better life preserver.
- Throw away old inner tubes, damaged or over-age seat cushions which have lost buoyancy, old war-surplus life belts or jackets. In an emergency you may grab one of these by mistake.
- Anticipate emergencies. No matter how well you swim, wear a life preserver routinely while navigating in rough water or at night, in haze or fog, or wherever there is danger of striking submerged objects. Nonswimmers, young children, the aged and physically handicapped should wear life jackets at all times while on the water.

'GUEST IN HOUSE' STAGED

Dreadful Result of Bird Allergy

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

The theater's added conveniences were modern enough to make "guesting" less risky, but the play, Hagar Wilde and Dale Eunson's "Guest in the House" was as old as the Borgias in intent and commitment when Huntington Beach playhouse, 2110 Main, resumed production Friday night.

This half-horror, half hearted, 25-year-old play is all about Eve — Evleyn Heath (Carol Campbell), a sick girl who came to her cousin's, (lovely Nancy Sullard as Ann Proctor), house near Trumbull, Conn., for a rest cure and ended up giving everybody the "birdies."

Which is the only way to describe what went on in the lovely barn theater for three acts, six scenes.

See, Eve, well-played by that sharp-looking blonde youngster, Mrs. Campbell, liked to listen to "Dream of Love," but had an allergy against birds. The authors never explained why. But it's my guess that the allergy, if it was not really intended to be an allegory, resulted from something this girl ate for dinner. Or maybe when she was a little girl she drank some neighbor's bird-bath water by mistake. Or she got frightened by a cameraman who yelled "watched the birdie" and then kissed her? Or she once saw "Birdie," Tebbetts smile!

* * * *

WHATEVER THE source of her bird-allergy, Eve got the screaming meenies — and how that actress Carol can scream! — everytime she saw a bird. Any lil' ol' bird.

Now in the Proctors' house daughter Lee. Marcia Holes kept a couple of birds. Plot over? No, plot just beginning.

Anyway, guest Eve's psychological goose was pretty well-cooked by the first scene when she sighted the two caged birds in the house, little Lee abetting or a-birding with sweet innocence.

Remembering that two birds in the house are worth one batty guest in the bush, screaming Eve took off for the Connecticut outdoors. But she returns. After all, she came for a rest cure, and the cooking by maid Hilda (Jenice Avants) and husband butler John (Ivan Stewart) smells pretty good. (No bird-on-toast, please, vultures!)

* * * *

ON HER RETURN Eve then shows what a vulture she herself can be.

She accuses master of the house Douglas Proctor (Bob McLemore) of attacking his sexy model, Miriam Blake (Marion Holmes). Out goes model. She then accuses him of giving her the "eye." She makes Proctor's wife become suspicious of him. Out goes wife. She gets the cook and butler mad. Out go cookie and butler. She makes little moppet daughter Lee go into a sharp mental decline after discovering the disappearance of one of her caged birds.

Young Lee releases the other. Eve hears about it from dear Aunt Martha Proctor, well portrayed by lovely matron, Anna Stewart, seemingly incapable of harming even a fly. Anyhow, she scares the living allergy out of Eve in the only way out of this mordant twee - twee - twa - twa - yarn.

Eve drops dead from bird-fear!

* * * *

UNDER JAMES Gallion's okay direction, the players are superior to their material. Bob McLemore who speaks a bit like Jose Ferrer was fine as the artist husband, never losing his "cool." Even in a kiss with reunited wife Ann, which he and Miss Sullard held, like old friends, for more than three choruses of "Let's all sing — like the birdies sing. . ." Miss Holmes was quite funny as the plain-speaking model.

The rest who splashed in the bird-bath of the plot were George Baker (Rev. Dr. Shaw), Ronald K. Filian (Dan Proctor), Lyndon A. Wells Sr. (Frank Dow), Rose-Marie Curry (Mrs. Dow), Grace Shaw as a fast-talking scandal reporter and George Ralph as a photographer.

Marian Anderson to Officiate at Sub's Launching

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)—Negro singer Marian Anderson will christen the Navy's newest Polaris submarine, the USS George Washington Carver, at launching ceremonies here Aug. 10.

The Carver was named in honor of the American Negro of synthetic products from peanuts and sweet potatoes figured importantly in the South's economic development.

It is the 37th nuclear submarine launched in the Navy's Polaris program and the first nuclear vessel to be named for a Negro.

Keel for the 425-foot craft was laid Aug. 25, 1964. Delivery is scheduled for next summer.

POOL HUSTLER

Peter Falk an Expert With a Cue

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Peter Falk is Hollywood's best pool hustler.

No one knows exactly how much he won from Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon during the seven months filming of "The Great Race."

But director Blake Edwards comments:

"Anyone who puts Falk, Curtis and Lemmon in a picture and puts a pool table on the set will get Peter for free. His salary is incidental."

Edwards even provided chauffeured limousine service for Falk.

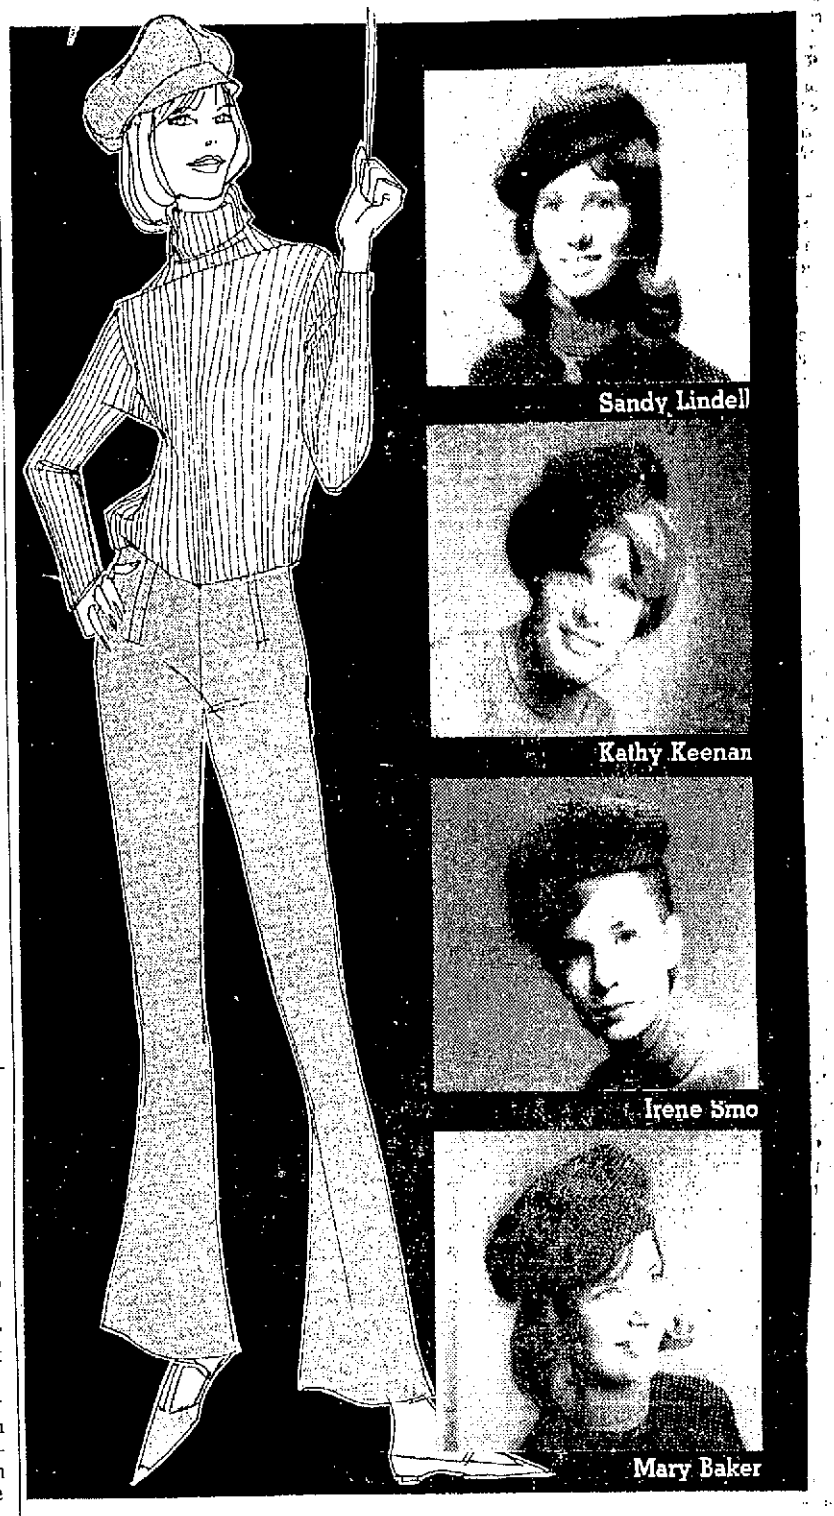

"We couldn't have the cue ball hitting the eight ball on the stage where we were shooting so we had to have a separate pool set for Falk and his pigeons.

"The mileage on the limousine registered 1,850 just between our stage and the pool set."

Curtis and Lemmon both say their experience with Falk — probably the best pool player in town—was very educational.

After all, she came for a rest cure, and the cooking by maid Hilda (Jenice Avants) and husband butler John (Ivan Stewart) smells pretty good. (No bird-on-toast, please, vultures!)

* * * *

ON HER RETURN Eve then shows what a vulture she herself can be.

She accuses master of the house Douglas Proctor (Bob McLemore) of attacking his sexy model, Miriam Blake (Marion Holmes). Out goes model. She then accuses him of giving her the "eye." She makes Proctor's wife become suspicious of him. Out goes wife. She gets the cook and butler mad. Out go cookie and butler. She makes little moppet daughter Lee go into a sharp mental decline after discovering the disappearance of one of her caged birds.

Young Lee releases the other. Eve hears about it from dear Aunt Martha Proctor, well portrayed by lovely matron, Anna Stewart, seemingly incapable of harming even a fly. Anyhow, she scares the living allergy out of Eve in the only way out of this mordant twee - twee - twa - twa - yarn.

Eve drops dead from bird-fear!

* * * *

UNDER JAMES Gallion's okay direction, the players are superior to their material. Bob McLemore who speaks a bit like Jose Ferrer was fine as the artist husband, never losing his "cool." Even in a kiss with reunited wife Ann, which he and Miss Sullard held, like old friends, for more than three choruses of "Let's all sing — like the birdies sing. . ." Miss Holmes was quite funny as the plain-speaking model.

The rest who splashed in the bird-bath of the plot were George Baker (Rev. Dr. Shaw), Ronald K. Filan (Dan Proctor), Lyndon A. Wells Sr. (Frank Dow), Rose-Marie Curry (Mrs. Dow), Grace Shaw as a fast-talking scandal reporter and George Ralph as a photographer.

POOL HUSTLER

Peter Falk an Expert With a Cue

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Peter Falk is Hollywood's best pool hustler.

No one knows exactly how much he won from Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon during the seven months filming of "The Great Race."

But director Blake Edwards comments:

"Anyone who puts Falk, Curtis and Lemmon in a picture and puts a pool table on the set will get Peter for free. His salary is incidental."

Edwards even provided chauffeured limousine service for Falk.

"We couldn't have the cue ball hitting the eight ball on the stage where we were shooting so we had to have a separate pool set for Falk and his pigeons.

"The mileage on the limousine registered 1,850 just between our stage and the pool set."

Curtis and Lemmon both say their experience with Falk — probably the best pool player in town—was very educational

IMMIGRANT WORKS A YEAR, GETS HELP

Family of 11 Joining Father

By EARL GRISWOLD

A struggling cabinetmaker from Costa Rica will be reunited with his wife and 10 children Monday evening, thanks to a Horatio Alger-style determination and a helping hand from a Long Beach school counselor.

Martin Boeckh, 38, with a wide grin spreading across his face, points out the reunion will mark the first time he's seen his youngest child, Rocio, born three months after he left his native land.

His wife, Blanche, and their 10 children—three boys and seven girls ranging from 13 years down to 9 months old — will leave San Jose, Costa Rica, Monday morning, arriving at Los Anegels International Airport at 10:30 p.m.

* * * *

SINCE HE came to this country a year ago, Boeckh has lived with the dream of getting his family to Long Beach. The dream was marred in recent weeks with nightmareish red tape, problems of finance, getting a home and racing a deadline to get his family out of Costa Rica before their visas expire on Aug. 12.

Helping him solve the terrifically thorny problems has been Carl Wulfsberg, head counselor at Wilson High School.

Wulfsberg bought a house a week ago at 5622 Hungerford St., which will be home to the reunited Boeckh family. He gave Boeckh a stove, refrigerator and washing machine. Wulfsberg and his friends in the Los Cerritos area have completely furnished the house, providing furniture, bedding, linens, clothing and toys for the children.

"I met Martin last November," Wulfsberg said. "He was the cabinetmaker for the contractor who remodeled our kitchen. I admired Martin's craftsmanship, his hard work and drive, his intelligence and humility, and the way he can smile even in the darkest days."

* * * *

BOECKH'S struggles struck a nostalgic note for Wulfsberg of his own youth.

"My parents emigrated from Norway. They also began with nothing. But they found a helping hand from newfound friends in the Midwest. In a way, this is sort of extending the same helping hand to someone else . . . And, besides, Martin is a great addition to our country."

Finding a house presented problems, Wulfsberg said.

"I tried to find a place for him to rent, but with 10 children and the language barrier his family faces, it was difficult. They need a yard and a place near schools. And Martin needs a place close to work because his only transportation is a bicycle."

For the past year Boeckh has worked 12 to 14 hours a day to support himself and at the same time send money to support his family in Costa Rica, plus saving toward the $2,000 needed to pay for his family's passports, visas, transportation, etc.

"If he hadn't beat the Aug. 12 deadline, it would have cost another $1,000 to go all through the visas and necessary red tape again," Wulfsberg said.

* * * *

BOECKH was inspired to emigrate to the United States after his sister, Mrs. Carmen Sancho of Compton, returned to Costa Rica for a Christmas visit in 1963.

After long discussions with his sister, Boeckh became obsessed with the idea of getting to the United States. He studied English and began making plans to emigrate.

Boeckh saw in his plans a better way to rear his 10 children, "under the advanced system of the United States, with its opportunities and educational programs. I didn't want them to grow up under the old system of Costa Rica. There just aren't the opportunities there I'd like them to have."

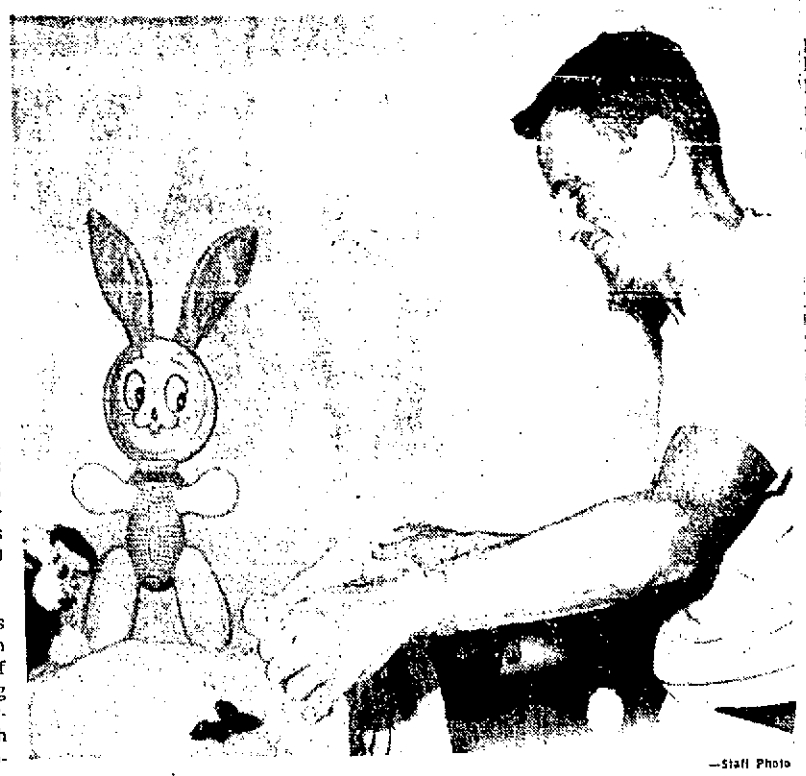

* * * *

BOECKH is a staunch opponent of Communism.

"International communism would like to infiltrate all of Latin America," he said. "In Costa Rica there are many people with Communist leanings."

Boeckh arrived in Long Beach July 29, 1964.

And now, a year later, he foresees the realization of his dreams, which will materialize Monday when the 12 Boeckhs are reunited to start a new family life together in Long Beach.

Paddleboard Expert Back in Atlantic

Larry Capune, 23, a Newport Beach lifeguard who lives at 211½ Agate St., Balboa Island, Saturday was reported averaging about 30 to 35 miles a day in his marathon paddle from Coney Island, N.Y., to Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Capune, an Orange Coast College student, left Ocean City, Md., headed for Chincoteague, Va., after covering the 31 miles between Ocean City and Dewey Beach, Del., in seven hours.

Capune uses a specially built 18-foot paddle board. He said he lost two days in Stone Harbor, N.J., where he was arrested for and acquitted of violating an anti-surfboard ordinance. He was fined $35 for ignoring lifeguard's whistles, however.

The youth said he plans to paddle from Florida to Cuba next. Last summer, he paddled from San Francisco to Newport Beach, covering the 507 miles in 18 days.

Frail Boy, 9, Lost Four Days in Swampland, Is Found Alive

WOODRIDGE, N.Y. (AP)—A frail, 9-year-old boy, lost for four days in a rugged, swampy woodland where others before him have disappeared and perished, was found Saturday, alive, hungry, but still alert.

"Take me back to my camp," were his first words when an Air Force man came upon him, sitting on the ground, leaning against a tree, in a forest clearing. Then he pleaded for food.

Airman Theodore Houy gave him a candy bar.

The boy, Hershel Babad, an ailing child who weighed only 53 pounds, had been the object of a 1,000-man search since he vanished last Wednesday from a camp near here.

Hope for him had been virtually abandoned. In the last 11 years three other young boys had wandered off into that rough, overgrown Sullivan County section. Two were found dead and one was never found.

IN THE hunt for the Babad youngster, bloodhounds and a helicopter had been brought into use, as well as a huge corps of state and local police, forestry service men, Air Force personnel and other volunteers.

Several ponds were dragged and drained in the search for the boy.

Houy stumbled on the boy in midafternoon in an area of steep slopes, bogs and heavy woods. The spot was about five miles cross-country from the camp from which he disappeared.

It was a mile and a half off the nearest road.

Houy and other airmen rigged up a stretcher and carried the boy to an ambulance waiting on Route 52, and it took the boy back to his camp—and his overjoyed parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abba Babad of Brooklyn.

Hospital Costs Rose to New High in '64

CHICAGO (AP)—The average daily cost for each hospital patient rose to an all time high of $41.58 in 1964, the American Hospital Association reported Saturday.

The costs ranged from an average of $3.31 in the East South Central region which includes Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky and Tennessee to $54.28 in the Pacific Coast region.

The average expense per patient day has risen from $15.62 in 1950 to $23.12 in 1955, $32.23 in 1960 and $38.91 in 1963.

A report in the guide issue of Hospitals, journal of the AHA, said total expenses of all hospitals rose almost 10% above 1963 to $12 billion.

The report said most of the increased cost was caused by payroll expense, which annually represents about two-thirds of the dollar in the non-federal, short-term general and special hospitals covered in the cost study.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH the number of registered hospitals in 1964 decreased slightly from the previous year to 7,127, the number of hospital personnel increased from the 1963 figure to 1,840,000 to 1,887,000. The 1964 figure amounted to 133 hospital personnel for every 100 patients and compared with the 1946 figure of only 73 persons employed for every 100 patients.

A decreasing trend in births continued in 1964 with 3,729,382 reported in the nation's hospitals as compared with 3,784,666 in 1963. The decline in births started in 1960 after reaching a high of 3,908,121.

Dr. Edwin L. Crosby, AHA director, said outpatient services increased substantially last year with a total of 125 million such visits. This was 7 million higher than in 1963.

Prospective Renters Depart With $1,205

Two prospective renters who were shown an apartment at 220 Quincy Ave. Saturday left with $1,205 of the owner's money.

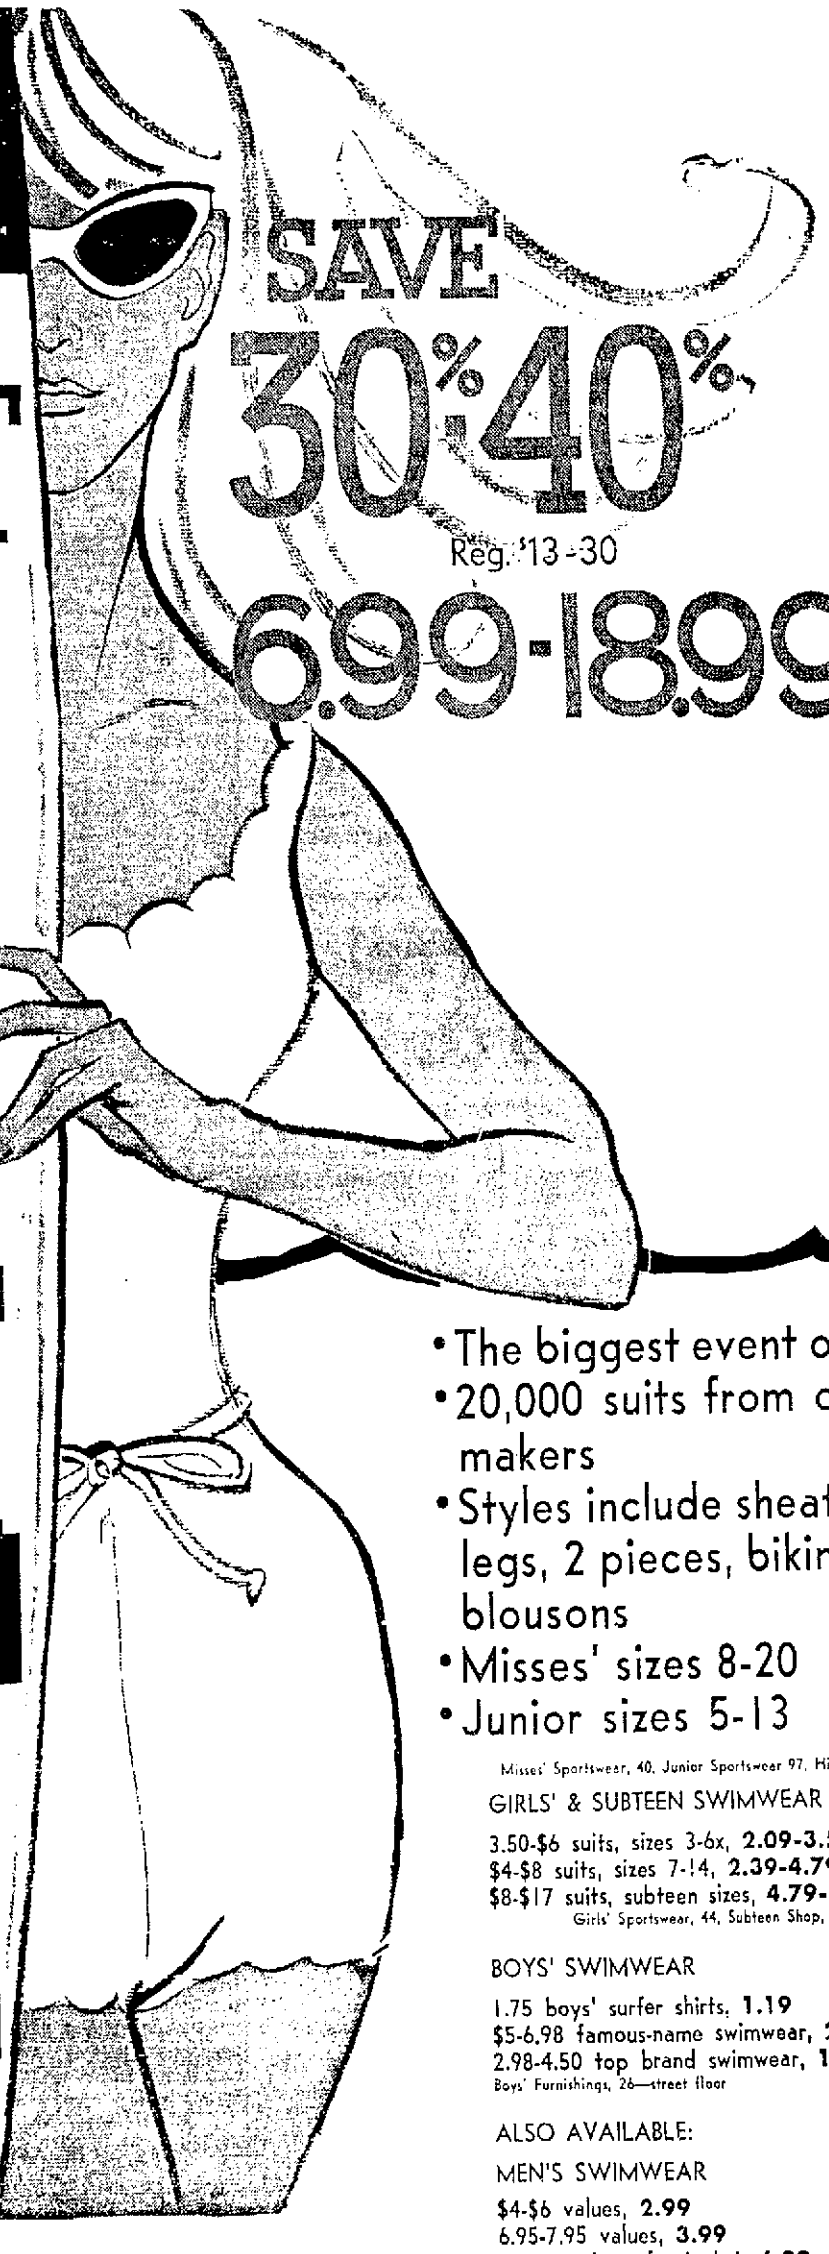

Albert C. Edwards told police the two men, both about 36 years of age, removed his wallet from the top of a bedroom dresser.

USS WISCONSIN AT SEA IN HER HEYDAY

OUT OF THE PAST

'Battleship Navy' Sailor's Convention in Long Beach

The battleship navy is only a fond memory of the past.

It has no ships. But it does have the men who sailed the giant battlewagons—a different and fast-disappearing breed of men.

Currently there doesn't seem to be any hope of reviving the giant gray ships that, prior to World War II, used to lie at anchor off the Long Beach shoreline.

The battleship era has given way to the modern aircraft carrier just as the sailing ships gave way to the steam-driven ships. The last battleship was placed out of commission in Bayonne, N. J., in 1957.

But the men who sailed the mighty wagons have handed together and formed the American Battleship Association. Members of the group will hold their second annual reunion at the Edgewater Inn Thursday through Sunday.

The association is made up of officers and men who saw duty on any of the nation's 59 battleships since 1900. More than 1000 ex-battlewagon sailors are expected to be in attendance.

David C. Graham, Senior Chief Signalman, USN, now on duty at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, was instrumental in formation of the association. He served aboard the USS Idaho during World War II.

In its first year, the ABA contacted more than 5000 former battleship personnel living in all parts of the world.

Some of the more notable members are: Fleet Admiral C. W. Nimitz, the nation's only living five-star admiral; retired Admiral R. H. Jackson, at 99 the oldest Naval Academy graduate, and retired Chief Torpedoman's Mate Harry Morris who holds the all-time Navy record for continuous service with an accumulated total of 55 years.

The ABA has two honorary members, comedian Bob Hope and "Abe the Newsboy," famous fighter who devoted 65 years to the Navy.

Honorary president of the ABA is former Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Arleigh Burke.

South Bay Court Project Involves $350,000 Outlay

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

TORRANCE — The supervisors will be asked Tuesday to order plans drawn to remodel Torrance - South Bay County Building, now under construction, so it can house South Bay Municipal Court.

L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer, said the remodeling will cost $350,000. This is not a net additional cost, however, because most of it involves completing previously planned courtrooms on the fifth floor.

South Bay Municipal Court currently is operating from 1231 N. Pacific Ave., Redondo Beach, where it has two divisions, and its one division at 3231 Torrance Blvd.

* * * *

LAST MAY supervisors approved a recommendation of a special study committee, headed by Presiding Judge William Keene of the South Bay court, that the three divisions be consolidated in Torrance.

Hollinger said it originally was planned that the fifth-floor of the new county building in Torrance Civic Center would remain unfinished until needed by the Superior Court, which is projected for 1975.

Immediate completion of the fifth floor will make four courtrooms available to the Municipal Court, he said. This will meet its needs for at least five years.

The Torrance-South Bay County Building currently is scheduled for completion about August 1966, but the proposed remodeling will delay this about four to six months, Hollinger said.

* * * *

OFFSETTING the added cost of remodeling now instead of later, Hollinger said, is an anticipated saving of about $328,000 because consolidation of the three divisions of the Municipal Court will make possible postponement of hiring of two additional judges.

Hollinger said the City of Hermosa Beach and the South Bay Union High School District have indicated an interest in acquiring the Redondo Beach facilities now being used by the Municipal Court.

The Torrance building in which the third division of the court is now housed will be turned over to the assessor and marshal's offices for branch office space, he said.

Brazilian Navy Leader Inspects Disney's 'Fleet'

Brazil's minister of the navy included an inspection of Disneyland's submarine fleet in a weekend tour of Long Beach and San Diego naval installations.

PAULO BOSISIO

The retired admiral of the fleet, Paulo Bosisio, his wife, staff officers and an attache from Washington, were the guests of Secretary of the Navy Paul Nitze.

His party arrived at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station where it was greeted by Brazilian Consul De Smandek. After the Disneyland tour, the group met with Rear Adm. Odale Waters Jr., commander, Pacific Mine Force.

Chief Johnnie Stephens, Adm. Waters' writer, utilized his fluent knowledge of Portugese to serve as interpreter.

The visitors wound up their visit Saturday with a visit to Vice Adm. P. D. Stroop, commander, Naval Air Force, Pacific Fleet.

Freeway Phone Service Praised; Ask Expansion

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Use of the emergency telephones installed on a trial basis along Harbor Freeway justifies extension of the program to other freeways, Supervisor Kenneth Hahn declared Friday.

Hahn said an average of 25 to 30 calls daily are being placed from the 80 telephones which line Harbor Freeway at quarter - mile intervals between El Segundo Boulevard and the Santa Monica Freeway.

The phones were installed by Pacific Telephone Co., at the request of county supervisors and the Division of Highways, as a test of the service.

Hahn said he has written to the company, urging it to extend the system south on Harbor Freeway to the San Diego Freeway, and on San Diego Freeway northwesterly to its intersection with Santa Monica Freeway.

"In my judgment, the first weeks of service on the Harbor Freeway justifies the value," Hahn said, "and we should begin the next stage of planning."

Of the more than 800 calls placed since the test program started July 1, about half were for tow service and roadside assistance, Hahn said.

The supervisor also praised the inauguration of a direct line, via Los Angeles Police Department, to the Automobile Club of Southern California.

When a motorist using one of the emergency phones notifies police that he is a member of the auto club, police switch the call directly to club headquarters. About 125 such calls have been handled, Hahn reported.

USS WISCONSIN AT SEA IN HER HEYDAY

OUT OF THE PAST

'Battleship Navy' Sailor's Convention in Long Beach

The battleship navy is only a fond memory of the past.

It has no ships. But it does have the men who sailed the giant battlewagons—a different and fast-disappearing breed of men.

Currently there doesn't seem to be any hope of reviving the giant gray ships that, prior to World War II, used to lie at anchor off the Long Beach shoreline.

The battleship era has given way to the modern aircraft carrier just as the sailing ships gave way to the steam-driven ships. The last battleship was placed out of commission in Bayonne, N. J., in 1957.

But the men who sailed the mighty wagons have banded together and formed the American Battleship Association. Members of the group will hold their second annual reunion at the Edgewater Inn Thursday through Sunday.

The association is made up of officers and men who saw duty on any of the nation's 59 battleships since 1900. More than 1000 ex-battlewagon sailors are expected to be in attendance.

David C. Graham, Senior Chief Signalman, USN, now on duty at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, was instrumental in formation of the association. He served aboard the USS Idaho during World War II.

In its first year, the ABA contacted more than 5000 former battleship personnel living in all parts of the world.

Some of the more notable members are: Fleet Admiral C. W. Nimitz, the nation's only living five-star admiral; retired Admiral R. H. Jackson, at 99 the oldest Naval Academy graduate, and retired Chief Torpedoman's Mate Harry Morris who holds the all-time Navy record for continuous service with an accumulated total of 55 years.

The ABA has two honorary members, comedian Bob Hope and "Abe the Newsboy," famous fighter who devoted 65 years to the Navy.

Honorary president of the ABA is former Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Arleigh Burke.

South Bay Court Project Involves $350,000 Outlay

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

TORRANCE — The supervisors will be asked Tuesday to order plans drawn to remodel Torrance - South Bay County Building, now under construction, so it can house South Bay Municipal Court.

L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer, said the remodeling will cost $350,000. This is not a net additional cost, however, because most of it involves completing previously planned courtrooms on the fifth floor.

South Bay Municipal Court currently is operating from 1231 N. Pacific Ave., Redondo Beach, where it has two divisions, and its one division at 3231 Torrance Blvd.

LAST MAY supervisors approved a recommendation of a special study committee, headed by Presiding Judge William Keene of the South Bay court, that the three divisions be consolidated in Torrance.

Hollinger said it originally was planned that the fifth floor of the new county building in Torrance Civic Center would remain unfinished until needed by the Superior Court, which is projected for 1975.

Immediate completion of the fifth floor will make four courtrooms available to the Municipal Court, he said. This will meet its needs for at least five years.

The Torrance-South Bay County Building currently is scheduled for completion about August 1966, but the proposed remodeling will delay this about four to six months, Hollinger said.

OFFSETTING the added cost of remodeling now instead of later, Hollinger said, is an anticipated saving of about $328,000 because consolidation of the three divisions of the Municipal Court will make possible postponement of hiring of two additional judges.

Hollinger said the City of Hermosa Beach and the South Bay Union High School District have indicated an interest in acquiring the Redondo Beach facilities now being used by the Municipal Court.

The Torrance building in which the third division of the court is now housed will be turned over to the assessor and marshal's offices for branch office space, he said.

Brazilian Navy Leader Inspects Disney's 'Fleet'

Brazil's minister of the navy included an inspection of Disneyland's submarine fleet in a weekend tour of Long Beach and San Diego naval installations.

PAULO BOSISIO

The retired admiral of the fleet, Paulo Bosisio, his wife, staff officers and an attache from Washington, were the guests of Secretary of the Navy Paul Nitze.

His party arrived at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station where it was greeted by Brazilian Consul De Smandek. After the Disneyland tour, the group met with Rear Adm. Odale Waters Jr., commander, Pacific Mine Force.

Chief Johnnie Stephens, Adm. Waters' writer, utilized his fluent knowledge of Portugese to serve as interpreter.

The visitors wound up their visit Saturday with a visit to Vice Adm. P. D. Stroop, commander, Naval Air Force, Pacific Fleet.

Freeway Phone Service Praised; Ask Expansion

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Use of the emergency telephones installed on a trial basis along Harbor Freeway justifies extension of the program to other freeways, Supervisor Kenneth Hahn declared Friday.

Hahn said an average of 25 to 30 calls daily are being placed from the 80 telephones which line Harbor Freeway at quarter - mile intervals between El Segundo Boulevard and the Santa Monica Freeway.

The phones were installed by Pacific Telephone Co., at the request of county supervisors and the Division of Highways, as a test of the service.

Hahn said he has written to the company, urging it to extend the system south on Harbor Freeway to the San Diego Freeway, and on San Diego Freeway northwesterly to its intersection with Santa Monica Freeway.

"In my judgment, the first weeks of service on the Harbor Freeway justifies the value," Hahn said, "and we should begin the next stage of planning."

Of the more than 800 calls placed since the test program started July 1, about half were for tow service and roadside assistance, Hahn said.

CAP Stages 'Quake' Relief Drill Here

The Civil Air Patrol staged an earthquake-relief drill Saturday in cooperation with the Long Beach Civil Defense.

The CAP, commanded by Lt. Col. Arthur E. Biddle, acted on the assumption that Signal Hill and the Harbor Area had been devastated by an earthquake.

From 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., 35 CAP men worked to provide "relief." "Ambulances" to pick up "1,000 casualties" were "dispatched." Communications were tested and an air survey was made.

Lt. Col. William Butler served as Air Force liaison man for Long Beach. Dick Major, public information officer of the Long Beach Department of Emergency Preparedness assisted.

The operation was directed by Maj. Donald Norgren.

Cullen Hits Hosmer Medicare 'Switch'

Long Beach Congressman Craig Hosmer's "switch voting" on both sides of the medicare issue was hit Saturday by his 1964 congressional opponent, Long Beach Atty. Michael Cullen, in a statement released by the Democratic State Central Committee.

"When Craig Hosmer voted against medicare," said Cullen, "he voted against the needs of the people in his district. I am sure that they will not forget this at the polls.

"His vote to accept the conference committee's version of the medicare bill was a weak effort to cover up his negative role on the earlier and more crucial votes. This is a good example of the way Hosmer talks and votes out of both sides of his mouth on the same issue.

"Homer has been one of the peristent switch voters in Congress," Cullen charged. "He manages to vote both ways on every critical issue so that he can try to please both sides. Next year we can expect to see him bragging about his no vote to the doctors and his yes vote to our senior citizens."

DEUKMEJIAN TALK AT GOP LEAGUE

Assembly Minority Leader Robert Monagan, R-Tracy, and Minority Whip C. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, will be featured at a Republican legislative report luncheon Tuesday noon in the Biltmore Hotel Ballroom, sponsored by the California Republican League.

President William P. Gray, who describes CRL as a moderate Republican organization, said it has 3,000 members statewide, with 15 chapters in Los Angeles County. Tickets for the Tuesday luncheon may be obtained at the CRL office, 510 S. Spring St., Los Angeles.

Democratic Women Plan Park Picnic

The 33rd annual picnic of the Democratic Women's Study Club of Long Beach will be held Wednesday noon in Bixby Park, Mrs. Irving Havens, president, announced.

Traditionally a summer political highlight in the Long Beach area, the picnic will feature Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., of San Francisco's 18th District, as principal speaker.

Brown, an attorney, is the first Negro ever elected from San Francisco to serve in the legislature. Brown's election gained statewide publicity as he replaced a 22-year veteran in the Assembly, Democrat Edward M. Gaffney.

The picnic is public. Chicken lunch will be provided at $1 per person. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Havens, 1159 E. 2nd St.

Indonesia Dockers Boycott U.S. Ship

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Workers in Jakarta harbor have refused to unload 2,000 tons of flour from the U.S. vessel Aimee Lykes, the Indonesian Communist Party newspaper Harian Rakjat reported Saturday.

The paper said it was part of a boycott against American-owned ships "as a token of solidarity with the people of Viet Nam." It added that the flour was intended for the Indonesian Council of Churches.

CITIZEN SOLDIERS

63rd Division Faces Rough Camp Period

The 63rd Division is one of six combat ready divisions—a so-called second team — comprised of citizen-soldiers to back up the regulars anywhere in the world.

* * * *

WITH the development of intercontinental missiles and atomic weapons of all shapes and sizes, the foot soldier was thought to be out of the war of the future, a figure in the history books like the cavalrymen.

Then there was Korea. And now there is Viet Nam. Once again, the foot soldier and his role in keeping the peace is being reemphasized in training at Camp Roberts.

And Viet Nam is very much on the minds of the citizen-soldier these days.

The dry, desolate rolling hills that make up the Camp Roberts military reservation doesn't resemble the jungle growth of Viet Nam. However, the training the citizen-soldier is getting during the annual encampment is preparing him for any "war" anywhere in the world.

The 63rd Division includes citizens from all over the state. Camp Roberts is its home base. The division is expected to become one of the nation's new reservist airmobile units — trained to be airlifted to trouble spots. The vertical assault—using helicopters to land the troops in all types of terrain — would be employed.

* * * *

IN THE field today, training for any eventual call-up are men like Brig. Gen. Louis Kaufman of 1416 Granvia Altamira, Palos Verdes Estates—a college professor with the University of California.

Col. Norman L. Wihr, a dental surgeon from Burlingame, who is part of the 63rds field dental hospital —15 dentists and 23 technicians who can establish a portable dental clinic in the field in 10 minutes.

Pfc. Armando Carrion, 34, of 9503 Cecilia St., Downey, a rifleman, who is, as a civilian, a worker in a furniture manufacturing company.

Lt. Col. John E. Affeldt, a Downey physician who heads the 363rd medical battalion.

These are the citizen-soldiers—the men who put aside their civilian jobs to train for the nation's trouble.

CAP Stages 'Quake' Relief Drill Here

The Civil Air Patrol staged an earthquake-relief drill Saturday in cooperation with the Long Beach Civil Defense.

The CAP, commanded by Lt. Col. Arthur E. Biddle, acted on the assumption that Signal Hill and the Harbor Area had been devastated by an earthquake.

From 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., 35 CAP men worked to provide "relief." "Ambulances" to pick up "1,000 casualties" were "dispatched." Communications were tested and an air survey was made.

Lt. Col. William Butler served as Air Force liaison man for Long Beach. Dick Major, public information officer of the Long Beach Department of Emergency Preparedness assisted.

The operation was directed by Maj. Donald Norgren.

Cullen Hits Hosmer Medicare 'Switch'

Long Beach Congressman Craig Hosmer's "switch voting" on both sides of the Medicare issue was hit Saturday by his 1964 congressional opponent, Long Beach Atty. Michael Cullen, in a statement released by the Democratic State Central Committee.

"When Craig Hosmer voted against medicare," said Cullen, "he voted against the needs of the people in his district. I am sure that they will not forget this at the polls.

"His vote to accept the conference committee's version of the medicare bill was a weak effort to cover up his negative role on the earlier and more crucial votes. This is a good example of the way Hosmer talks and votes out of both sides of his mouth on the same issue.

"Homer has been one of the peristent switch voters in Congress," Cullen charged. "He manages to vote both ways on every critical issue so that he can try to please both sides. Next year we can expect to see him bragging about his no vote to the doctors and his yes vote to our senior citizens."

DEUKMEJIAN TALK AT GOP LEAGUE

Assembly Minority Leader Robert Monagan, R-Tracy, and Minority Whip C. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, will be featured at a Republican legislative report luncheon Tuesday noon in the Biltmore Hotel Ballroom, sponsored by the California Republican League.

President William P. Gray, who describes CRL as a moderate Republican organization, said it has 3,000 members statewide, with 15 chapters in Los Angeles County. Tickets for the Tuesday luncheon may be obtained at the CRL office, 510 S. Spring St., Los Angeles.

Democratic Women Plan Park Picnic

The 33rd annual picnic of the Democratic Women's Study Club of Long Beach will be held Wednesday noon in Bixby Park, Mrs. Irving Havens, president, announced.

Traditionally a summer political highlight in the Long Beach area, the picnic will feature Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., of San Francisco's 18th District, as principal speaker.

Brown, an attorney, is the first Negro ever elected from San Francisco to serve in the legislature. Brown's election gained statewide publicity as he replaced a 22-year veteran in the Assembly, Democrat Edward M. Gaffney.

The picnic is public. Chicken lunch will be provided at $1 per person. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Havens, 1159 E. 2nd St.

Indonesia Dockers Boycott U.S. Ship

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Workers in Jakarta harbor have refused to unload 2,000 tons of flour from the U.S. vessel Aimee Lykes, the Indonesian Communist Party newspaper Harian Rakjat reported Saturday.

The paper said it was part of a boycott against American-owned ships "as a token of solidarity with the people of Viet Nam." It added that the flour was intended for the Indonesian Council of Churches.

CITIZEN SOLDIERS

63rd Division Faces Rough Camp Period

The 63rd Division is one of six combat ready divisions — a so-called second team — comprised of citizen-soldiers to back up the regulars anywhere in the world.

* * * *

WITH the development of intercontinental missiles and atomic weapons of all shapes and sizes, the foot soldier was thought to be out of the war of the future, a figure in the history books like the cavalrymen.

Then there was Korea. And now there is Viet Nam. Once again, the foot soldier and his role in keeping the peace is being reemphasized in training at Camp Roberts.

And Viet Nam is very much on the minds of the citizen-soldier these days.

The dry, desolate rolling hills that make up the Camp Roberts military reservation doesn't resemble the jungle growth of Viet Nam. However, the training the citizen-soldier is getting during the annual encampment is preparing him for any "war" anywhere in the world.

The 63rd Division includes citizens from all over the state. Camp Roberts is its home base. The division is expected to become one of the nation's new reservist airmobile units — trained to be airlifted to trouble spots. The vertical assault—using helicopters to land the troops in all types of terrain — would be employed.

* * * *

IN THE field today, training for any eventual call-up are men like Brig. Gen. Louis Kaufman of 1416 Granvia Altamira, Palos Verdes Estates — a college professor with the University of California.

Col. Norman L. Wihr, a dental surgeon from Burlingame, who is part of the 63rds field dental hospital —15 dentists and 23 technicians who can establish a portable dental clinic in the field in 10 minutes.

Pfc. Armando Carrion, 34, of 9503 Cecilia St., Downey, a rifleman, who is, as a civilian, a worker in a furniture manufacturing company.

Lt. Col. John E. Affeldt, a Downey physician who heads the 363rd medical battalion.

These are the citizen-soldiers—the men who put aside their civilian jobs to train for the nation's trouble.

President Johnson: 'This Is Really War', Alerts Nation

Compiled From The I. P-T's Wire Services

Last week, as the nation watched and listened, President Johnson underscored the Vietnamese situation with a four-word declaration:

"This is really war."

It was the first time he had used that ominous phrase in telling Americans why the United States must fight for Viet Nam freedom against Communist aggression.

A hush fell over the East Room of the White House Wednesday when Johnson began:

"My fellow Americans. Not long ago I received a letter from a woman in the Midwest."

Newsmen assembled for the news conference sensed instantly what it was about: Viet Nam.

The woman had a son in Viet Nam, and she could not understand why he was there.

* * * *

SOLEMNLY, patiently, the President explained again, as he had "dozens of times" before. "We have learned at a terrible and brutal cost that retreat does not bring safety, and weakness does not bring peace. And it is this lesson that has brought us to Viet Nam."

Then the President licked off quickly the plan agreed upon in eight days of conferences with the nation's military and political leaders:

—American forces in South Viet Nam will be increased "almost immediately" from 75,000 to 125,000.

Draft calls will be extended gradually, from 17,000 men per month to 35,000 men.

He was asking the United Nations to employ "all the resources and the energy and the immense prestige" it commands "to find ways to halt aggression and to bring peace in Viet Nam."

Reserve units will not be called up at this time. (In succeeding days it became clear, however, that the United States planned to bring some reserve forces up to full strength and readiness, and to increase the nation's total armed forces by some 330,000 men, to about 3 million.)

"And let me add also now a personal note. I do not find it easy to send the flower of our youth, our finest young men, into battle."

* * * *

IF SOUTH Viet Nam were swallowed up, he told a nationally televised press conference, the whole of Asia would be ingested piece-meal and the United States itself would then be endangered. He said Americans must stand as "guardians at the gate."

Across the nation, and around the free world generally, the people listened, and approved. Reaction at home and abroad, from Congress to the grass roots, was overwhelmingly favorable.

And almost as he spoke, 4,000 paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division, the famed "Screaming Eagles" of Normandy and Bastogne, were landing in Cam Ranh Bay, on the central coast of South Viet Nam.

At New Orleans, the 1st Cavalry Division, the so-called Airmobile Division, was loading into transports, heading for battle.

In Southeast Asia the war went on, steadily escalating. With monsoon rains pelting down, American and South Vietnamese forces grappled with elu- forces grappled with elusive Viet Cong all across the country.

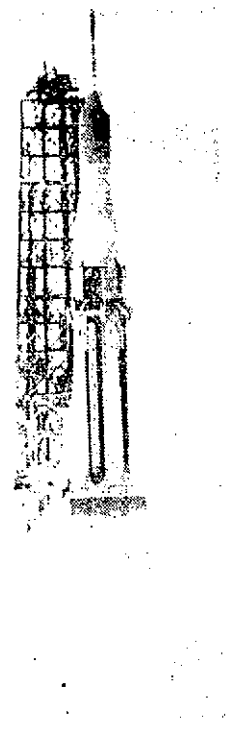

Air Force jet fight-bombers took the war 40 miles from Hanoi Tuesday. In a daring low-level raid they destroyed one missile site and damaged another.

Three days earlier the missiles had shot down one F4C Phantom jet fighter and damaged three others, the first such missile casualties of the war. At least five missile sites are known to ring Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam.

* * * *

AT THE United Nations, Secretary - General Thant said he was heartened by President Johnson's appeal to work for peace in Viet Nam. He vowed to try "by all the means at my disposal."

Hanoi remained silent and Radio Moscow, while making no comment on the President's peace proposals, said, however, that in expanding American strength in Viet Nam Johnson was taking "a colossal risk."

SATURN I, an 18-story-tall rocket, blazes away from its launch pad at Cape Kennedy Friday. It hurled into orbit the Pegasus 3 satellite carrying 48 special clip-on aluminum panels which future space-walking astronauts may unclip and bring back to earth.

Twenty years after President Harry S Truman first called for it, Congress adopted last week a so-called medicare program, providing through the Social Security system certain medical benefits for persons over 65 years of age.

Quietly, anti-climactically, the bill passed the House Tuesday, 307 to 116, and the Senate Wednesday, 70 to 24.

En Route to his Texas ranch for the weekend, President Johnson stopped off at Truman's home in Independence, Mo., Friday, and there signed the historic measure on the same table Truman used to sign the peace treaty with West Germany.

The new bill, described as the most major change in the 30-year history of Social Security, provides hospital, home and outpatient care for the elderly. It also makes increases in Social Security payments.

Congress also sent the President three other bills that will increase federal spending on mental retardation, health research, and immunization projects.

ABE FORTAS, last of five children of a Memphis cabinetmaker, earned his first money at 13 by playing the violin at parties. By last week his income was estimated at $150,000 a year as head of a prosperous Washington law firm.

Then Wednesday, he took a pay cut. His old friend, President Johnson, named him an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, a post that pays $39,500.

Fortas who has held many government positions since the early days of Franklin Delano Roosevelt was described by the President as an "outstanding citizen, a scholar, a profound thinker, a lawyer of superior ability and a man of humane and deeply compassionate feelings toward his fellow man, a champion of our liberties."

Fortas succeeds Arthur J. Goldberg, who took over as United States ambassador to the United Nations succeeding the late Adlai E. Stevenson.

Other Names in the News:

Robert Ferdinand Wagner, 55, mayor of New York (until Jan. 1) and Miss Barbara Joan Cavanagh, 36, married Monday in the private chapel of Francis Cardinal Spellman. He (a widower) for the second time; she for the first.

Charles Dillon (Casey) Stengel, manager of the New York Mets, spent his 75th birthday Friday on a bed of pain in New York's Roosevelt Hospital. Three days earlier a broken hip had been pinned back together in a 45-minute operation.

Edward Heath, 49-year-old bachelor, took over as leader of the Conservative Party in Britain, vowed to bring down the Labor Party government of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, skating on a paper-thin majority in Parliament.

John W. Gardner, a Republican, was appointed by Johnson to succeed Anthony J. Celebrezze as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Celebrezze was nominated to a judgeship on the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati.

John W. Chancellor, of Chicago, White House correspondent for National Broadcasting Co., was named by Johnson to head the Voice of America.

Oren Harris, D-Ark., chairman of the House Commerce Committee, was selected to be a federal district judge in Arkansas.

Former Mississippi Gov. James P. Coleman, 51, won Senate confirmation as a judge of the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court at New Orleans.

At last it was out—there probably are not and never were, any little green men on Mars. Or life of any kind.

The evidence came from the last 18 pictures taken July 14 by Mariner 4 as it flew close to the planet, millions of miles away from earth. As a scientific project, Mariner 4 was stunningly successful.

Scientists released the photographs at a White House ceremony, attended by President Johnson. What they showed were portions of a barren globe, looking very much like the moon.

At least 70 craters were clearly visible, ranging in diameter from 2 miles to 75 miles. A few looked like they might be crested with frost. One escarpment, about 13,000 feet high, also was shown. To the scientists, they seemed to indicate that here is only one planet in the solar system suitable for life—the earth.

At last it was out—there probably are not and never were, any little green men on Mars. Or life of any kind.

The evidence came from the last 18 pictures taken July 14 by Mariner 4 as it flew close to the planet, millions of miles away from earth. As a scientific project, Mariner 4 was stunningly successful.

Scientists released the photographs at a White House ceremony, attended by President Johnson. What they showed were portions of a barren globe, looking very much like the moon.

At least 70 craters were clearly visible, ranging in diameter from 2 miles to 75 miles. A few looked like they might be crested with frost. One escarpment, about 13,000 feet high, also was shown. To the scientists, they seemed to indicate that here is only one planet in the solar system suitable for life—the earth.

Take me out to the brawl game . . .

Jose Cardenal—"I have no control of the bat"—was the most seriosuly injured combatant emerging from the Friday night fight between the Angels and Red Sox.

Hit on the wrist by Dave Morehead, he was unable to handle the bat during Saturday's pre-game practice and was scratched from the line-up.

"I was plenty mad, but I no fight," said Jose. "I see Radatz and I run faster than ef I stealing base."

Boston coach Billy Gardner was unable to sleep.

"Someone hit me and I swallowed a plug of chewing tobacco," said Gardner, "I was sick all night."

Vic Power soaked his right hand in ice all morning after landing the fight's most solid blow . . . beaning an undisclosed beantowner.

"I could pinch-hit," said Power. "The hand was awfully black and blue, but now the blue has gone."

With the American League office closed on weekends, Bobby Rodgers must wait until Monday to learn if he will be fined for throwing the first punch. He sported a bruise under his left eye, but it has nothing compared to Morehead's technicolor back.

"I really nailed Morehead and I'm very sorry about it," said a sincere Dean Chance.

"This thing must go back to an incident in the past," said plate umpire Bill Valentine. "There was certainly nothing in last night's game which would excite the beanballs."

Jim Fregosi, who was hit after belting a two-run homer, offered praise for Cardenal, who hit a revenge, two-run double.

"He is a fine player day in and night, but when he is mad, he's sensational."

"I will definitely file a formal protest," said Boston manager Billy Herman. "The ejection of (Arnold) Earley was as much a one-way affair as was Pearl Harbor."

Manager Bill Rigney found the following Angel lineup on his desk Saturday morning:

Pep, cf; Conn, 2b; Patterson, 3b; Liston, rf; Gavilan, ss; Graziano, lf; Marciano, 1b; Zale, c; Louis, p.

The manager was listed as Cus D'Amato while Muhammed Ali was the public relations director.

Early in Saturday's game, a large black rat emerged from the stand and sprinted behind home plate into the Boston dugout.

"At least," said general manager Fred Haney, "he knew what dugout he belonged in."

Russians Bad Medicine for Ailing Yanks, 58-57

Compiled From Wire Reports

KIEV, U.S.S.R. — A world record performance by Wyomia Tyus in the women's 100-meter dash was one of the few bright spots for the United States Saturday as the Yanks took a bad beating on the opening day of their dual track and field meet with the Soviet Union.

Miss Tyus, the Olympic 100-meter champion from Griffin, Ga., burned up the Central Stadium course with a time of 11.1 seconds despite sodden track conditions. This bettered the listed world record of 11.2 she shares with Wilma Rudolph, although two Polish girls also clocked 11.1 in a meet at Prague, Czechoslovakia, earlier this month.

The 21-year-old Miss Tyus captured individual laurels for the U.S. before a crowd of 55,000 as she also ran a sensational anchor leg to produce a victory in the 400-meter relay, the only other event the American girls won.

A rash of ailments threw a monkey wrench in the men's attack against what was considered an old and sub-par Russian squad and the Soviets finished the day's work with a 58-57 edge in the men's competition. The Russian women also led at the halfway point, 29½-22½.

The day, a dismal one with overhanging clouds and sporadic rain, started darkly for the Americans when Billy Mills, the Marine lieutenant from Oceanside, Calif., and Olympic 10,000-meter champion, decided he couldn't run in his speciality.

His tonsils raw and his strength spent, he had to leave the job to scrawny, 19-year-old Gerry Lindgren of Spokane, Wash., and sub Bill Morgan of San Francisco. They weren't enough.

Nikolai Dutov, a sturdy 27-year-old schoolteacher, and Leonid Ivanov made it virtually a two-man race, Dutov with a powerful spurt, came within yards of lapping Morgan at the finish, where he clocked 28:22.0. Ivanov was just behind, and Lindgren trailing some 50 yards.

"I just didn't have it," Lindgren moaned afterward. He has been troubled by a cold.

In 1964, the American won all 12 running events.

The biggest blow, however, came in the 400-meter relay, an event the Americans always dominate.

When Darel Newman crossed the finish line in his winning 100, he skipped to dodge some photgraphers and injured his leg. He had to be yanked from the relay lineup and his place was given to Jim Hines of Oakland, Calif.

Edvin Ozolin got the Russians off to a fast start and perfect baton passing kept them ahead. After Fred Kuller of Garden Grove, Calif., had run the opening leg, Hines took the baton and, because of lack of practice, passed poorly to Davenport.

Nikolai Politika had a substantial lead when he went into another lap. Anderson of Baton Rouge, La., who was second in the 100, was anxious to make up the lost yardage. He took the baton out of the proper lane, causing the disqualification.

Even if the U.S. hadn't fouled in exchanging the baton, it wouldn't have won the race as the Russians finished far ahead in 39.3. However, the Yanks would have earned three points, instead of none, to take the lead.

This was not the only tragedy of the day for the Americans.

In the 800 meters, Morgan Groth of Martinez, Calif., America's top half-miler, pulled up before the race had hardly got under way.

Germann won it but Groth had to grit his teeth

Upsets... 'But All Soviet'

By WILL GRIMSLEY

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP)—"There were some upsets out there, but they were all in favor of the Russians," was the dour comment of American coach Brutus Hamilton Saturday after the first day of the Soviet-American track and field meet here.

This is the Soviet's strongest start ever and they have a good chance of winning honors in the final program today.

"We are still coming at them," said the veteran University of California track mentor.

Hamilton said the biggest disappointment was in the pole vault, won by Russia's Gennady Bliznetsov at 16-3.

"Our boys simply had a bad day—nothing went right," the coach said of the disappointing performances of John Pennell of Miami, who had gone over 17 feet before and Jeff Chase of San Jose, Calif., who has done 16-4 this year.

"I don't know what happened, I never got into it," said Pennell.

Hamilton said one of the turning points of the day's results was the injury to Darel Newman of Visalia, Calif., after he won the 100-meter dash.

"Newman tried to dodge the photographers at the finish line after breaking his pace," Hamilton said, "and he hurt a thigh muscle.

"Then we had to substitute Jim Hines in the 400-meter relay and, while Jim is a fine runner, this disturbed the team's timing. That is why we lost the race."

Hamilton said, however, that there were some encouraging features of Saturday's events.

"I thought George Germann's victory in the 800 meters was terrific and you had to give a lot of credit to Ralph Boston in the broad jump and our boys in the other races."

Germann won the 800 after the team's top half-miler, Morgan Groth, pulled up lame during the race.

Jack Griffin, the women's coach, was elated over the performance of his girls, particularly Wyomia Tyus, who equalled the pending world record of 11.1 in the 100-meter dash and staged a tremendous come-from-behind effort on the anchor leg to bring a win in the women's 400-meter relay.

"Our girls are really flying high," he said.

"Besides the sprints, we actually tied in the women's high jump, losing only on misses, and we almost split the Russians in the javelin," Griffin said.

By splitting, Griffin meant taking second place, which the Americans had never done in the history of the series.

LEAD CUT TO 1 GAME

Drysdale Hurt, Cards Bounce Dodgers, 4-3

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS—Hellzapoppin was the name of the road show Saturday night as the Cardinals ended a four-game Dodger winning streak at Busch Stadium, 4-3.

Lou Johnson and Jim Lefebvre popped back-to-back home runs in the sixth inning, good for all the Dodger runs. Lefebvre pinch-hit for Olson, who no longer is part of the act.

And there the Dodger laughs ended.

All H popped loose in the ninth inning when the Cardinals pulled it out with two runs. Three infield hits filled the bases and Lou Brock's third hit of the game made Bob Gibson the winner.

Ron Perranoski, appearing for the eighth time in the last 10 games, was the loser in relief of Don Drysdale.

Perranoski popped onto the scene with one out in the seventh inning when Drysdale, leading 3-2, was forced to leave because of a knee injury.

Drysdale twice popped the cartilage on his left knee, the first time in the third inning, pitching to Gibson. He took a breather then, but decided to continue after a few trial pitches.

Drysdale's knee gave out again as Tim McCarver flied out to start the seventh and this time Drysdale was unable to make it. He limped to the clubhouse, where Cardinal physician Dr. Stan London examined him and gave this report:

"Drysdale re-injured the cartilage in his left knee. Because it popped out twice, the Dodgers felt that he should not be allowed to continue. Whether he will miss a turn cannot be determined at this time."

Drysdale's "trick knee" goes back to his high school days, when he was a second baseman. It didn't bother him in his pro career until last June 11, in a 2-1 win over Warren Spahn at New York.

Drysdale fell off the mound on that occasion, but went on to record his 11th win. Since then he has won only four and lost five. He had a 4-1 record in July, always his lucky month until Saturday night.

His luck ran out three hours before August arrived.

Gibson (13-8) held the Dodgers to six hits and struck out nine, but needed the last of the Cardinals' 14 hits to gain revenge for a 2-0 beating by Drysdale at Dodger Stadium.

Every Cardinal starter hit safely as the Dodgers' league lead was sliced to one game over the Reds.

Phil Gagliano, the only one who hadn't hit, started the ninth with a single behind second base. Ken Boyer followed with a single off Maury Wills' glove and McCarver, under orders to sacrifice, beat out his bunt after pushing it past Perranoski.

Gibson bounced to Wes Parker, whose throw forced Gagliano at the plate, but Brock lashed Perranoski's

AWOL: ONE NAG

...Kingdom for a Horse Again?

LONDON (AP) — Jockey Stan Smith has come up with an alibi for not winning a race that may well go down in the annals of the turf.

They lost his horse.

Stan was booked to ride Lord Roseberry's Tomboy in the $28,000 stakes over a mile and a quarter at Goodwood.

A quarter hour before post time there were 16 horses and riders in the parade ring, plus one horseless rider—Stan.

The bonkies were shouting the odds and they made Tomboy the 100 to 8 third choice in the betting.

Stan galloped off to the weighing room.

"I've got no horse to ride. They've mislaid the bloody thing," he gasped.

* * * *

THE EMISSARY FOUND 3-year-old Tomboy dozing in a boxstall.

Nearby was her female stable attendant, Gill Collins, 21, fast asleep.

By this time the stewards ordered Tomboy scratched.

Said 83-year-old Lord Roseberry:

"These things happen in racing. The poor girl didn't over-sleep on purpose. I don't think mine would have won, anyway."

"I just didn't have it," Lindgren moaned afterward. He has been troubled by a cold.

In 1964, the American won all 12 running events.

The biggest blow, however, came in the 400-meter relay, an event the Americans always dominate.

When Darel Newman crossed the finish line in his winning 100, he skipped to dodge some photgraphers and injured his leg. He had to be yanked from the relay lineup and his place was given to Jim Hines of Oakland, Calif.

Edvin Ozolin got the Russians off to a fast start and perfect baton passing kept them ahead. After Fred Kuller of Garden Grove, Calif., had run the opening leg, Hines took the baton and, because of lack of practice, passed poorly to Davenport.

Nikolai Politika had a substantial lead when he went into another lap. Anderson of Baton Rouge, La., who was second in the 100, was anxious to make up the lost yardage. He took the baton out of the proper lane, causing the disqualification.

Even if the U.S. hadn't fouled in exchanging the baton, it wouldn't have won the race as the Russians finished far ahead in 39.3. However, the Yanks would have earned three points, instead of none, to take the lead.

This was not the only tragedy of the day for the Americans.

In the 800 meters, Morgan Groth of Martinez, Calif., America's top half-miler, pulled up before the race had hardly got under way.

Germann won it but Groth had to grit his teeth

Upsets... 'But All Soviet'

By WILL GRIMSLEY

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP)—"There were some upsets out there, but they were all in favor of the Russians," was the dour comment of American coach Brutus Hamilton Saturday after the first day of the Soviet-American track and field meet here.

This is the Soviet's strongest start ever and they have a good chance of winning honors in the final program today.

"We are still coming at them," said the veteran University of California track mentor.

Hamilton said the biggest disappointment was in the pole vault, won by Russia's Gennady Bliznetsov at 16-3.

"Our boys simply had a bad day—nothing went right," the coach said of the disappointing performances of John Pennell of Miami, who had gone over 17 feet before and Jeff Chase of San Jose, Calif., who has done 16-4 this year.

"I don't know what happened, I never got into it," said Pennell.

Hamilton said one of the turning points of the day's results was the injury to Darel Newman of Visalia, Calif., after he won the 100-meter dash.

"Newman tried to dodge the photographers at the finish line after breaking his pace," Hamilton said, "and he hurt a thigh muscle.

"Then we had to substitute Jim Hines in the 400-meter relay and, while Jim is a fine runner, this disturbed the team's timing. That is why we lost the race."

Hamilton said, however, that there were some encouraging features of Saturday's events.

"I thought George Germann's victory in the 800 meters was terrific and you had to give a lot of credit to Ralph Boston in the broad jump and our boys in the other races."

Germann won the 800 after the team's top half-miler, Morgan Groth, pulled up lame during the race.

Jack Griffin, the women's coach, was elated over the performance of his girls, particularly Wyomia Tyus, who equalled the pending world record of 11.1 in the 100-meter dash and staged a tremendous come-from-behind effort on the anchor leg to bring a win in the women's 400-meter relay.

"Our girls are really flying high," he said.

"Besides the sprints, we actually tied in the women's high jump, losing only on misses, and we almost split the Russians in the javelin," Griffin said.

By splitting, Griffin meant taking second place, which the Americans had never done in the history of the series.

LEAD CUT TO 1 GAME

Drysdale Hurt, Cards Bounce Dodgers, 4-3

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS — Hellzapoppin was the name of the road show Saturday night as the Cardinals ended a four-game Dodger winning streak at Busch Stadium, 4-3.

Lou Johnson and Jim Lefebvre popped back-to-back home runs in the sixth inning, good for all the Dodger runs. Lefebvre pinch-hit for Olson, who no longer is part of the act.

And there the Dodger laughs ended.

All H popped loose in the ninth inning when the Cardinals pulled it out with two runs. Three infield hits filled the bases and Lou Brock's third hit of the game made Bob Gibson the winner.

Ron Perranoski, appearing for the eighth time in the last 10 games, was the loser in relief of Don Drysdale.

Perranoski popped onto the scene with one out in the seventh inning when Drysdale, leading 3-2, was forced to leave because of a knee injury.

Drysdale twice popped the cartilage on his left knee, the first time in the third inning, pitching to Gibson. He took a breather then, but decided to continue after a few trial pitches.

Drysdale's knee gave out again as Tim McCarver flied out to start the seventh and this time Drysdale was unable to make it. He limped to the clubhouse, where Cardinal physician Dr. Stan London examined him and gave this report:

"Drysdale re-injured the cartilage in his left knee. Because it popped out twice, the Dodgers felt that he should not be allowed to continue. Whether he will miss a turn cannot be determined at this time."

Drysdale's "trick knee" goes back to his high school days, when he was a second baseman. It didn't bother him in his pro career until last June 11, in a 2-1 win over Warren Spahn at New York.

Drysdale fell off the mound on that occasion, but went on to record his 11th win. Since then he has won only four and lost five. He had a 4-1 record in July, always his lucky month until Saturday night.

His luck ran out three hours before August arrived.

Gibson (13-8) held the Dodgers to six hits and struck out nine, but needed the last of the Cardinals' 14 hits to gain revenge for a 2-0 beating by Drysdale at Dodger Stadium.

Every Cardinal starter hit safely as the Dodgers' league lead was sliced to one game over the Reds.

Phil Gagliano, the only one who hadn't hit, started the ninth with a single behind second base. Ken Boyer followed with a single off Maury Wills' glove and McCarver, under orders to sacrifice, beat out his bunt after pushing it past Perranoski.

Gibson bounced to Wes Parker, whose throw forced Gagliano at the plate, but Brock lashed Perranoski's

AWOL: ONE NAG

...Kingdom for a Horse Again?

LONDON (AP) — Jockey Stan Smith has come up with an alibi for not winning a race that may well go down in the annals of the turf.

They lost his horse.

Stan was booked to ride Lord Roseberry's Tomboy in the $28,000 stakes over a mile and a quarter at Goodwood.

A quarter hour before post time there were 16 horses and riders in the parade ring, plus one horseless rider—Stan.

The bookies were shouting the odds and they made Tomboy the 100 to 8 third choice in the betting.

Stan galloped off to the weighing room.

"I've got no horse to ride. They've mislaid the bloody thing," he gasped.

* * * *

THE EMISSARY FOUND 3-year-old Tomboy dozing in a boxstall.

Nearby was her female stable attendant, Gill Collins, 21, fast asleep.

By this time the stewards ordered Tomboy scratched.

Said 83-year-old Lord Roseberry:

"These things happen in racing. The poor girl didn't over-sleep on purpose. I don't think mine would have won, anyway."

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

A Texan From Australia

Grabbing the brass rings:

. . . Bootin' Ben Agajanian, who goes on and on and on, now is tutoring Dallas Cowboy punters and placekickers at the club's training camp in Thousand Oaks, 70 miles distant. For the past two weeks he has made the daily drive and the result of his travels is ultra-high enthusiasm over an AUSTRALIAN rookie with the Cowboys.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . The young man is Colin Ridgway and listen to Aggie enthuse: "He kicks 75 yards BAREFOOTED. He drops the ball flat, too, instead of the standard way. He's also a placekicker. His placekicks are dropkicks that go 60 yards! You ought to see this guy. He can also kick on the run 70 yards!"

. . . Who is Colin Ridgway? Well, he's a chap who performed in the '60 Olympics, then enrolled at Iowa State. There he learned he couldn't participate in sports because of some strange NCAA rule that "no foreign born is eligible". Colin then found his way to Lamar Tech where he participated simply in track.

. . . I hope Colin survives the Dallas cuts until the Ram game Aug. 14. His one-man show alone should be worth the price of admission.

. . . By the way, Lamar Tech must be some school. Located in Beaumont, Texas, it not only has produced Colin Ridgway, but also the sensational Ram rookie linebacker, Tony Guillory. Says Ram president Dan Reeves of Guillory: "We drafted Tony seventh last year, but if we were to draft tomorrow he would be our No. 1."

Added Reeves comment: "Trying to project growth, along with psychological factors of college players, is tedious. The job of scouts now is to cut down the percentage of error in figuring how boys will turn out." Anyway, Dan's happy somebody tipped him on Guillory, even if it was on the seventh round.

THEY SAID IT:

Bill Buhler, Dodger trainer — "I see where the Chicago Cubs are going to play a lot of exhibition games at Blair Field next spring. Has anybody thought about the parking there? The Wilson High kids and teachers usually eat up all of that parking space." (A good question: Has anybody thought about it?)

Sandy Koufax (after Ron Fairly was hit on the foot and forced to miss one game)—"Ron's the only guy who hurt his foot and leg, and it didn't affect his running." (Ouch!)

Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State — "We teach our kids that football is a collision sport, not a contact sport. Hell, dancing is a contact sport."

Dick Sisler, Cincinnati manager—"The Dodgers have done a fine job staying in first place with their material. I personally think, however, there are FOUR better teams in the league." (And I used to know Richard when he played for Sacramento's Solons in the PCL and also the piano until the wee hours in nightclubs after his games.)

HOW DO I always get involved dept.? Anyway, this note from charming Ruth Hickman, a Plaza Little League mother:

. . . "This is Little League dirt, not the kind the boys get on their clothes from playing ball with all their heart. But the kind the grownups play. How else can you explain the fact that with a three-way tie going for first place, the first place trophy was already made out in name of one of the three teams? What kind of dirt do you call this? (I don't know, Ruth . . . maybe the commissioner will give me a ruling.)

. . . Item I almost forgot: Aforementioned Agajanian was "fired" as training camp kicking coach by the Green Bay Packers. "I was set to go back with them July 25," moaned Aggie, "but they wanted me to report earlier. When I told them I was going to stay with Dallas until the 25th, they said 'don't come back'. How do you like that?" (Well that's the way the kicking tee topples, Benny.)

PERSONALS:

. . . Why ballplayers dislike fans: When the Dodgers' Lou Johnson slammed into the short leftfield fence Monday night making a desperate stab for Leo Cardenas' homer (poor Lou was draped all over the barrier with the wind knocked out of him), the Dodger bullpen rushed out to give him assistance. Fans, sadly, had the same idea. The barely conscious Johnson was in the greatest tug-of-war since the last Irish-Scot picnic. Lou resumed play, but had this one comment: "The bruises on my arms and legs from my friends will be around another month."

. . . Jim Gilliam is no spring chicken, but he's still a handy Andy to have around. Sporting one of the best batting averages on the Dodger club, the ex-coach still can show the youngsters how to play defensive ball. In the last Red Series, he made one of the great third base plays of the year when he went beyond the bag into foul territory and threw out Deron Johnson. Deron's exasperated conclusion: "I slowed up, never thinking the old man could make the throw. Heck, I know I couldn't." P.S. Third baseman Johnson is 26; third baseman Gilliam is Jack Benny's age!

Punchless Angels Bow Meekly, 4-3

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Angels went from fights to frights.

They had two runners thrown out at the plate, stranded 11 and wild pitched the winning run home Saturday as Boston escaped with a 4-3 victory.

A crowd of 4,859 was lured into Madison Square Garden West, but there was no repeat of the Friday night brawl and the only "dusting" was being done by the maintenance crew.

Boston pitchers Jim Lonborg and Dick Radatz walked nine and issued eight hits while four Angel hurlers walked four and yielded 11 hits before the home club's five-game winning streak in Dodger Stadium came to an end with the score tied, 3-3, in the ninth.

Aubrey Gatewood, called on to pitch the final frame when Bob Lee was fruitlessly lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, was lashed for a leadoff triple by former teammate Lennie Green.

It was actually a double, but the ball became lost among myriad cups thrown onto the warning track by youngsters in the right field pavilion.

The victory went to Radatz (5-8), who resembled Puff the Magic Dragon rather than a Monster. He was tagged for two hits and four walks over the final two rounds, but dodged the haymaker as the Angels left the bases loaded in the eighth and two more in the ninth.

Carl Yastrzemski, the American League's leading hitter, numbered two singles and twice put the league's best arm on display.

In the fourth with two out, Paul Schaal walked and Marcelino Lopez and Albie Pearson singled. Schaal got the go-ahead rounding third from coach Salty Parker and Yaz, throwing from medium left, felled Paul by 10 feet.

In the fifth, following a run off Lonborg on a walk and Willie Smith's triple, Yastrzemski threw out Smith after catching Lou Clinton's fly approximately 270 feet from the plate.

Marcelino Lopez was the Angels' starter, but he left in the seventh after a subpar performance which included nine hits and three runs.

Smith's fifth-inning triple produced a 2-1 lead but singles by Bob Tillman, Jim Gosger and Ed Bressoud deadlocked the debate in the sixth.

Boston gained its first advantage in the seventh on singles by Yaz and Felix Mantilla and a double by Thomas, producing the Mad Dog's 53rd RBI.

The Angels bounced back in their half of the seventh with a walk, stolen base, sacrifice bunt and sacrifice fly, illustrating the tenacity of the Angels attack.

This ended a string of eight consecutive Angel wins over Boston here. The last loss was also on July 31 of 1964. The score was also 4-3 and Gatewood (1-4) was also the loser.

Said a Boston writer when Gatewood was brought in:

"Rigney sure has a great memory."

ANGEL ANGLES: George Brunet (7-6) and Bill Monbouquette (8-11) battle in today's series finale . . . Angels are off Monday, opening three-game series with Baltimore Tuesday night. Yastrzemski now has seven assists in his last 16 games . . . The Southern California Chapter of the Baseball Writers Assn. of America will present a $1,000 check to the widow of Anaheim sportswriter Lennie Handel. Monday will actually be an off day for only a few of the pitchers, for the Angels will fly to Seattle and take on their Pacific Coast League affiliate that night . . . strike-one pitch to right for the tying and winning runs. Ron Fairly's hurried throw to the plate was close, but not close enough.

The Dodgers trailed 2-0 when Fairly started the sixth inning with a single off the right field wall and Johnson followed with his eighth homer, tying Fairly for the club lead.

Lefebvre took one pitch, then hit home run No. 6 into the same sector he had picked out during batting practice. It was a towering shot, over the right field pavilion.

It was also the last Dodger hit.

Brock doubled to start the game and scored the first run on Curt Flood's single. The Cardinals' second run came on a leadoff triple by Bill White, a single by Boyer and a double by McCarver in the fourth. White was out at the plate and Gagliano scored the run after reaching base on the fielder's choice.

KILLEBREW'S DIVE PLAY

Harmon Killebrew, Minnesota Twins third baseman, executes dive play against Baltimore in second inning Saturday. Bobbling soft drive by Jerry Adair, Killebrew reaches out to retrieve ball, makes dive for third base and gets there in time to force John Powell. Brooks Robinson scored on play, but Twins won, 2-1.

Orioles Bounced in 11th as Oliva Turns on Speed

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (UPI) — Tony Oliva scored from second base on an infield out in the 11th inning Saturday to give the Minnesota Twins a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles and a six-game lead in the American League, their biggest yet.

Oliva was on second and Harmon Killebrew on first when Joe Nossek grounded to third baseman Brooks Robinson. Robinson threw to second to force Killebrew and Oliva romped home when the Orioles failed to double Nossek at first.

UMPIRES UNCONCERNED

Spitball War Rages

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The latest escalation in the war over baseball's illegal pitch, the spitball, failed Saturday to concern the men charged with enforcing the ban.

Manager Bobby Bragan and four of his pitchers admitted the Milwaukee Braves threw at least 83 spitballs in Friday night's game against the San Francisco Giants. They said it was done in retaliation because Bob Shaw, the Giants' pitcher who went the distance for a 9-2 victory, was throwing spitters throughout the game.

"My only comment is if the Braves' pitchers threw all those spitballs they apparently weren't very effective," said president Warren Giles of the National League when informed of the Braves' admission.

The Braves got seven hits off Shaw. The Giants got 13 hits, including three homers.

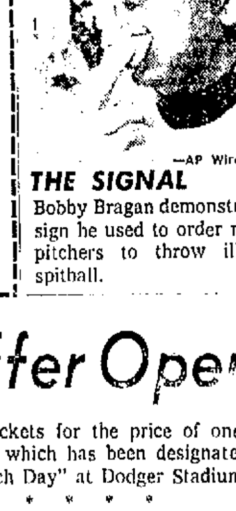

Frank Secory, senior umpire among the four working the game, said he didn't believe Shaw throws a spitball.

"The only reason they claim Shaw is throwing a spitter is that they can't hit his stuff," Secory said. "He goes to his mouth and then to the resin bag, and according to our instructions that's okay."

Shaw, himself, denied he even knows how to throw a spitball, which enables a hurler to put a wicked jump on a pitch. "I never threw a spitball," he said.

Bob Sadowski, the first of four relievers for Milwaukee, said his hands were "chapped from throwing so many spitters." Dan Osinski worked two innings and said he threw nothing but spitters.

Every team in the major leagues has at least two pitchers who throw the spitball, Bragan admitted.

MARICHAL NOTCHES 16TH

3-Hitter Stuns Braves

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Righthander Juan Marichal pitched a three-hitter for his 16th victory of the season Saturday as the San Francisco Giants defeated the Milwaukee Braves, 3-1.

The Giants gave Marichal, who has lost eight, a two-run lead in the second inning, on a single by Jim Hart, a run-scoring double by Jesus Alou and a run-scoring single by Hal Lanier.

Hart added another run in the sixth with his 10th home run.

Marichal, who had twice failed in bids for his 16th victory, struck out six and walked none.

He retired the first 12 men he faced before Joe Torre broke up his no-hit bid with a ground single up the middle in the fifth.

Felipe Alou rapped singles in the sixth and ninth for the only other Brave hits.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

A Texan From Australia

Grabbing the brass rings:

. . . Bootin' Ben Agajanian, who goes on and on and on, now is tutoring Dallas Cowboy punters and placekickers at the club's training camp in Thousand Oaks, 70 miles distant. For the past two weeks he has made the daily drive and the result of his travels is ultra-high enthusiasm over an AUSTRALIAN rookie with the Cowboys.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . The young man is Colin Ridgway and listen to Aggie enthuse: "He kicks 75 y a r d s BAREFOOTED. He drops the ball flat, too, instead of the standard way. He's also a placekicker. His placekicks are dropkicks that go 60 yards! You ought to see this guy. He can also kick on the run 70 yards!"

. . . Who is Colin Ridgway? Well, he's a chap who performed in the '60 Olympics, then enrolled at Iowa State. There he learned he couldn't participate in sports because of some strange NCAA rule that "no foreign born is eligible". Colin then found his way to Lamar Tech where he participated simply in track.

. . . I hope Colin survives the Dallas cuts until the Ram game Aug. 14. His one-man show alone should be worth the price of admission.

. . . By the way, Lamar Tech must be some school. Located in Beaumont, Texas, it not only has produced Colin Ridgway, but also the sensational Ram rookie linebacker, Tony Guillory. Says Ram president Dan Reeves of Guillory: "We drafted Tony seventh last year, but if we were to draft tomorrow he would be our No. 1."

Added Reeves comment: "Trying to project growth, along with psychological factors of college players, is tedious. The job of scouts now is to cut down the percentage of error in figuring how boys will turn out." Anyway, Dan's happy somebody tipped him on Guillory, even if it was on the seventh round.

THEY SAID IT:

Bill Buhler, Dodger trainer — "I see where the Chicago Cubs are going to play a lot of exhibition games at Blair Field next spring. Has anybody thought about the parking there? The Wilson High kids and teachers usually eat up all of that parking space." (A good question: Has anybody thought about it?)

Sandy Koufax (after Ron Fairly was hit on the foot and forced to miss one game)—"Ron's the only guy who hurt his foot and leg, and it didn't affect his running." (Ouch!)

Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State — "We teach our kids that football is a collision sport, not a contact sport. Hell, dancing is a contact sport."

Dick Sisler, Cincinnati manager—"The Dodgers have done a fine job staying in first place with their material. I personally think, however, there are FOUR better teams in the league." (And I used to know Richard when he played for Sacramento's Solons in the PCL and also the piano until the wee hours in nightclubs after his games.)

HOW DO I always get involved dept.? Anyway, this note from charming Ruth Hickman, a Plaza Little League mother:

. . . "This is Little League dirt, not the kind the boys get on their clothes from playing ball with all their heart. But the kind the grownups play. How else can you explain the fact that with a three-way tie going for first place, the first-place trophy was already made out in name of one of the three teams? What kind of dirt do you call this? (I don't know, Ruth . . . maybe the commissioner will give me a ruling.)

. . . Item I almost forgot: Aforementioned Agajanian was "fired" as training camp kicking coach by the Green Bay Packers. "I was set to go back with them July 25," moaned Aggie, "but they wanted me to report earlier. When I told them I was going to stay with Dallas until the 25th, they said 'don't come back'. How do you like that?" (Well that's the way the kicking tee topples, Benny.)

PERSONALS:

. . . Why ballplayers dislike fans: When the Dodgers' Lou Johnson slammed into the short leftfield fence Monday night making a desperate stab for Leo Cardenas' homer, (poor Lou was draped all over the barrier with the wind knocked out of him), the Dodger bullpen rushed out to give him assistance. Fans, sadly, had the same idea. The barely conscious Johnson was in the greatest tug-of-war since the last Irish-Scot picnic. Lou resumed play, but had this one comment: "The bruises on my arms and legs from my friends will be around another month."

. . . Jim Gilliam is no spring chicken, but he's still a handy Andy to have around. Sporting one of the best batting averages on the Dodger club, the ex-coach still can show the youngsters how to play defensive ball. In the last Red Series, he made one of the great third base plays of the year when he went beyond the bag into foul territory and threw out Deron Johnson. Deron's exasperated conclusion: "I slowed up, never thinking the old man could make the throw. Heck, I know I couldn't." P.S. Third baseman Johnson is 26; third baseman Gilliam is Jack Benny's age!

Punchless Angels Bow Meekly, 4-3

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Angels went from fights to frights.

They had two runners thrown out at the plate, stranded 11 and wild pitched the winning run home Saturday as Boston escaped with a 4-3 victory.

A crowd of 4,859 was lured into Madison Square Garden West, but there was no repeat of the Friday night brawl and the only "dusting" was being done by the maintenance crew.

Boston pitchers Jim Lonborg and Dick Radatz walked nine and issued eight hits while four Angel hurlers walked four and yielded 11 hits before the home club's five-game winning streak in Dodger Stadium came to an end with the score tied, 3-3, in the ninth.

Aubrey Gatewood, called on to pitch the final frame when Bob Lee was fruitlessly lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, was lashed for a leadoff triple by former teammate Lennie Green.

It was actually a double, but the ball became lost among myriad cups thrown onto the warning track by youngsters in the right field pavilion.

The victory went to Radatz (5-8), who resembled Puff the Magic Dragon rather than a Monster. He was tagged for two hits and four walks over the final two rounds, but dodged the haymaker as the Angels left the bases loaded in the eighth and two more in the ninth.

Carl Yastrzemski, the American League's leading hitter, numbered two singles and twice put the league's best arm on display.

In the fourth with two out, Paul Schaal walked and Marcelino Lopez and Albie Pearson singled. Schaal got the go-ahead rounding third from coach Salty Parker and Yaz, throwing from medium left, felled Paul by 10 feet.

In the fifth, following a run off Lonborg on a walk and Willie Smith's triple, Yastrzemski threw out Smith after catching Lou Clinton's fly approximately 270 feet from the plate.

Marcelino Lopez was the Angels' starter, but he left in the seventh after a subpar performance which included nine hits and three runs.

Smith's fifth-inning triple produced a 2-1 lead but singles by Bob Tillman, Jim Gosger and Ed Bressoud deadlocked the debate in the sixth.

Boston gained its first advantage in the seventh on singles by Yaz and Felix Mantilla and a double by Thomas, producing the Mad Dog's 53rd RBI.

The Angels bounced back in their half of the seventh with a walk, stolen base, sacrifice bunt and sacrifice fly, illustrating the tenacity of the Angels attack.

This ended a string of eight consecutive Angel wins over Boston here. The last loss was also on July 31 of 1964. The score was also 4-3 and Gatewood (1-4) was also the loser.

Said a Boston writer when Gatewood was brought in:

"Rigney sure has a great memory."

strike-one pitch to right for the tying and winning runs. Ron Fairly's hurried throw to the plate was close, but not close enough.

The Dodgers trailed 2-0 when Fairly started the sixth inning with a single off the right field wall and Johnson followed with his eighth homer, tying Fairly for the club lead.

Lefebvre took one pitch, then hit home run No. 6 into the same sector he had picked out during batting practice. It was a towering shot, over the right field pavilion.

It was also the last Dodger hit.

Brock doubled to start the game and scored the first run on Curt Flood's single. The Cardinals' second run came on a leadoff triple by Bill White, a single by Boyer and a double by McCarver in the fourth. White was out at the plate and Gagliano scored the run after reaching base on the fielder's choice.

Sandy Koufax (17-4) begins the stretch drive this afternoon against Ray Sadecki (2-8).

Orioles Bounced in 11th as Oliva Turns on Speed

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (UPI) — Tony Oliva scored from second base on an infield out in the 11th inning Saturday to give the Minnesota Twins a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles and a six-game lead in the American League, their biggest yet.

Oliva was on second and Harmon Killebrew on first when Joe Nossek grounded to third baseman Brooks Robinson. Robinson threw to second to force Killebrew and Oliva romped home when the Orioles failed to double Nossek at first.

UMPIRES UNCONCERNED

Spitball War Rages

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The latest escalation in the war over baseball's illegal pitch, the spitball, failed Saturday to concern the men charged with enforcing the ban.

Manager Bobby Bragan and four of his pitchers admitted the Milwaukee Braves threw at least 83 spitballs in Friday night's game against the San Francisco Giants. They said it was done in retaliation because Bob Shaw, the Giants' pitcher who went the distance for a 9-2 victory, was throwing spitters throughout the game.

"My only comment is if the Braves' pitchers threw all those spitballs they apparently weren't very effective," said president Warren Giles of the National League when informed of the Braves' admission.

The Braves got seven hits off Shaw. The Giants got 13 hits, including three homers.

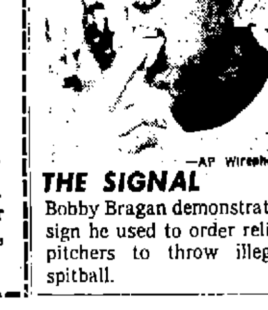

Frank Secory, senior umpire among the four working the game, said he didn't believe Shaw throws a spitball.

"The only reason they claim Shaw is throwing a spitter is that they can't hit his stuff," Secory said. "He goes to his mouth and then to the resin bag, and according to our instructions that's okay."

Shaw, himself, denied he even knows how to throw a spitball, which enables a hurler to put a wicked jump on a pitch. "I never threw a spitball," he said.

Bob Sadowski, the first of four relievers for Milwaukee, said his hands were "chapped from throwing so many spitters." Dan Osinski worked two innings and said he threw nothing but spitters.

Every team in the major leagues has at least two pitchers who throw the spitball, Bragan admitted.

3-Hitter Stuns Braves

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Righthander Juan Marichal pitched a three-hitter for his 16th victory of the season Saturday as the San Francisco Giants defeated the Milwaukee Braves, 3-1.

The Giants gave Marichal, who has lost eight, a two-run lead in the second inning, on a single by Jim Hart, a run-scoring double by Jesus Alou and a run-scoring single by Hal Lanier.

Hart added another run in the sixth with his 10th home run.

Marichal, who had twice failed in bids for his 16th victory, struck out six and walked none.

He retired the first 12 men he faced before Joe Torre broke up his no-hit bid with a ground single up the middle in the fifth. Felipe Alou rapped singles in the sixth and ninth for the only other Brave hits.

Dollar Bill of the Rams

By RICH ROBERTS

"There are pressures that are put upon you in being a professional quarterback . . . things that are expected of you, every phase of the game out on the field, like, uh, especially with the press.

"When you're in college you never have anybody concerned with certain little intricacies in certain things you do. In the pros, if you call a play that doesn't work someone may want to know why. Is it fair? Yes, I think it's fair, because this is your job."

Fewer prospects have arrived on the pro football scene less known, less sophisticated and with less preparation for the job they were chosen to do than Bill Munson.

Since their relegation to tourist travelling in the fast company of the National Football League, the Rams have gone through more quarterbacks than Gino Marchetti in his prime.

Most of them had glossier credentials than Munson, whose experience at the position is summarized in two seasons. And he figures the last one—his rookie year with the Rams—is the only one that counts.

Bill played blocking back in the single wing for Lodi High, performing in the Shrine Game, then spent his soph and junior seasons of college as an undistinguished defensive halfback for Utah State.

Finally, in his senior season, he was entrusted with the offense.

SO THE RAMS blew their top 1963 draft pick on this one-year wonder. A sleeper? Some said the only sleeper was the guy who drafted him.

But now he's the man the Rams are banking on to be their money player, the Dollar Bill who'll lead them back into the high society of Sunday slaughter.

"Maybe I was fortunate in that they didn't expect too much of me," Munson says today, settling into the groove of his second NFL campaign. "I wasn't that much in college to live up to, not that big a deal.

"This year will be a little different. It's going to be tougher, not just because I'm calling my own plays but I've got more responsibility all around."

Munson will share the load with Roman Gabriel, and you get the idea that he'd just as soon do it all himself. Who wouldn't?

"I think it's probably good for the team," he'll concede. "If one quarterback isn't able to do the job, you have another one. But I'd really rather not say much about that, you know."

MUNSON AND GABRIEL are rivals in one sense, partners in another, attempting to suppress their personal ambitions in the interest of the team. They shared a certain compassion last year, alternately taking their lumps and dumps on the field while the other suffered sympathy pains on the sidelines. Only Dallas quarterbacks were thrown for more losses.

"I think probably, for me, although not all the time, I was thrown because it's a different type of ball than when I was in college," Munson explains hesitantly.

"I didn't even think about getting rid of the ball or throwing it away. College quarterbacks just aren't coached in this type of method, or at least I wasn't, to get rid of the ball.

"I never do make up my mind to run. When I'm going back to pass I'm not gonna say, 'Well, I'm gonna try to dodge this guy and go.' There's just something—the rush might go by you, you see an opening. I just sort of do it by feel. I'll run with the ball if I have to, but I'll look for the pass first."

IF POISE is a quarterback's most desirable asset, then panic is his worst enemy.

One of the first things noted of Munson was that while many of his predecessors had faced a rush like a flock of headless chickens, Bill was at least willing to stand behind a collapsing wall of blockers and consume the pigskin with the aplomb of Duncan Hines dining at the Ritz.

"I wasn't aware of this until I read it in the papers," he laughs. "I do get nervous sometimes before a game. But I try not to let myself get too nervous because I'd probably foul up if I did . . . couldn't remember anything. And there's a lot to remember out there."

To illustrate, the average guy might find it difficult to maintain a line of concentration on "X square out circle check" with the Anvil Chorus clanging in his brain from a mixup with Steve Stonebreaker.

Munson explains, "If you start worrying about who's coming in or how big they are you're in trouble, because then you aren't throwing the ball. The only time big men like that really bother you is when they interfere with your vision . . . you can't see your receivers."

MUNSON HAS BEEN playing T quarterback for such a short while that he hardly has had time to select an idol or realize his shortcomings, let alone correct them.

"You probably never learn all your faults," he says. "But I just don't want to gain experience. I want us to start winning, whether Gabe plays or I play. I don't care to pattern myself after any individual. I just want to win."

Player Leads Nicklaus by One Stroke

65 Gives Gary Edge in T-Bird Golf Tournament

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Gary Player, the little health food fadist from South Africa, stormed from behind two times Saturday, elbowed his way past Jack Nicklas and grabbed the third-round lead in the Thunderbird Golf Classic with a 65 for 201.

PLAYER

Player covered the Westchester Country Club course in seven - under - par — matching the best round of the tourney — for a one-stroke lead going into today's final round for the $20,000 top prize.

Player, who owns the National Open title, forged his brilliant round on eight birdies — including five out of six holes at one stretch—and one bogey over the hilly, 6,573 yard, par 36-36—72 course.

He was three strokes back opening the day's play, made that up, then fell two back when Nicklaus scored an eagle on the 12th. He had tied it again by the 15th and went ahead to stay when the Masters champion bogeyed the 16th.

Billy Casper, who started the day one stroke back of Nicklaus and Gene Littler, also had a 69 for 203 and third place.

* * * *

LITTLER, the former Open champion, had his troubles, going to a 74 for 207.

Arnold Palmer drew a good portion of the gallery of 21,217, but managed only a par 72 for 211.

"I played pretty well," Nicklaus said, "But I missed too many birdie putts.

"Gary's round was fantastic. Let's face it, I was leading the tournament and shot a 69 and now I'm in second place. I think he was just fantastic."

Karate! World's Best Set

500 in International Meet at Municipal Aud

Boasting a field of more than 500 of the world's greatest fighters, the second annual International Karate Championships are set for tonight at the Municipal Auditorium.

By the time the finals are run from 7-9:30 the list of title hopefuls will have been slashed to 18.

Another overflow crowd is expected. Last year several hundred fans were turned away, and advance ticket sales indicate the same will happen tonight.

In order to chop down the entrants, director Ed Parker has scheduled eliminations to be held all day today. Persons who can not get tickets for the finals will be allowed to view the day eliminations for $1. Evening ticket holders will be admitted free to the daytime activity. Tickets for the finals range from $1.50 to $3.50.

A total of 12 matches will be held tonight, 10 of which are for championships. Lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight title battles will be staged in the white, brown and black belt divisions.

After the three champions in each division have been determined, competition will begin among the black belts for the grand championship.

The semifinals will put the lightweight against the middleweight and the heavyweight against defender Michael Stone.

Stone is in tremendous shape and is rated an excellent chance to win again. He weighs 195 pounds and is fresh from winning the U.S. crown in Washington, D.C.

Because of the nature of the sport, however, a lightweight or middleweight stands as much of a chance to win as a heavyweight, not more.

And some of the top challengers are in the lighter category, such as the sensational Hawaiian lightweight Al Jean Cauralia, and cannonball middleweights Jack Wong and Bill Reuter.

The Texas champion, Allen Steen, also will compete. He was runnerup to Stone for the national crown.

These along with all-Japan great Fumio DeMura stand the best chance to dethrone Stone.

Ashe Upsets Osuna, U.S. Bags 2-0 Lead

DALLAS (UPI) — The United States' one-two punch of Dennis Ralston and Arthur Ashe Saturday overwhelmed Mexico's best, Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox, in a pair of singles matches that gave the U.S. a commanding 2-0 lead in the American Zone Davis Cup finals.

The fiery 23-year-old Ralston, America's No. 1 player, whipped Palafox, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 in the second match of the day after the agile Ashe had stunned Osuna in the opener, 6-2, 6-3, 9-7.

Ralston never let his opponent get started. He broke the service of the 26-year-old Palafox twice in both the first and second sets and three times in the third set.

Ralston was the quicker player and forced his stocky opponent into numerous errors with well-placed lobs and stinging forehand shots. He aced Palafox five times.

The twin U.S. victory in singles meant Mexico had to win the three remaining matches to win the American Zone title.

Ashe, 22, of Richmond, Va. and UCLA, served eight aces to Osuna and broke the Mexican's service five times. It was a match Mexico figured it had to win.

Mexico's non-playing captain, Pancho Contreras, had been jubilant that Osuna had drawn Ashe for the first singles match.

America's non-playing captain, George MacCall, had nothing but praise for Ashe.

"I think he was serving as close to the top as I've ever seen him," he said.

"Arthur was wonderful, wonderful, his serves his whole play," Osuna said of the Negro collegian from UCLA.

Pancho Contreras, the Mexican captain, predicted a victory in Sunday's doubles and declared "we haven't lost yet."

Spain Awaits Foe

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) —Spain won the European Zone Davis Cup title Saturday by defeating South Africa in the doubles, 9-7, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 and earned the right to meet the American Zone champion, either Mexico or the United States, here in August.

Billie Jean Serves Into Grass Finals

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Defending champion Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., served her way into the final of the Eastern Grass Court tennis championships Saturday by defeating Julie Heldman of New York, 6-3, 6-3.

Miss Moffitt's opponent today will be third-seeded Jane Albert of Pebble Beach, Calif., who defeated Tory Ann Fretz of Los Angeles, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Moffitt allowed only two points on her own service the entire first set and only six more in the second before the 14-point last game. Miss Moffitt had her first match point at 40-30 in that game. But Miss Heldman fought off two bad bounces on which she missed the ball completely and carried on until Billie Jean wrapped up the match with a nice stop volley.

Miss Albert, 19, is the daughter of ex-pro footballer Frankie Albert.

Fred Stolle, the powerhitting Australian, rallied from two sets down to defeat Tom Edlefsen of Los Angeles, 4-6, 4-6, 12-10, 6-3, 6-2, and gain the men's singles final.

Top-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia filled the other final berth with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-0 victory over Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif.

Stolle and Emerson will meet in a final for the ninth time this season. Wimbledon champion Emerson holds a 5-3 edge.

Emerson whipped McManus for the second straight week, although McManus put up a better struggle this time. But his service was no puzzle for Emerson and the Aussie's own crushing placements made short work of the match.

Player covered the Westchester Country Club course in seven - under - par — matching the best round of the tourney — for a one-stroke lead going into today's final round for the $20,000 top prize.

Player, who owns the National Open title, forged his brilliant round on eight birdies — including five out of six holes at one stretch—and one bogey over the hilly, 6,573 yard, par 36-36—72 course.

He was three strokes back opening the day's play, made that up, then fell two back when Nicklaus scored an eagle on the 12th. He had tied it again by the 15th and went ahead to stay when the Masters champion bugeyed the 16th.

Billy Casper, who started the day one stroke back of Nicklaus and Gene Littler, also had a 69 for 203 and third place.

LITTLER, the former Open champion, had his troubles, going to a 74 for 207.

Arnold Palmer drew a good portion of the gallery of 21,217, but managed only a par 72 for 211.

"I played pretty well," Nicklaus said, "But I missed too many birdie putts.

"Gary's round was fantastic. Let's face it, I was leading the tournament and shot a 69 and now I'm in second place. I think he was just fantastic."

Karate! World's Best Set

500 in International Meet at Municipal Aud.

Boasting a field of more than 500 of the world's greatest fighters, the second annual International Karate Championships are set for tonight at the Municipal Auditorium.

By the time the finals are run from 7-9:30 the list of title nopefuls will have been slashed to 18.

Another overflow crowd is expected. Last year several hundred fans were turned away, and advance ticket sales indicate the same will happen tonight.

In order to chop down the entrants, director Ed Parker has scheduled eliminations to be held all day today. Persons who can not get tickets for the finals will be allowed to view the day eliminations for $1. Evening ticket holders will be admitted free to the daytime activity. Tickets for the finals range from $1.50 to $3.50.

A total of 12 matches will be held tonight, 10 of which are for championships. Lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight title battles will be staged in the white, brown and black belt divisions.

After the three champions in each division have been determined, competition will begin among the black belts for the grand championship.

The semifinals will pit the lightweight against the middleweight and the heavyweight against defender Michael Stone.

Stone is in tremendous shape and is rated an excellent chance to win again. He weighs 195 pounds and is fresh from winning the U.S. crown in Washington, D.C.

Because of the nature of the sport, however, a lightweight or middleweigh stands as much of a chanc to win as a heavyweight, not more.

And some of the top challengers are in the lightcategory, such as the sensational Hawaiian lightweigh Al Jean Cauralia, and canm middleweights Jack Won and Bill Reuter.

The Texas champion, Allc Steen, also will compete. H was runnerup to Stone f the national crown.

These along with all-Japan great Fumio DeMura stand the best chance to dethrone Stone.

Ashe Upsets Osuna, U.S. Bags 2-0 Lead

DALLAS (UPI) — The United States' one-two punch of Dennis Ralston and Arthur Ashe Saturday overwhelmed Mexico's best, Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox, in a pair of singles matches that gave the U.S. a commanding 2-0 lead in the American Zone Davis Cup finals.

The fiery 23-year-old Ralston, America's No. 1 player, whipped Palafox, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 in the second match of the day after the agile Ashe had stunned Osuna in the opener, 6-2, 6-3, 9-7.

Ralston never let his opponent get started. He broke the service of the 26-year-old Palafox twice in both the first and second sets and three times in the third set.

Ralston was the quicker player and forced his stocky opponent into numerous errors with well-placed lobs and stinging forehand shots. He aced Palafox five times.

The twin U.S. victory in singles meant Mexico had to win the three remaining matches to win the American Zone title.

Ashe, 22, of Richmond, Va. and UCLA, served eight aces to Osuna and broke the Mexican's service five times. It was a match Mexico figured it had to win.

Mexico's non-playing captain, Pancho Contreras, had been jubilant that Osuna had drawn Ashe for the first singles match.

America's non-playing captain, George MacCall, had nothing but praise for Ashe.

"I think he was serving as close to the top as I've ever seen him," he said.

"Arthur was wonderful, wonderful, his serves his whole play," Osuna said of the Negro collegian from UCLA.

Pancho Contreras, the Mexican captain, predicted a victory in Sunday's doubles and declared "we haven't lost yet."

Stewart grabbed low elapsed time at 7.64. Goober Tuller, in the hand-car, won top gas honors with an 8.38 et and a speed of 176.81.

Billie Jean Serves Into Grass Finals

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Defending champion Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., served her way into the final of the Eastern Grass Court tennis championships Saturday by defeating Julie Heldman of New York, 6-3, 6-3.

Miss Moffitt's opponent today will be third-seeded Jane Albert of Pebble Beach, Calif., who defeated Tory Ann Fretz of Los Angeles, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Moffitt allowed only two points on her own service the entire first set and only six more in the second before the 14-point last game. Miss Moffitt had her first match point at 40-30 in that game. But Miss Heldman fought off two bad bounces on which she missed the ball completely and carried on until Billie Jean wrapped up the match with a nice stop volley.

Miss Albert, 19, is the daughter of ex-pro footballer Frankie Albert.

Fred Stolle, the powerhitting Australian, rallied from two sets down to defeat Tom Edlefsen of Los Angeles, 4-6, 4-6, 12-10, 6-3, 6-2, and gain the men's singles final.

Top-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia filled the other final berth with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-0 victory over Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif.

Stolle and Emerson will meet in a final for the ninth time this season. Wimbledon champion Emerson holds a 5-3 edge.

Emerson whipped McManus for the second straight week, although McManus put up a better struggle this time. But his service was no puzzle for Emerson and the Aussie's own crushing placements made short work of the match.

MISS DRISCOLL surprised second-seeded Pat Conger of Fullerton, 6-3, 6-4. The Wilmington lass was un-seeded. Miss Trumbull, rated fourth, upset tourney favorite, Debbie Pruitt of Pasadena, 7-9, 6-1, 6-4.

JoJo Knudson of Garden Grove was beaten by Gloria Pananides of Bakersfield, 11-9, 6-2 in the semifinals of the girls 14 division.

IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE?

A doctor was needed at Blair Field Saturday after this first inning play as both Peterson Post baserunner Randy Moffitt (facing camera) and Echo Park second baseman Mike Heagerty required medical aid. Moffitt jammed his thumb sliding into second while Heagerty suffered a pulled shoulder joint.

Echo Fails to Reply in 9th, Peterson Piles Up 20 Runs

By BRUCE YOUNG

It was just one of those days when Echo Park just couldn't do anything right while Peterson Post could do no wrong.

Peterson parlayed 11 hits and nine costly errors into 20 runs and breezed to a 20-0 rout of Echo Park in the first round of the 4th Area American Legion Playoffs Saturday at Blair Field.

Echo Park now will face Ben Bowie today at 1:30 in the second round of the double-elimination tournament at Blair Field. Ben Bowie captured the 23rd District title Saturday as it trounced Morningside, 11-1.

Coach Gale Taylor came up with a winning combination Saturday that would make longshot bettors at Hollywood Park drool as he combined the talents of three pitchers into a four-hit shutout.

Peterson, the 1963 national champion, put the game out of reach in the first inning when it exploded for eight runs and from there it was downhill. The game was called after eight innings by mutual consent.

Randy Moffitt, the starting pitcher, picked up the victory, his fifth in as many outings. Moffitt was impressive, but jammed his thumb in the first inning while sliding into second base and gave way to John Hannaman in the fourth.

Hannaman was plagued by wildness in his two-inning stint, but managed to retire the side in the fifth after loading the bases with one out. Bennie Sanchez took over in the sixth and flashed his best form of the year while Gary Lamb struck out the side in the final frame.

Dale Duncan and Ken Alverson led the hit parade with two each while Sanchez and Ray Colin put together booming back-to-back triples in the sixth.

Browns Rated 14 Over Collegians

CHICAGO —The champion Cleveland Browns of the National Football League rate at least 14-point favorites, but a hefty, aerial-sharp collegiate squad could explode an upset in the 32nd All-Star football game at Soldier Field Friday night.

Some wagering reportedly pegged the Browns as much as a 17-point choice in this renewal of a series replete with hard and thrilling play since its inception by the Chicago Tribune in 1934.

GRAHAM

However, two years ago the Green Bay Packers were almost three-touchdown favorites but were upended by the passing wizardry of Wisconsin's Ron VanderKelen, 20-17.

Last year's All-Stars held a 10-7 halftime lead before losing to the Chicago Bears, 28-17, putting the pros ahead 20-9-2 in the big charity game.

Friday night's game marks Otto Graham's eighth All-Star coaching stint.

It will be televised and broadcast nationally.

* * * *

GRAHAM, one of the NFL passing greats with the Browns, has four heralded quarterbacks of such comparable ability that his starting choice has been a problem since the All-Star workouts began at Northwestern University July 16.

They include Navy's Roger Staubach, Notre Dame's John Huarte, California's Craig Morton, and Michigan's Bob Timberlake.

All except Timberlake were renowned as collegiate passers and Graham says of the hard-running Timberlake: "This young man is a better passer than most people think."

Rasslin' Rams Rarin' to Slam

By AL LARSON

Don't tell Harland Svare, but he's got a couple of actors, er . . . wrestlers in football clothing.

Introducing in this corner, Joe (Jet) Carollo (he missed a flight home with the Rams two years ago and he had to catch a jet, hence the nickname) at 263 pounds.

And in the other corner we have Don Chuy, the Clemson Crusher, at 256 pounds.

The Rasslin' Rams are the latest giants to join the highly specialized bone-crushing circuit.

Surprisingly, Chuy, whose football No. is 62, and ex-Notre Damer Carollo, whose No. is 63, play side by side on the Rams' offensive line. And the pair will team again after the season as a tag team.

JOE CAROLLO
Had Rude Awakening

"Wrestling is going to help my football," said Chuy, who's starting his third season with the Rams. "Your body stays in condition to take those jolts on the football field by falling and being slammed to the mat.

"You can't expect to jump right into wrestling and expect to be a champion. We started last January and we both had a rude awakening," Don added, "But we've improved and next January we have a choice to wrestle in Texas, Minneapolis or Hawaii.

"Then in April, May and June we are going to Japan. Mr. Moto has set up a regular tour for us. No we won't face any of their Sumo boys," Don replied.

Who is the toughest defensive lineman Chuy has to play against?

DON CHUY
Mr. Bone Crusher

"The guys who have been in the league the longest are the toughest as a general rule. You can't beat that experience.

"For knowing the tricks of the trade Henry Jordan (Green Bay) is the toughest. He's been in the league eight years. Roger Brown of Detroit just tries to run over you."

When Chuy, a Clemson star, met the Destroyer, one-time Syracuse gridder, a couple of months ago, they lined up in a football stance. Fortunately, there was no ball.

If you insist on discussing wrestling with either player, we suggest you don't ask for demonstrations. We didn't excuse ourself soon enough and Mr. Chuy eagerly applied his "Ram Cracker."

White Bids for Title in Senior Tee

By JOHN CASH

It has been a trying year for defending champions thus far in Long Beach golf tournaments, and it doesn't appear that the picture is changing.

Pete White, a 51-year-old 3-handicapper from Los Verdes GC and Western Avenue, fired an even-par 72 at El Dorado Saturday to take the first-round lead in the 4th Long Beach Seniors Championships.

Defending over-all titlist Hank Gowdy, 56-year-old Meadowlark veteran, had front-nine troubles and settled for a 73 with a 35 on the last nine to rest in second place in the tourney for golfers over 50.

Although Gowdy is by no means out of contention, it appears that White, who has waged head-on duels with Hank numerous times, will be hard to deny in the final round today beginning at 9 a.m. in the 36-hole event.

Quick Smiles at 62 over 'Alamitos

Smiley Quick held a fast grin at Los Alamitos Country Club Saturday.

The former touring professional, who now holds down the head pro job at Western Avenue GC, fired a crisp eight-under-par 62 for a four-shot lead over the field of 45 in the 7th Los Alamitos Pro-Member tournament.

Quick's trick was a splendid golf performance. He turned in eight birdies and didn't have a bogey as he missed Larry Griggs Jr.'s course record by one stroke. Smiley had nines of 31-31 on the 36-34 par-70 course.

Dale Andreason has 34-32 — 66 for second place, while Pinky Stevenson, former Los Alamitos pro and also a 62 shooter in the past, fired 68. Bud Holscher and Ron Reif, recent finalists in the So. Cal PGA, shot 69s, and host Joe Warburton had 71.

Defending champion Monty Blodgett of Virginia fell off the pace with a 70. Teams headed by professionals Jack Henry of Heartwell Park and Howard Smith were leading the 36-hole tourney that ends today with totals of 115. Tee off times start at 7 this morning.

PRO GRID BRIEFS

Olympic and world 200-meter champion Henry Carr went 99 yards with an intercepted pass on the first play from scrimmage Saturday to pace the defense to an 18-9 victory over the offense in the first New York Giant intra-squad game of the season. Carr, former Arizona State star, picked off a Steve Thurlow option pass to score. Under a new system devised by Giant coach Allie Sherman, the defenders earned other points for fumble recoveries and stopping the offense on fourth down.

Quarterback Charley Johnson threw three touchdown passes as St. Louis went through a 90-minute scrimmage. Two of Johnson's scoring passes were to Sonny Randle and the other to Bobby Joe Conrad. Buddy Humphrey also connected with Randle on a scoring pass and Terry Nofsinger pitched a 60-yard TD pass to Billy Gambrell. Bill Triplett was the leading ball carrier with 50 yards in 16 carries.

John Brodia passed for two touchdowns and defensive halfback Bob Waters was sidelined for a week with a shoulder injury during San Francisco's scrimmage. Brodie hit on scoring tosses of 16 yards to Monty Stickles and 59 yards to Rudy Johnson. John David Crow gained 54 yards in six carries.

Sonny Jurgeason led Washington to its only score in the first period of a 75-minute scrimmage, hitting on four consecutive passes. He connected with Angelo Coia twice for 15 yards, Preston Carpenter for 6, fullback Rick Casares for 12 and then called on halfback Pervis Atkins who went the final 11 yards for the touchdown.

Mike Taliaferro, the quarterback who is competing with Joe Namath for the starting assignment for the New York Jets, led the green team to a 28-14 victory over the whites as the AFL team staged an intra-squad game. Taliaferro threw three touchdown passes to split end Bake Turner.

Fullback Billy Joe, who had the task of filling Cookie Gilchrist's shoes for the AFL champion Buffalo Bills, apparently has made a comfortable fit. Joe scampered 47 yards in five carries during a training camp drill, prompting coach Lou Saban to say: "Joe is everything I thought he would be as a runner. He runs with speed and power."

McKeever Sparkles in Ram Drill

Coach Harland Svare had high praise for end Marlin McKeever Saturday after the Rams held their first full-fledged scrimmage since the veterans reported to camp a week ago.

The Rams executed 79 plays during the 70-minute workout at Chapman College with the offensive team scoring three touchdowns.

In addition to blocking well, McKeever caught seven passes for 120 yards and scored one touchdown.

* * * *

ROMAN Gabriel completed 13 of 21 passes; Bill Munson connected on 5 of 10. Gabe had one pass intercepted; Munson, none.

McKeever, who will be the Rams' starting tight end, scored the opening TD on an 11-yard pass from Gabriel. Halfback Carver Shannon dived one yard for the second tally, while Ben Wilson ran 28 yards down the right sidelines with a Gabriel screen pass for the final score.

* * * *

DAVID JONES picked up a Gabriel fumble and scored for the defensive unit. The defense stopped the offensive club cold the first eight series of downs. Swarz singled out Jones, Marlin Olsen, Dan Curry and Boa Gelting for their defensive play.

Dick Bass required six stitches to close a painful cut behind the little finger of his right hand. He's expected to miss A week of practice. Willie Brown, Lamar Lundy and Tony Guillory did not play. Terry Baker made two fine catches.

FOOTBALL'S A YOUNGSTERS' GAME?

Dr. Tashiro, 48, 'Plays for Fun'

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (UPI) —Dr. Kiyo Tashiro, like most men his age, enjoys football games on the weekend, but after that, the similarity ends.

While most 48-year-old fathers with five children turn on the television set to watch a game, Dr. Tashiro can be found turning on the speed to overtake an opponent during an Atlantic Coast Football League contest.

"I play for fun," said the former Harvard wingback. "I guess I just never grew up."

It has been "fun" for 39 years, ever since Dr. Tashiro began playing organized football back home in Cincinnati at the age of nine. And he has been participating actively since then, except for internship.

Dr. Tashiro recently signed a contract with Mohawk Valley of the ACFL. But this, his 10th year of weekend professional football, is different from the rest.

As far as conditioning, the stocky 5-foot, 10-inch, 196-pounder has "retained a lot more skills than most men my age. I may not be as fast and my eyesight may not be as sharp, but nobody plays any easier against me."

IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE?
A doctor was needed at Blair Field Saturday after this first inning play as both Peterson Post baserunner Randy Moffitt (facing camera) and Echo Park second baseman Mike Heagerty required medical aid. Moffitt jammed his thumb sliding into second while Heagerty suffered a pulled shoulder joint.

Echo Fails to Reply in 9th, Peterson Piles Up 20 Runs

By BRUCE YOUNG

It was just one of those days when Echo Park just couldn't do anything right while Peterson Post could do no wrong.

Peterson parlayed 11 hits and nine costly errors into 20 runs and breezed to a 20-0 rout of Echo Park in the first round of the 4th Area American Legion Playoffs Saturday at Blair Field.

Echo Park now will face Ben Bowie today at 1:30 in the second round of the double-elimination tournament at Blair Field. Ben Bowie captured the 23rd District title Saturday as it trounced Morningside, 11-1.

Coach Gale Taylor came up with a winning combination Saturday that would make longshot bettors at Hollywood Park drool as he combined the talents of three pitchers into a four-hit shutout.

Peterson, the 1963 national champion, put the game out of reach in the first inning when it exploded for eight runs and from there it was downhill. The game was called after eight innings by mutual consent.

Randy Moffitt, the starting pitcher, picked up the victory, his fifth in as many outings. Moffitt was impressive, but jammed his thumb in the first inning while sliding into second base and gave way to John Hannaman in the fourth.

Hannaman was plagued by wildness in his two-inning stint, but managed to retire the side in the fifth after loading the bases with one out. Bennie Sanchez took over in the sixth and flashed his best form of the year while Gary Lamb struck out the side in the final frame.

Dale Duncan and Ken Alverson led the hit parade with two each while Sanchez and Ray Colin put together booming back-to-back triples in the sixth.

Browns Rated 14 Over Collegians

CHICAGO —The champion Cleveland Browns of the National Football League rate at least 14-point favorites, but a hefty, aerial-sharp collegiate squad could explode an upset in the 32nd All-Star football game at Soldier Field Friday night.

Some wagering reportedly pegged the Browns as much as a 17-point choice in this renewal of a series replete with hard and thrilling play since its inception by the Chicago Tribune in 1934.

However, two years ago the Green Bay Packers were GRAHAM almost three-touchdown favorites but were upended by the passing wizardry of Wisconsin's Ron VanderKelen, 20-17.

Last year's All-Stars held a 10-7 halftime lead before losing to the Chicago Bears, 28-17, putting the pros ahead 20-9-2 in the big charity game.

Friday night's game marks Otto Graham's eighth All-Star coaching stint.

It will be televised and broadcast nationally.

* * * *

GRAHAM, one of the NFL passing greats with the Browns, has four heralded quarterbacks of such comparable ability that his starting choice has been a problem since the All-Star workouts began at Northwestern University July 16.

They include Navy's Roger Staubach, Notre Dame's John Huarte, California's Craig Morton, and Michigan's Bob Timberlake.

All except Timberlake were renowned as collegiate passers and Graham says of the hard-running Timberlake: "This young man is a better passer than most people think."

Commerce Ready for Toledo Meet

City of Commerce Coach Don Gambril has named a potent 34-member squad for the combined U. S. men and women's national swimming and diving championships at Toledo, O., Aug. 12-15.

The Commerce team will be evenly divided between 17 men and 17 girls.

The girls team, led by such performers as Sharon Stouder, Patti Caretto, Jeannie Hallock, Sandra Nitta and Shirley Teeples, will be co-favorite with Santa Clara Swim Club for the team honors.

The men's team, while it is the strongest ever to represent Commerce, is rated among the top half-dozen.

Commerce's girls won the National AAU Indoor Championships last April in their home pool.

Mike Taliaferro, the quarterback who is competing with Joe Namath for the starting assignment for the New York Jets, led the green team to a 28-14 victory over the whites as the AFL team staged an intra-squad game. Taliaferro threw three touchdown passes to split end Bake Turner.

Fullback Billy Joe, who had the task of filling Cookie Gilchrist's shoes for the AFL champion Buffalo Bills, apparently has made a comfortable fit. Joe scampered 47 yards in five carries during a training camp drill, prompting coach Lou Saban to say: "Joe is everything I thought he would be as a runner. He runs with speed and power."

McKeever Sparkles in Ram Drill

Coach Harland Svare had high praise for end Marlin McKeever Saturday after the Rams held their first full-fledged scrimmage since the veterans reported to camp a week ago.

The Rams executed 79 plays during the 70-minute workout at Chapman College with the offensive team scoring three touchdowns.

In addition to blocking well, McKeever caught seven passes for 120 yards and scored one touchdown.

* * * *

ROMAN Gabriel completed 13 of 21 passes; Bill Munson connected on 5 of 10. Gabe had one pass intercepted; Munson, none.

McKeever, who will be the Rams' starting tight end, scored the opening TD on an 11-yard pass from Gabriel. Halfback Carver Shannon dived one yard for the second tally, while Ben Wilson ran 28 yards down the right sidelines with a Gabriel screen pass for the final score.

* * * *

DAVID JONES picked up a Gabriel fumble and scored for the defensive unit. The defense stopped the offensive club cold the first eight series of downs. Svare singled out Jones, Merlin Olsen, Dan Curry and Bob Oelting for their defensive play.

Dick Bass required six stitches to close a painful cut behind the little finger of his right hand. He's expected to miss a week of practice. Willie Brown, Lamar Lundy and Tony Guillory did not play. Terry Baker made two fine catches.

FOOTBALL'S A YOUNGSTERS' GAME?

Dr. Tashiro, 48, 'Plays for Fun'

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (UPI) —Dr. Kiyo Tashiro, like most men his age, enjoys football games on the weekend, but after that, the similarity ends.

While most 48-year-old fathers with five children turn on the television set to watch a game, Dr. Tashiro can be found turning on the speed to overtake an opponent during an Atlantic Coast Football League contest.

"I play for fun," said the former Harvard wingback. "I guess I just never grew up."

It has been "fun" for 39 years, ever since Dr. Tashiro began playing organized football back home in Cincinnati at the age of nine. And he has been participating actively since then, except for internship.

Dr. Tashiro recently signed a contract with Mohawk Valley of the ACFL. But this, his 10th year of weekend professional football, is different from the rest.

As far as conditioning, the stocky 5-foot, 10-inch, 196-pounder has "retained a lot more skills than most men my age. I may not be as fast and my eyesight may not be as sharp, but nobody plays any easier against me."

Red Smith's Views of Sports—

Is Casey Stengel Through in Baseball?

By TOMMY HOLMES
(Red Smith is on vacation)

It had been a good old timers' party in Toots Shor's room downstairs, but now it was an hour past midnight and beginning to break up. There were only a few of them left.

It had been a happy night for Casey Stengel. As one of the hosts, he had been quieter than usual not wishing to steal the spotlight from the others whom he knew so well.

But now it was late and Stengel and Frankie Frisch started interrupting each other in a hilarious argument about a lefthanded pitcher Stengel traded to Frisch back in the days when Casey was skipper of the Braves and Frank managed Pittsburgh.

That was the way you left them and, while driving home, it was Harold Weissman who remarked, "Of all the old boys in the room Casey is the only one who'll be up and at 'em today, and in a doubleheader, no less."

But, of course, it turned out that Casey couldn't make it and the circumstances must make one wonder whether he'll ever again carry a lineup card up to the home plate.

This man is authentically tough. His swift recovery from a fractured wrist incurred when he slipped and fell at a West Point exhibition game early this season astonished the doctors.

When they were putting his wrist in a cast, Casey was asked whether he would take some time off or keep managing.

"Why shouldn't I manage?" he rasped. "I didn't fall on my head."

He didn't fall on his head this time, either. Nor has it been established that he fell on anything else. But he woke up wracked by agonizing pain and they found he had a hip fracture. They think he got it twisting his body getting out of a car.

Tough Stengel is. Indestructible nor immortal he isn't, and this is a rough rap. He had this operation, and, of course, he will beat it to attain a reasonable facsimile of his robust health. But that and the physical activity required to keep up with a ball-club in this day and age are different things.

At 75 and facing a couple of months of partial immobilization and discomfort, Casey will be battling himself. He'll be torn between what he'd like to do and what must be done.

There was that hectic afternoon last week when radio reporters and some city-side newsmen of afternoon papers interpreted Casey's hilarious triple talk as an announcement that he would retire at the end of the season.

Later, in declaring that he had been misunderstood, Casey was also careful to refrain from saying positively that he would be back.

"At my age," he barked, "how do I know how I'll feel six months from now?"

As it happened, he had no idea how he would feel four days afterwards, and when that moment arrived it was pretty awful.

Maybe some of those in the front office of the Mets were playing around with the idea that a change in managers for 1966 might be desirable. Now they are approaching the question that a change of managers may have become a necessary move.

Wes Westrum, the rugged old catcher, will handle the club for the rest of the season and it has been carefully spelled out that Westrum is an "interim" manager.

The mere fact that it is Westrum and not Yogi Berra makes it seem likely that, if Casey retires, his permanent successor will come from outside the organization. Alvin Dark perhaps.

The one certain thing is that the Mets are not going to find another Casey Stengel. They have the only one there is, ever was, or ever will be.

Randy Matson of Pampa, Tex., called a superman by many who have seen him in action, won the shot put with a heave of 66 feet, 5½ inches. This still was more than four feet short of his pending world mark of 70-7.

Ralph Boston of Nashville, Tenn., maintained his record of never having lost to Russia's Igor Ter-Ovanesyan outdoors when he won the broad jump with a leap of 26 feet, 11¼. Ter-Ovanesyan was second in 26-3¾.

Newman of Visalia, Calif., set a meet record of 10.1 in winning the 100-meter dash and George Germann of Port Crane, N.Y., competing in his first major international meet, swept from behind to capture the 800-meter run in 1:46.8.

Foyt Clocks 166 for World Mark, Wins Pole Spot

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A. J. Foyt drove his rear-engine Ford at a world record speed of 166.512 mph Saturday to win the pole position for today's championship 250 race for Indianapolis type cars.

Foyt's time was the fastest ever on a 1½-mile closed track and was nearly three miles per hour faster than that of the No. 2 qualifier, Billy Foster, also driving a rear-engine Ford.

Starting on the inside of the second row will be Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., who qualified his rear-engine Offenhauser at 162.945 Friday. On his right will be Gordon Johncock of Hastings, Mich., who turned in a time of 162.895 in an Offenhauser.

A field of 30 will start the race, which carries a purse of $80,000. Its 250-mile distance makes it second in length only to the Indianapolis 500 in length.

"I believe it will take an average speed of about 158 miles per hour to win this thing," Foyt said. "You can really go on this track."

The race will be run over the high-banked Atlanta International Raceway course.

Lakewood Polo Win

The Lakewood Recreation Department defeated Inglewood High, 16-2, in a Los Angeles A League water polo game Saturday at Inglewood High with Carl Basilli taking scoring honors with five goals.

Clark Shoots for Sixth Prix Win

ADENAU, Germany (AP) — Jim Clark of Scotland, winner of the Indianapolis 500 and of all five grand prix races he entered this year, will have the pole position at the start of today's Grand Prix of Germany.

No driver Saturday was able to better the 102.1 mph speed Clark posted Friday in the qualifying trials. He will drive a V-8 Lotus. The Scot never has been able to win on the writhing, mountain-top Nuerburgring course.

Should Clark triumph here, he will clinch the 1965 driving championships. There are 10 national grand prix races and drivers can count only six.

Poles Smash Britons Again

LONDON (UPI)—Poland won her 10th successive annual track and field meet against Britain Saturday with a smashing victory in the men's events and a narrow margin in the women's competition.

The Poles scored a total of 177 points to Britain's 151 in the two-day match. The men's score was 118-93.

It was 22-year-old Andrzej Badenski, the Tokyo bronze medalist, who added the final touch that enabled Poland to move to its biggest ever win in the men's matches.

Badenski turned in a scintillating last leg of 45.1 seconds in the 4x400 meters relay to take the Polish squad to the tape.

Foyt Clocks 166 for World Mark, Wins Pole Spot

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A. J. Foyt drove his rear-engine Ford at a world record speed of 166.512 mph Saturday to win the pole position for today's championship 250 race for Indianapolis type cars.

Foyt's time was the fastest ever on a 1½-mile closed track and was nearly three miles per hour faster than that of the No. 2 qualifier, Billy Foster, also driving a rear-engine Ford.

Starting on the inside of the second row will be Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., who qualified his rear-engine Offenhauser at 162.945 Friday. On his right will be Gordon Johncock of Hastings, Mich., who turned in a time of 162.895 in an Offenhauser.

A field of 30 will start the race, which carries a purse of $80,000. Its 250-mile distance makes it second in length only to the Indianapolis 500 in length.

"I believe it will take an average speed of about 158 miles per hour to win this thing," Foyt said. "You can really go on this track."

The race will be run over the high-banked Atlanta International Raceway course.

Commission Asks for Anchovy Plan

The Fish and Game Commission, saddled by Gov. Edmund G. Brown with a virtual order to do something about reducing anchovies, has asked the Department of Fish and Game to prepare a proposal for scientific management of the anchovy resource, including reduction, in waters off the California coast.

The commission's next meeting is Aug. 27 at San Francisco, and, no doubt, the DFG will have a plan by that time. In fact, several meetings of biologists and scientists are in the offing before the Aug. 27 session of the commission.

Commission president Thomas H. Richards Jr. said: "Gov. Brown's veto of the anchovy bill has opened the way to long-range, scientific management of the resource.

"Members of the commission are aware of the will of the legislature and the views of the governor, and we are confident that the Department of Fish and Game will present a workable, scientific plan which will provide for appropriate harvesting of anchovies and at the same time afford long-term protection of this important ocean fisheries resource."

The commissioners have contended that if anchovy reduction had to be done, it should be done scientifically and under management of the FGC.

PRESIDENT ROBERT VILE of the Ocean Fish Protective Association said that he was surprised that the commissioners acted so quickly, but that with a strong statement such as the governor made, the FGC had little choice but to ask for the anchovy proposal. After all, the FGC is one of the governor's appointive bodies.

Vile wasn't prepared to say just what the OFPA will do until it learns more about the DFG proposal. The OFPA has led the fight in each instance where the anchovy fishery was threatened. It virtually rained petitions on the governor's desk, to say nothing of the thousands of letters and telegrams.

Vile did say this: "If the commission grants permits to reduce anchovies, there is one advantage over the Assembly bill whiich was passed and vetoed. The commission will have the power to nullify the permits if any violation is discovered.

"It will be smimilar to the lobster and abalone permits. When the commission discovers violations of the law, the permits are picked up and fines are imposed through the courts.

One biologist told this writer that he didn't think the DFG was going to hop, skip and jump into the anchovy fishery. "There is going to be a most thorough investigation before any plan is advanced and I don't think the commercials will be allowed to work close to shore where bait for sportfishing boats is netted," he said.

FRED GARTLEY, A COMPETITOR in the seventh annual Hawaiian International Billfishing Tournament, should be given A for effort, not to mention a change of clothing.

Fishing off the Kona coast of Hawaii, Gartley, who weighs 185 pounds, hooked a marlin estimated at 300 pounds. The fish took off in one of the speediest runs ever witnessed, running the line down to the core of the reel. Gartley, holding fast to the rod, went overboard and was towed about 100 yards before the boat could be turned to pick him up.

He was lifted into the boat and was still hanging desperately on the rod. He kept fighting the fish for another half hour and got it close enough to be gaffed, but just about that time the wily marlin went under the boat, it straightened out the hook and swam away.

It seems that more fish are getting away than are being boated in the tournament. Dean Green, of the Channel Islands Yacht Club of Oxnard, lost a Pacific blue estimated at 700 pounds when the line snapped. Mrs. Margaret Gardiner, Oakland, Calif., caught a blue estimated at 600 pounds, but lost it when the fish straightened out the hook and fled

John Kellion, 115-pounder, put a 578-pound blue aboard the boat which the Australian team was using in Thursday's competition. It gave the Australian team the lead.

SPECIAL DEER HUNT MAPS showing areas of California's 38 special deer hunts for 1965 will be available at license agents this week. The maps set forth the hunting dates and tell sportsmen how to apply for permits to participate in the special hunts.

One special hunt is not listed. It is the Dixie Refuge hunt in Plumas County which was approved by the Fish and Game Commission too late to be included in the map. Sportsmen who want to participate in it must have their applications in the Department of Fish and Game headquarters in Sacramento by 5 p.m. Aug. 12.

FIRST BLUEFIN

It won for Pierpoint coveted Port of Long Beach trophy for the first bluefin. Pierpoint already had won trophy for first albacore.

SON O' SILKY WINS OCEANSIDE

$92 Surprise in Del Mar Feature

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR—Mr. Payne, a typical stretch - running son of the fabled Silky Sullivan, almost totally overlooked by a crowd of 15,756, charged from out of the clouds to overhaul his highly-regarded stablemate, favored Azure Te, and win the $16,575 Oceanside Handicap in a stunning $92 surprise Saturday.

Moving between horses in the stretch with a rally that kindled fond memories of his father, Mr. Payne, daringly ridden by jockey Miguel Yanez, got up in the final strides to win by a neck over Azure Te, the 4-5 choice in the six-furlong event for three-year-olds.

Although both Mr. Payne and Azure Te are conditioned by M. E. (Buster) Millerick, they were uncoupled for wagering purposes in the 19th running of the Oceanside Handicap, headliner on the first Saturday card of the Del Mar season.

Hoist Bar, who dogged the steps of the pacemaking Azure Te in the early stages, hung on gamely for third place.

Across the board, Mr. Payne returned $92, $18.20 $7.40. Azure Te paid $3.20 and $2.60, while Hoist Bar returned $3.20.

Mr. Payne was a laggard in the early running as Yanez was content to allow Azure Te, who was off a bit slowly from his rail post position, and Hoist Bar to cut out a swift set of fractions.

Turning for home, Azure Te, who was piloted by Pfc. Jerry Lambert, disposed of Hoist Bar to open up a commanding advantage. However, Mr. Payne was in full gear now and swiftly closed the gap. Yanez steered the bay colt between horses in mid-stretch and then went to the rail to forge ahead on the inside of Azure Te, who gave way slightly in the last jumps under highweight of 126 pounds.

Mr. Payne raced the distance in a swift 1:09⅗, his efforts rewarded by first money of $9,075.

Colorado King won his first race in more than a year as he romped to an impressive triumph in the day's supporting feature, the $6,000 La Costa by the Sea Handicap, at a mile and one-sixteenth of the infield turf course.

The South African-bred chestnut, well - rated by jockey Bill Hartack, tallied easily over Royal Eiffel, with Mainsheet third and favored Gamin fourth. Colorado King paid $6.60.

Native Street Toys With Sorority Rivals

Compiled from Wire Reports

Native Street, a rangy gray daughter of the great Native Dancer, toyed with four other 2-year-fillies Saturday and remained unbeaten by capturing the $124,080 Sorority at Monmouth Park.

Without undue urging on the part of jockey Manuel Ycaza, Native Street took the lead one-quarter of a mile from home and hit the finish line six lengths in front of Shimmering Gold, another offspring of Native Dancer.

Native Street earned $74,448 and as the favorite of the crowd of 30,324 paid $3.60, $3.20 and $2.40.

Shimmering Gold, who staged a late but futile bid under come-from-behind rider Johnny Sellers, returned $8.40 and $3.60 as she wound up in the runner-up spot for the third straight time. Lovely Gypsy, ridden by John Giovanni, paid $2.80 to show.

Or Et Argent threaded his way through a wall of horses in the stretch at Aqueduct to win the $58,700 Tidal Handicap by a neck in the last few strides.

Or Et Argent was timed in a fast 1:49⅗ and paid $6.80, $4.20 and $2.00 Upriser, ridden by Heliodoro Gustines, paid $6.00 and $4.40 while Turbo Jet 2nd paid $3.40.

* * * *

CHIEFTAIN, who had never won beyond seven furlongs, captured the 1⅛-mile, $54,150 Arlington Handicap by 11 lengths at Arlington Park. Chieftain, top weighted at 123 pounds and ridden by Bill Shoemaker, took the lead from Bayou Bourg after three furlongs. Odds-on favorite, a 4-year-old son of Bold Ruler, galloped the rest of the way. Chieftain paid $3.60, $3 and $2.20, while being timed in 1:49⅖. Suspicious paid $6.20 and $3.80. Ampose paid $2.80.

Steeple Jill, saving her big run for the stretch, easily pulled away from 10 rival fillies and mares at Delaware Park to win the $123,265 Delaware Park Handicap by four and one-half lengths. The 4-year-old filly paid $9.20, $5.00 and $3.40 while Ro Ho, paid $6.20 and $4.80. Miss Cavandish, who got close to the front sooner than usual but lacked a finishing kick, paid $3.00.

KING'S LANE II took a strong position after going a half mile and coming last on outside in stretch caught LUGO in last thirty yards. LUGO was well rated while making the pace and saved ground in the stretch but failed to have enough left. JUSTICIERO II made a strong bid for the leadership an eighth out and continued strongly to the finish.

Commission Asks for Anchovy Plan

The Fish and Game Commission, saddled by Gov. Edmund G. Brown with a virtual order to do something about reducing anchovies, has asked the Department of Fish and Game to prepare a proposal for scientific management of the anchovy resource, including reduction, in waters off the California coast.

The commission's next meeting is Aug. 27 at San Francisco, and, no doubt, the DFG will have a plan by that time. In fact, several meetings of biologists and scientists are in the offing before the Aug. 27 session of the commission.

Commission president Thomas H. Richards Jr. said: "Gov. Brown's veto of the anchovy bill has opened the way to long-range, scientific management of the resource.

"Members of the commission are aware of the will of the legislature and the views of the governor, and we are confident that the Department of Fish and Game will present a workable, scientific plan which will provide for appropriate harvesting of anchovies and at the same time afford long-term protection of this important ocean fisheries resource."

The commissioners have contended that if anchovy reduction had to be done, it should be done scientifically and under management of the FGC.

PRESIDENT ROBERT VILE of the Ocean Fish Protective Association said that he was surprised that the commissioners acted so quickly, but that with a strong statement such as the governor made, the FGC had little choice but to ask for the anchovy proposal. After all, the FGC is one of the governor's appointive bodies.

Vile wasn't prepared to say just what the OFPA will do until it learns more about the DFG proposal. The OFPA has led the fight in each instance where the anchovy fishery was threatened. It virtually rained petitions on the governor's desk, to say nothing of the thousands of letters and telegrams.

Vile did say this: "If the commission grants permits to reduce anchovies, there is one advantage over the Assembly bill whiich was passed and vetoed. The commission will have the power to nullify the permits if any violation is discovered.

"It will be smimilar to the lobster and abalone permits. When the commission discovers violations of the law, the permits are picked up and fines are imposed through the courts.

One biologist told this writer that he didn't think the DFG was going to hop, skip and jump into the anchovy fishery. "There is going to be a most thorough investigation before any plan is advanced and I don't think the commercials will be allowed to work close to shore where bait for sportfishing boats is netted," he said.

FRED GARTLEY, A COMPETITOR in the seventh annual Hawaiian International Billfishing Tournament, should be given A for effort, not to mention a change of clothing.

Fishing off the Kona coast of Hawaii, Gartley, who weighs 185 pounds, hooked a marlin estimated at 300 pounds. The fish took off in one of the speediest runs ever witnessed, running the line down to the core of the reel. Gartley, holding fast to the rod, went overboard and was towed about 100 yards before the boat could be turned to pick him up.

He was lifted into the boat and was still hanging desperately on the rod. He kept fighting the fish for another half hour and got it close enough to be gaffed, but just about that time the wily marlin went under the boat, it straightened out the hook and swam away.

It seems that more fish are getting away than are being boated in the tournament. Dean Green, of the Channel Islands Yacht Club of Oxnard, lost a Pacific blue estimated at 700 pounds when the line snapped. Mrs. Margaret Gardiner, Oakland, Calif., caught a blue estimated at 600 pounds, but lost it when the fish straightened out the hook and fled

John Kellion, 115-pounder, put a 578-pound blue aboard the boat which the Australian team was using in Thursday's competition. It gave the Australian team the lead.

SPECIAL DEER HUNT MAPS showing areas of California's 38 special deer hunts for 1965 will be available at license agents this week. The maps set forth the hunting dates and tell sportsmen how to apply for permits to participate in the special hunts.

One special hunt is not listed. It is the Dixie Refuge hunt in Plumas County which was approved by the Fish and Game Commission too late to be included in the map. Sportsmen who want to participate in it must have their applications in the Department of Fish and Game headquarters in Sacramento by 5 p.m. Aug. 12.

FIRST BLUEFIN

Clyde Perry, Los Angeles, caught first bluefin (12 pounds) while fishing on George Soderlund's Miss L, out of Pierpoint Landing. It was taken at 60-Mile Bank, along with 43 albacore. It won for Pierpoint coveted Port of Long Beach trophy for the first bluefin. Pierpoint already had won trophy for first albacore.

SON O' SILKY WINS OCEANSIDE

$92 Surprise in Del Mar Feature

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR—Mr. Payne, a typical stretch - running son of the fabled Silky Sullivan, almost totally overlooked by a crowd of 15,756, charged from out of the clouds to overhaul his highly-regarded stablemate, favored Azure Te, and win the $16,575 Oceanside Handicap in a stunning $92 surprise Saturday.

Moving between horses in the stretch with a rally that kindled fond memories of his father, Mr. Payne, daringly ridden by jockey Miguel Yanez, got up in the final strides to win by a neck over Azure Te, the 4-5 choice in the six-furlong event for three-year-olds.

Although both Mr. Payne and Azure Te are conditioned by M. E. (Buster) Millerick, they were uncoupled for wagering purposes in the 19th running of the Oceanside Handicap, headliner on the first Saturday card of the Del Mar season.

Hoist Bar, who dogged the steps of the pacemaking Azure Te in the early stages, hung on gamely for third place.

Across the board, Mr. Payne returned $92, $18.20 $7.40. Azure Te paid $3.20 and $2.60, while Hoist Bar returned $3.20.

Mr. Payne was a laggard in the early running as Yanez was content to allow Azure Te, who was off a bit slowly from his rail post position, and Hoist Bar to cut out a swift set of fractions.

Turning for home, Azure Te, who was piloted by Pfc. Jerry Lambert, disposed of Hoist Bar to open up a commanding advantage. However, Mr. Payne was in full gear now and swiftly closed the gap. Yanez steered the bay colt between horses in mid-stretch and then went to the rail to forge ahead on the inside of Azure Te, who gave way slightly in the last jumps under highweight of 126 pounds.

Mr. Payne raced the distance in a swift 1:09⅗, his efforts rewarded by first money of $9,075.

Colorado King won his first race in more than a year as he romped to an impressive triumph in the day's supporting feature, the $6,000 La Costa by the Sea Handicap, at a mile and one-sixteenth of the infield turf course.

The South African-bred chestnut, well - rated by jockey Bill Hartack, tallied easily over Royal Eiffel, with Mainsheet third and favored Gamin fourth. Colorado King paid $6.60.

Native Street Toys With Sorority Rivals

Compiled from Wire Reports

Native Street, a rangy gray daughter of the great Native Dancer, toyed with four other 2-year-fillies Saturday and remained unbeaten by capturing the $124,080 Sorority at Monmouth Park.

Without undue urging on the part of jockey Manuel Ycaza, Native Street took the lead one-quarter of a mile from home and hit the finish line six lengths in front of Shimmering Gold, another offspring of Native Dancer.

Native Street earned $74,448 and as the favorite of the crowd of 30,324 paid $3.60, $3.20 and $2.40.

Shimmering Gold, who staged a late but futile bid under come-from-behind rider Johnny Sellers, returned $8.40 and $3.60 as she wound up in the runner-up spot for the third straight time. Lovely Gypsy, ridden by John Giovanni, paid $2.80 to show.

Or Et Argent threaded his way through a wall of horses in the stretch at Aqueduct to win the $58,700 Tidal Handicap by a neck in the last few strides.

Or Et Argent was timed in a fast 1:49⅗ and paid $6.80, $4.20 and $2.00 Upper, ridden by Heliodoro Gustines, paid $6.00 and $4.40 while Turbo Jet 2nd paid $3.40.

* * * *

CHIEFTAIN, who had never won beyond seven furlongs, captured the 1⅛-mile, $54,150 Arlington Handicap by 11 lengths at Arlington Park. Chieftain, top weighted at 123 pounds and ridden by Bill Shoemaker, took the lead from Bayou Bourg after three furlongs. Odds-on favorite, a 4-year-old son of Bold Ruler, galloped the rest of the way. Chieftain paid $3.60, $3 and $2.20, while being timed in 1:49⅘. Suspicious paid $6.20 and $3.80. Ampose paid $2.80.

Steeple Jill, saving her big run for the stretch, easily pulled away from 10 rival fillies and mares at Delaware Park to win the $123,265 Delaware Park Handicap by four and one-half lengths. The 4-year-old filly paid $9.20, $5.00 and $3.40 while He Ho, paid $8.20 and $4.80, Miss Cavandish, who got close to the front sooner than usual but lacked a finishing kick, paid $2.60.

Arruza in Tijuana Ring Again Today

TIJUANA, Mex.—The great Carlos Arruza will make his third appearance of the local season today at 4, fighting bulls in the mounted Portuguese style known as (rejoneo."

Placing the bladed spears called "rejones" and the shorter harpooned banderillas as he zigzags his beautiful mounts in and out of the horns reach, Arruza then dismounts to kill with the matador's sword after a series of exciting muleta passes.

Hector Obregon and Mauro Liceaga, two young Mexican matadores who did magnificently well in their local presentations this year, will perform in the traditional Spanish style.

16 CLUBS COMPETE

Connie Mack Playoffs Start

Sixteen Connie Mack baseball teams will take the trail today which will lead to Porterville, and eventually to Farmington, New Mexico, for the national championships beginning Aug. 24.

Compton and Glendale's No. 2 team will kick things off at Anaheim's La Palma Park at 2 while Blair Field action gets under way at 6, with Glendale No. 1 and Ventura meeting.

The Long Beach Blues will get into action at 8 at Blair, meeting either Hubert's Cafeteria or Mel Burns Mustangs. That spot is still to be settled.

The powerful Torrance Red Devils and Beach Cities will meet Monday at 6 at Blair. Both teams defeated the Tordena Bullets in the South Bay League, eliminating the national champions from competition this year.

Nitehawks Enter ISC Play Thursday Night

By CHUCK MEDICK

General Dynamics Park in Pomona will be the site of the ISC State Softball Tournament starting Thursday night.

Nine teams, including top teams in the area, have entered the tourney, with a 10th team possibly coming in. Tournament director Mike Martinez announced plans for play beginning Thursday at 7:30 p.m. with the finals slated for Sunday, Aug. 15, at 6:30.

Long Beach will be well represented. Both the Long Beach Nitehawks of the Western Softball Congress and Richard's Roof of the Long Beach City League will participate.

* * * *

STRONG opposition will come from the Gardena Merchants, who will enter the tourney if they finish second in the WSC. With two games remaining and Pomona's Bombers one game ahead, this seems likely.

Of special interest to softball fans will be the Azusa, San Bernardino and Lawndale teams, none of whom have been actively engaged in playing Congress teams. Also, the entrance of Cypress and Monterey Park will serve to strengthen the tourney.

The Nitehawks will see action Friday at 7:30, meeting Azusa. Richard's Roof draws a bye and will play either Saturday or Sunday. The first-round schedule:

Thursday—7:30 p.m. Buena Park vs. Monterey Park; 8:45 p.m. Gardena vs. Cypress.
Friday—7:30 p.m. Nitehawks vs. Azusa; 8:45 p.m. Lawndale vs. San Bernardino.

Nitehawks Bid to Go Over .500

The Long Beach Nitehawks will entertain the Oxnard Candy Kings tonight at 8:15 at Park Avenue Field.

This will be the last Oxnard appearance this year of Jack Newman and company. There remains only one more game on the Hawks' league schedule, the game to be played from the second inning with Lakewood in which the Nitehawks protest was upheld by the league directors.

The Nitehawks need a victory to get over the .500 mark. They are 14-14 on the year.

DOUBLE TITLE CARD SLATED

The biggest wrestling show of the summer is scheduled this week at Municipal Auditorium—a double championship card.

New heavyweight champ Luke Graham will risk his crown against Louis Hernandez in one of three bouts scheduled for best-of-three falls. Tag champions The Assassins will defend against The Destroyer and Red Lyons in the other title match.

Heartwell Hosts Ladies' Tourney

Monday is "ladies day" at Heartwell Golf Park, and the ladies, bless 'em, will be as thick as at a rummage sale.

Heartwell's week-long third anniversary celebration features the Long Beach Par 3 Championships for ladies Monday, and en masse turnouts are expected from the host club in addition to Compton, Bellflower, Norwalk, Santa Fe Springs and Arcadia clubs.

Heartwell Hosts Ladies' Tourney

Monday is "ladies day" at Heartwell Golf Park, and the ladies, bless 'em, will be as thick as at a rummage sale.

Heartwell's week-long third anniversary celebration features the Long Beach Par 3 Championships for ladies Monday, and en masse turnouts are expected from the host club in addition to Compton, Bellflower, Norwalk, Santa Fe Springs and Arcadia clubs.

Nitehawks Enter ISC Play Thursday Night

By CHUCK MEDICK

General Dynamics Park in Pomona will be the site of the ISC State Softball Tournament starting Thursday night.

Nine teams, including top teams in the area, have entered the tourney, with a 10th team possibly coming in. Tournament director Mike Martinez announced plans for play beginning Thursday at 7:30 p.m. with the finals slated for Sunday, Aug. 15, at 6:30.

Long Beach will be well represented. Both the Long Beach Nitehawks of the Western Softball Congress and Richard's Roof of the Long Beach City League will participate.

STRONG opposition will come from the Gardena Merchants, who will enter the tourney if they finish second in the WSC. With two games remaining and Pomona's Bombers one game ahead, this seems likely.

Of special interest to softball fans will be the Azusa, San Bernardino and Lawndale teams, none of whom have been actively engaged in playing Congress teams. Also, the entrance of Cypress and Monterey Park will serve to strengthen the tourney.

The Nitehawks will see action Friday at 7:30, meeting Azusa. Richard's Roof draws a bye and will play either Saturday or Sunday. The first-round schedule:

Thursday—7:30 p.m. Buena Park vs. Monterey Park; 8:45 p.m. Gardena vs. Cypress.
Friday—7:30 p.m. Nitehawks vs. Azusa; 8:45 p.m. Lawndale vs. San Bernardino.

Nitehawks Bid to Go Over .500

The Long Beach Nitehawks will entertain the Oxnard Candy Kings tonight at 8:15 at Park Avenue Field.

This will be the last Oxnard appearance this year of Jack Newman and company. There remains only one more game on the Hawks' league schedule, the game to be played from the second inning with Lakewood in which the Nitehawks protest was upheld by the league directors.

The Nitehawks need a victory to get over the .500 mark. They are 14-14 on the year.

DOUBLE TITLE CARD SLATED

The biggest wrestling show of the summer is scheduled this week at Municipal Auditorium—a double championship card.

New heavyweight champ Luke Graham will risk his crown against Louis Hernandez in one of three bouts scheduled for best-of-three falls. Tag champions The Assassins will defend against The Destroyer and Red Lyons in the other title match.

Arruza in Tijuana Ring Again Today

TIJUANA, Mex.—The great Carlos Arruza will make his third appearance of the local season today at 4, fighting bulls in the mounted Portuguese style known as (rejoneo."

Placing the bladed spears called "rejones" and the shorter harpooned banderillas as he zigzags his beautiful mounts in and out of the horns reach, Arruza then dismounts to kill with the matador's sword after a series of exciting muleta passes.

Hector Obregon and Mauro Liceaga, two young Mexican matadores who did magnificently well in their local presentations this year, will perform in the traditional Spanish style.

16 CLUBS COMPETE

Connie Mack Playoffs Start

Sixteen Connie Mack baseball teams will take the trail today which will lead to Porterville, and eventually to Farmington, New Mexico, for the national championships beginning Aug. 24.

Compton and Glendale's No. 2 team will kick things off at Anaheim's La Palma Park at 2 while Blair Field action gets under way at 6, with Glendale No. 1 and Ventura meeting.

The Long Beach Blues will get into action at 8 at Blair, meeting either Hubert's Cafeteria or Mel Burns Mustangs. That spot is still to be settled.

The powerful Torrance Red Devils and Beach Cities will meet Monday at 6 at Blair. Both teams defeated the Tordena Bullets in the South Bay League, eliminating the national champions from competition this year.

Sinatra Sauces Aging Tradition

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Sinatra brought some new excitement to a hoary Hollywood tradition the other day, when he implanted his hand and foot prints in wet cement at famed Grauman's Chinese Theater.

The custom had become almost routine in recent years, but the Sinatra magic worked a new spell.

Usually only three or four hundred spectators turn out for the ceremony, but between two and three thousand fans were on hand for the Sinatra caper.

THE CROWD was a mixture of youngsters and oldsters, with a heavy accent on dames in their 30s who once swooned for the young Sinatra during his heyday as a pop singer. Most failed to get a glimpse of the thin singer, and one nut—claiming he wanted to talk to Frank—climbed a 30-foot tree to attract his attention.

Dean Martin, who did the footprint bit last year, was there to introduce Sinatra to the throng. He observed that his buddy was joining the Italian corner of the theater's forecourt, where Sophia Loren's and his own "signatures" are immortalized in concrete.

In introducing Sinatra, Dino observed: "Big deal, Frank putting his hands and feet in wet cement. I go home like that every night. When I did this last year I got stiff before the cement."

Sinatra Sauces Aging Tradition

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Sinatra brought some new excitement to a hoary Hollywood tradition the other day, when he implanted his hand and foot prints in wet cement at famed Grauman's Chinese Theater.

The custom had become almost routine in recent years, but the Sinatra magic worked a new spell.

Usually only three or four hundred spectators turn out for the ceremony, but between two and three thousand fans were on hand for the Sinatra caper.

THE CROWD was a mixture of youngsters and oldsters, with a heavy accent on dames in their 30s who once swooned for the young Sinatra during his heyday as a pop singer. Most failed to get a glimpse of the thin singer, and one nut—claiming he wanted to talk to Frank—climbed a 30-foot tree to attract his attention.

Dean Martin, who did the footprint bit last year, was there to introduce Sinatra to the throng. He observed that his buddy was joining the Italian corner of the theater's forecourt, where Sophia Loren's and his own "signatures" are immortalized in concrete.

In introducing Sinatra, Dino observed: "Big deal, Frank putting his hands and feet in wet cement. I go home like that every night. When I did this last year I got stiff before the cement."

Robert Q. Lewis Will Remove His Glasses

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Robert Q. Lewis, whose horn-rimmed glasses have been his television trademark for years, will take them off for "Night of the Tiger."

"When I wear my glasses I look like a very friendly, mischevious sort of fellow," says Lewis. "But when I take them off, I look completely different-villainous, spiteful and mean."

He's concentrating on a movie career of playing heavies.

But there's one drawback. Without his glasses, he can't see.

FPC Seeking Pipelines Stock Role

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Power Commission has again asked Congress to arm it with authority over sales of controlling stock in interstate natural gas pipeline companies.

Its stated objective is to plug a big loophole in the Natural Gas Act which allegedly permits potential monopolies and evasion of FPC price controls while the commission sits helplessly by.

The regulatory agency's jurisdiction is now restricted to the sale of a pipeline's physical assets. This bars it from outlawing stock acquisitions which nail down control of such facilities.

Chairman Joseph C. Swidler wants swift action, but he may not get it. Congress is rushing toward adjournment and could force a delay until next year. There also will be powerful industry opposition demanding to be heard.

Swidler sent a proposed draft bill to Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., of the Senate Commerce Committee. Magnuson introduced it without personally endorsing it. But he did insert in the Congressional Record for all to read, Swidler's letter of transmittal.

SWIDLER DID NOT say so, but his oft-repeated request grew out of embarrassment the commission suffered in El Paso Natural Gas Company's ill-fated 1959 acquisition of Pacific Northwest Pipeline Co.

The commission approved the merger after much legal back and forth, only to see it overturned by the Supreme Court, which ordered El Paso in April, 1964, to divest itself of PNW. This is now going on under a consent decree signed by El Paso and approved by Atty. Gen. Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach and a Salt Lake City federal judge.

El Paso cast longing eyes on PNW back in the 1950s when PNW, which serves Rocky Mountain and Pacific Northwest states and has a gas gateway to Canada, was in financial trouble. El Paso acquired 90% of PNW's stock but didn't press for merger until 1959.

THE COMMISSION first rejected the takeover but then—and this was where the embarrassment came in—had to do an about face because it had no jurisdiction over the stock purchase.

The Justice Department was in no such position. It stepped in with an anti-trust suit charging El Paso had set up a monopoly. This ended in the Supreme Court's divestiture edict. In the meantime the commission had asked—but not gotten — the stock control authority from Congress.

That is why Swidler is again beating on congressional doors. In addition to stock control authority, he wants an amendment that would absolve the commission in any anti-trust action the Justice Department might bring in a pipeline stock sale.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Brokers View Uptrend as 'Summer Rally' Start

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market pulled out of its lethargy last week and scored its best weekly gain since breaking out of the June slide. Trading was moderately active.

Brokers attributed the major share of the upswing to President Johnson's statement on the Viet Nam conflict. The experts said there had been expectations of a much larger increase in the U.S. commitment.

Wall Street's initial reactiontion to the statement was a sidewise movement during most of Wednesday afternoon but prices rallied in the final hour and finished on the upside. The rally carried over into Thursday morning but prices wilted a bit then sprang forward. Thursday morning brought more of the same heavy buying and even the normal pre-weekend profit-taking Friday failed to stop the advance.

THE UPTREND, which was accompanied by a good increase in volume, has led a number of brokers to believe that perhaps the long-awaited "summer rally" was underway at last. The influx of good economic and business news, particularly second quarter earnings statements, is expected to fuel the advance.

The technical view of the week's action was that the market, in the past few weeks, has been making a test of the June lows and now that the test has been passed a good advance is in store.

Although Wall Street has now been put at peace for a while on the Viet Nam issue, it still has a few other bullish factors to worry about. As one broker put it, "now we have to concentrate analyzing the British pound and our own economy."

DOW-JONES Industrials advanced 17.17 to 881.74, its best advance since climbing more than 20 points in the week ended July 2. Rails soared 10.16 to 207.73 and utilities tacked on 0.06 at 155.36. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index picked up 1.18 at 85.25.

Volume swelled to 22,633,890 shares from 19,118,090 shares a week before and 20,755,460 shares in the same week last year.

Of the 1,543 issues traded, 935 advanced, 57 to new 1965 highs while 454 declined, 129 to new lows.

Avco topped the active list with a gain of 2⅞ at 23⅛. Fairchild Camera continued its recent advance with a gain of 4¾ at 57½ on 359,200 shares in second place.

Union Oil of California preferred rose 1⅝ to 63⅞ on 333,900 shares in third spot. Chrysler tacked on ½ at 44½ on 321,300 shares in fourth place. Chrysler drifted lower Thursday apparently on disappointment over its second quarter profits, but it recovered on Friday.

GENERAL Motors jumped 3 points in active dealings. It reported record sales and profits for both the second quarter and first half. Ford added 1¾.

U.S. Steel soared 4 points on sharply higher second quarter profits and Bethlehem picked up 1¾, also on higher second period earnings. The two earnings reports apparently improved traders' attitude toward steel shares and Lukens rose 3¼, Jones & Laughlin 3, Youngstown Sheet 1¾, McLouth 1¾, Armco 1⅝ and Republic 1½.

Electronics were very strong. IBM soared 13 points, Motorola 7⅞, Litton 6¼, Texas Instruments 4¾, Beckman 4 and Zenith 3⅛. Honeywell dropped 1⅝ and Control Data slipped 1⅛.

RAILS met very heavy demand also. New York Central advanced 4½, Pennsylvania 3⅝, Southern Pacific 3¼, Chicago Great Western 5⅛, Louisville & Nashville 4½ and Chicago & Northwestern 7⅞.

Airlines were depressed by a Civil Aeronautics Board suggestion that the industry pass on some of it profits to consumers in the form of lower fares and better service. Trans World slipped 1¾, Northwest 2¾, Delta 1⅛, United 2¾ and American 2⅞.

AIRCRAFTS generally lost much of the gains scored in the first two and a half sessions when President Johnson reported he would make only a "limited addition" to the defense budget now before the Senate Appropriations Committee. However, Boeing managed to hold a gain of ⅝, McDonnell 1⅝, Douglas 3¼ and United Aircraft 2.

TV Ban Symbol of Racists' Rule

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Every day hundreds of persons stare at a massive television set displayed in a radio store's window. They never see a picture. If Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd has his way they never will.

Few of this country's three million whites and 15 million nonwhites have ever had the chance to view television. Only those who travel abroad are able to assess its value.

Opposition leaders in Parliament argue that the government has no right to deprive the people of a means of communication accepted by 100 countries.

THE GOVERNMENT says the country is not ready for TV and it would be too costly. It holds that people do not want their privacy invaded.

Some TV supporters believe that Verwoerd's government fears blacks and whites would have the opportunity to watch mixed races working and playing together in countries not subject to the laws of apartheid.

The radio store displays the TV set as a trade gimmick.

Robert Q. Lewis Will Remove His Glasses

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Robert Q. Lewis, whose horn-rimmed glasses have been his television trademark for years, will take them off for "Night of the Tiger."

"When I wear my glasses I look like a very friendly, mischevious sort of fellow," says Lewis. "But when I take them off, I look completely different-villainous, spiteful and mean."

He's concentrating on a movie career of playing heavies.

But there's one drawback. Without his glasses, he can't see.

FPC Seeking Pipelines Stock Role

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Power Commission has again asked Congress to arm it with authority over sales of controlling stock in interstate natural gas pipeline companies.

Its stated objective is to plug a big loophole in the Natural Gas Act which allegedly permits potential monopolies and evasion of FPC price controls while the commission sits helplessly by.

The regulatory agency's jurisdiction is now restricted to the sale of a pipeline's physical assets. This bars it from outlawing stock acquisitions which nail down control of such facilities.

Chairman Joseph C. Swidler wants swift action, but he may not get it. Congress is rushing toward adjournment and could force a delay until next year. There also will be powerful industry opposition demanding to be heard.

Swidler sent a proposed draft bill to Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., of the Senate Commerce Committee. Magnuson introduced it without personally endorsing it. But he did insert in the Congressional Record for all to read, Swidler's letter of transmittal.

SWIDLER DID NOT say so, but his oft-repeated request grew out of embarrassment the commission suffered in El Paso Natural Gas Company's ill-fated 1959 acquisition of Pacific Northwest Pipeline Co.

The commission approved the merger after much legal back and forth, only to see it overturned by the Supreme Court, which ordered El Paso in April, 1964, to divest itself of PNW. This is now going on under a consent decree signed by El Paso and approved by Atty. Gen. Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach and a Salt Lake City federal judge.

El Paso cast longing eyes on PNW back in the 1950s when PNW, which serves Rocky Mountain and Pacific Northwest states and has a gas gateway to Canada, was in financial trouble. El Paso acquired 90% of PNW's stock but didn't press for merger until 1959.

THE COMMISSION first rejected the takeover but then—and this was where thein a pipeline stock sale.

embarrassment came in—had to do an about face because it had no jurisdiction over the stock purchase.

The Justice Department was in no such position. It stepped in with an anti-trust suit charging El Paso had set up a monopoly. This ended in the Supreme Court's divestiture edict. In the meantime the commission had asked—but not gotten — the stock control authority from Congress.

That is why Swidler is again beating on congressional doors. In addition to stock control authority, he wants an amendment that would absolve the commission in any anti-trust action the Justice Department might bring

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Brokers View Uptrend as 'Summer Rally' Start

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market pulled out of its lethargy last week and scored its best weekly gain since breaking out of the June slide. Trading was moderately active.

Brokers attributed the major share of the upswing to President Johnson's statement on the Viet Nam conflict. The experts said there had been expectations of a much larger increase in the U.S. commitment.

Wall Street's initial reactiontion to the statement was a sidewise movement during most of Wednesday afternoon but prices rallied in the final hour and finished on the upside. The rally carried over into Thursday morning but prices wilted a bit then sprang forward. Thursday morning brought more of the same heavy buying and even the normal pre-weekend profit-taking Friday failed to stop the advance.

THE UPTREND, which was accompanied by a good increase in volume, has led a number of brokers to believe that perhaps the long-awaited "summer rally" was underway at last. The influx of good economic and business news, particularly second quarter earnings statements, is expected to fuel the advance.

The technical view of the week's action was that the market, in the past few weeks, has been making a test of the June lows and now that the test has been passed a good advance is in store.

Although Wall Street has now been put at peace for a while on the Viet Nam issue, it still has a few other bullish factors to worry about. As one broker put it, "now we have to concentrate analyzing the British pound and our own economy."

DOW-JONES Industrials advanced 17.17 to 881.74, its best advance since climbing more than 20 points in the week ended July 2. Rails soared 10.16 to 207.73 and utilities tacked on 0.06 at 155.36. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index picked up 1.18 at 85.25.

Volume swelled to 22,633,890 shares from 19,118,090 shares a week before and 20,755,460 shares in the same week last year.

Of the 1,543 issues traded, 935 advanced, 57 to new 1965 highs while 454 declined, 129 to new lows.

Avco topped the active list with a gain of 2⅞ at 23⅛. Fairchild Camera continued its recent advance with a gain of 4¾ at 57½ on 359,200 shares in second place.

Union Oil of California preferred rose 1⅝ to 63⅞ on 333,900 shares in third spot. Chrysler tacked on ½ at 44½ on 321,300 shares in fourth place. Chrysler drifted lower Thursday apparently on disappointment over its second quarter profits, but it recovered on Friday.

GENERAL Motors jumped 3 points in active dealings. It reported record sales and profits for both the second quarter and first half. Ford added 1¼.

U.S. Steel soared 4 points on sharply higher second quarter profits and Bethlehem picked up 1⅜, also on higher second period earnings. The two earnings reports apparently improved traders' attitude toward steel shares and Lukens rose 3¼. Jones & Laughlin 3, Youngstown Sheet 1¼, McLouth 1⅜, Armco 1⅝ and Republic 1½.

Electronics were very strong. IBM soared 13 points, Motorola 7⅞, Litton 6¼, Texas Instruments 4¾, Beckman 4 and Zenith 3⅛. Honeywell dropped 1⅝ and Control Data slipped 1⅛.

RAILS met very heavy demand also. New York Central advanced 4½, Pennsylvania 3⅝, Southern Pacific 3¼, Chicago Great Western 5⅛, Louisville & Nashville 4½ and Chicago & Northwestern 7⅞.

Airlines were depressed by a Civil Aeronautics Board suggestion that the industry pass on some of it profits to consumers in the form of lower fares and better service. Trans World slipped 1⅜, Northwest 2¼, Delta 1⅛, United 2⅜ and American 2⅞.

AIRCRAFTS generally lost much of the gains scored in the first two and a half sessions when President Johnson reported he would make only a "limited addition" to the defense budget now before the Senate Appropriations Committee. However, Boeing managed to hold a gain of ⅜, McDonnell 1⅝, Douglas 3¼ and United Aircraft 2.

TV Ban Symbol of Racists' Rule

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Every day hundreds of persons stare at a massive television set displayed in a radio store's window. They never see a picture. If Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd has his way they never will.

Few of this country's three million whites and 15 million nonwhites have ever had the chance to view television. Only those who travel abroad are able to assess its value.

Opposition leaders in Parliament argue that the government has no right to deprive the people of a means of communication accepted by 100 countries.

THE GOVERNMENT says the country is not ready for TV and it would be too costly. It holds that people do not want their privacy invaded.

Some TV supporters believe that Verwoerd's government fears blacks and whites would have the opportunity to watch mixed races working and playing together in countries not subject to the laws of apartheid.

The radio store displays the TV set as a trade gimmick.

CORE Gets Set to Step Into the Political Arena

By AUSTIN SCOTT

NEW YORK (AP)—The Congress of Racial Equality, whose name has been synonymous with direct action sit-ins, boycotts, protest marches and picket lines, is preparing to step into the political arena.

"We must be prepared," says CORE National Director James Farmer, "to put up candidates for nomination . . . and to endorse or oppose candidates for election."

The decision marks a radical policy change for the 21-year-old CORE, which just six years ago amended its bylaws to prevent any of its chapters from participating in a political campaign.

"The old way," Farmer has said, "won us the right to eat hamburgers at lunch counters and is winning us the right to vote, but has not basically affected the life of the average Negro."

The "new direction," as Farmer calls it, will back up the direct action tactics with political pressure. Demonstrations that are not backed up by political "muscle" yield "only diminishing returns," Farmer says.

* * * *

THIS NEW direction was very much in evidence at CORE's national convention, held early this month in Durham, N.C., where delegates rescinded the ban on political activity and adopted desolutions which a spokesman said:

"Affirmed the fact that the direction of the organization would be that of action in the political arena."

This, the spokesman said, will include more "Freedom Democratic Movements" in northern urban areas like Brooklyn, where the FDM is sponsoring a Negro candidate for a seat on the New York City Council.

It will also mean more intensive efforts to organize Negro communities around local issues, including supporting or opposing political candidates.

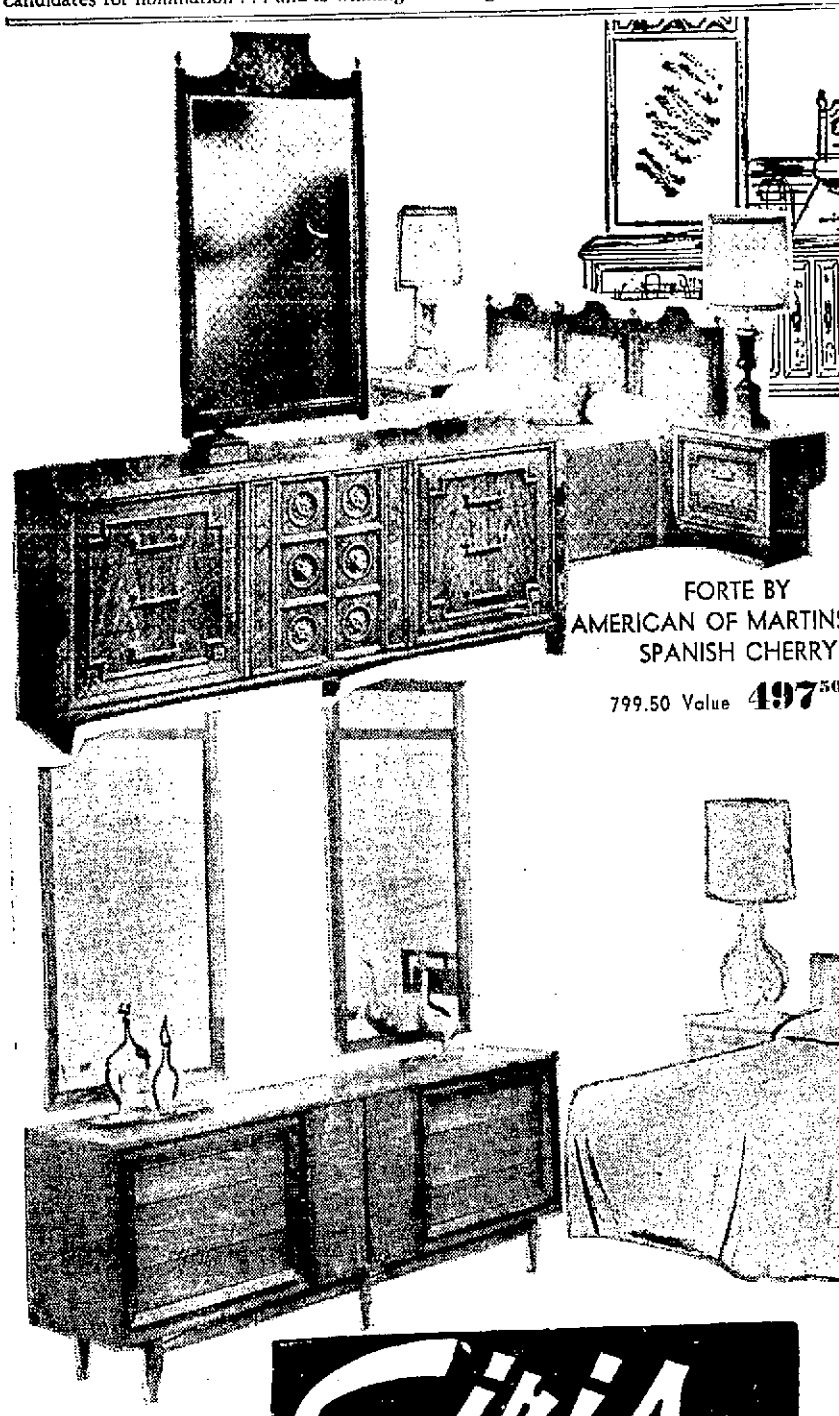

And, the spokesman said, CORE hopes to create more store front community centers, north and south, where Negroes can find legal advice, job placement services, and "immediate redress of grievances on a number of levels."

* * * *

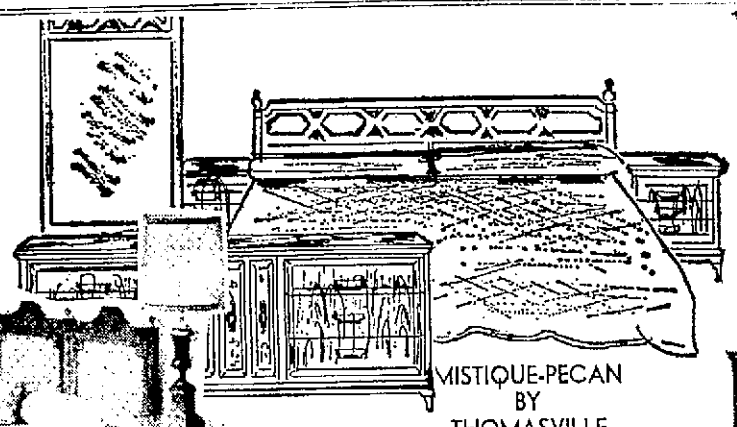

CORE OFFICIALS point out that they are not stopping their direct-action campaigns. They simply have to back up these protests more effectively.

The philosophy behind this new direction has been debated openly within CORE for about a year, the spokesman said.

A FRIEND IN NEED—BARBIE

Did you know today is Friendship Day. And you could be a friend indeed, to Barbie. Although she has millions of friends across the country, she needs a special kind right now—friends who can help her keep tabs on herself!

TRAFFIC CLERK—If you enjoy working with figures, you'll like the many interesting fact-finding and problem-solving areas in the traffic department as the movement of goods is coordinated throughout our entire operation. During our shipping season, you'll work Saturday, too, putting extra time-and-a-half dollars in your purse.

PERSONNEL (swing shift)—this is a temporary position (approx. 6 months) where you'll be typing hourly records, processing paper work and doing filing. Good typing a must.

CLERK TYPIST R&D—This is an interesting position where, as Receptionist you'll be dealing with lots of people. This job also requires top typing skills.

And Barbie will be your good "Friend" too because she offers top starting salaries, pleasant, modern offices and many free benefits.

CONTEMPO HOMES

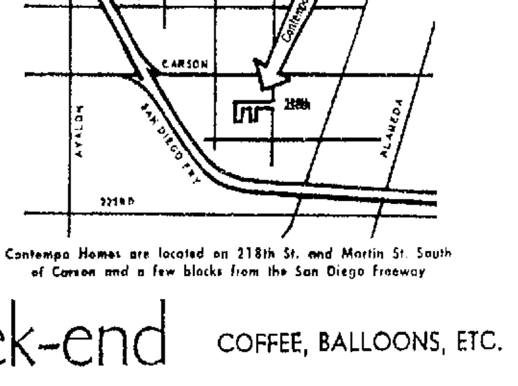

IRC's Jim Carman, respected builder and developer of fine homes in Southern California, has worked closely with the architects from the plan's conception, through the carefully detailed considerations for proper engineering, to the completion of construction of Contempo Homes. He is proud to present the uniquely modern Contempo Homes development.

Contempo homes have been built in the style of the old traditional California homes with large, cool rooms surrounding the private atrium court. The outdoor landscaping is blended with the interior effect. The style is in complete accord with the materials, a perfect match of design and structure.

DO YOU KNOW THE FACTS ON SMOG CONTROL DEVICES?

To . . .
President, Long Beach Used Car Dealers Assoc.

Dear Sir,

I am confused regarding the specific requirements pertaining to SMOG CONTROL DEVICES. Can you enlighten me on the basic requirements?

Mr. J. R. Grayson
(L. B. Resident)

Dear Sir,

1. Starting with the 1966 New Car models, a crankcase and exhaust smog control system will be required.
2. A crankcase smog control system is now required on all used cars sold which were manufactured 1955-1965.
3. Exhaust control smog devices, as soon as they are perfected, will be required on all used cars.
4. Starting in Jan., 1966, a $1 fee will be assessed when transferring cars at D.M.V., to help pay for more stringent smog device regulation.

DO YOU KNOW THE FACTS ON SMOG CONTROL DEVICES?

To . . .
President, Long Beach Used Car Dealers Assoc.

Dear Sir,

I am confused regarding the specific requirements pertaining to SMOG CONTROL DEVICES. Can you enlighten me on the basic requirements?

Mr. J. R. Grayson
(L. B. Resident)

Dear Sir,

1. Starting with the 1966 New Car models, a crankcase and exhaust smog control system will be required.
2. A crankcase smog control system is now required on all used cars sold which were manufactured 1955-1965.
3. Exhaust control smog devices, as soon as they are perfected, will be required on all used cars.
4. Starting in Jan., 1966, a $1 fee will be assessed when transferring cars at D.M.V., to help pay for more stringent smog device regulation.

THE FACES OF WAR

Vietnamese airborne trooper, Nguyen Van Ty fought at Dian Biem Phu when it was French.

Special Forces Lt. Charles Q. Williams from Vance, S.C. He was wounded four times.

A buddhist monk at prayer. War has been there all 26 years of his religious life.

A Viet Cong prisoner sits sullenly, his eyes blindfolded.

Senior Master Sergeant Laurence Allain of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., an Air Force line chief.

Fighter Pilot Capt. Paul Cohagan of Joplin, Mo. He flies the F100 Super Sabres.

Cpl. Desmond Howell, Red Cliff, Queensland, Australia, loses hats, but gets some in return.

Editor's Note: Here are some of the last sketches by Howard Brodie before his return from Viet Nam.

By HOWARD BRODIE

SAIGON (AP)—War has many faces in this tense country, to many to capture before I board my plane to return to the U.S. These are a few:

I sketched a Vietnamese trooper as he was about to take off on an operation. He told me he had fought with the French at Dien Bien Phu and had been a soldier ever since. He seemed pleased with the sketch, looked at me warmly and said, "Now you and I are brothers."

At a Special Forces camp, I sketched courageous Lt. Charles Q. Williams of Vance, S.C. His superiors told me they were recommending him for one of our nation's highest awards. He rallied Vietnamese troops, Seabees and Special Forces in an "Alamo-like" defense of Dong Xoai. He aided wounded and was wounded himself 4 times. Driving with me back to Saigon, he was jittery in the wild Vietnamese traffic and cautioned the driver to move slowly.

In a Buddhist Institute, I sketched a monk who told me he had been in the order 26 years—Viet Nam has been in war almost all those years. He was concerned mostly with religion rather than war, saying "Each man has his cross to bear," yet he prayed for peace. Faith reached deep into this land: I've noticed shrines and temples in the smallest hamlets and in farmers' fields.

In a company bivouac, I sketched an Australian "Digger," Cpl. Desmond Howell of Red Cliff, Queensland, who told me his mother gave him a "kangaroo pin" when he left and told him to "hop" home. I heard gripes among the Aussies that the Yanks were scrouging their slouch hats for souvenirs. However, the Aussies managed to scrounge a few Air Force hats in return.

On a flight line, I sketched mustached Air Force Line Chief, Senior Sgt. Lawrence "Pinky" Allain of Salt. Ste. Marie, Mich., talking on his mike to his crews. I watched his specialists maintain the planes and was tense as they attached deadly bombs to the wings.

In a "breadwagon" (pilot bus), I noticed fighter pilot Capt. Paul N. Cohagan of Joplin, Mo., as he climbed out of his Super Sabre jet (F-100) from a mission. He and fellow pilot talked excitedly, were sweaty and strained.

On an airborne attack, troopers moved by with their faces streaked in darks and greens and their helmets plummed with leaves. Afterwards, Sgt. Blair Younker of Bristow, Okla., streaked his face with dark and green camouflage paste and posed for me.

In an Army "Huey" attack helicopter, I sketched Capt. Dale LeClerc of Devils Lake, N.D. His side gunners had opened up on the attack and his rockets had spiraled forward.

On a field, I sketched a guarded VC prisoner sitting silently, blindfolded, tagged and with feet bound. Yet, as I sketched I noticed a trace of his eye at the fold and sensed that he could see.

UC Campus Report

By VERN ANTHONY
Progress Section Editor

Nearing completion in the rolling hills of Irvine Ranch are eight major buildings, nucleus of the University of California, Irvine, which opens this fall to 1,500 students.

Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich Jr. said last week the scheduled opening would not be affected by the recent labor dispute between operating engineers and contractors association; but landscaping and some of the paving probably would be delayed.

Rising as much as five stories high three miles inland from Newport Beach, the initial campus construction is visible for several miles.

ALMOST $20 MILLION in construction is in progress on the 1,510-acre campus, which is nearly three times the size of UCLA in area.

Master-planned for fast growth, UCI is expected to add a thousand students per year until an ultimate enrollment in 1990 of 27,500.

Main roadways to the campus have been completed through cooperation between the county, the Irvine Company and the university. Principal access is by Culver Road from the Santa Ana Freeway and by University Drive from MacArthur Boulevard.

THE IRVINE COMPANY is scheduled to begin construction soon on initial buildings for a town center adjacent to the campus. Groundbreaking ceremonies also have been held for the University Park residential complex nearby.

Ultimate plans call for development of a city of 150,000 population in the area surrounding the campus.

Buildings in the first increment to be completed for the campus opening can accommodate 2,000 students. Other structures are in various stages of planning and the first to be added will be completed in 1968.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION by contractor Robert E. McKee, Inc., are the library, which also temporarily will house administrative offices; Fine Arts and Humanities - Social Sciences halls; the Natural Science Building, which also will house physical sciences and engineering in the interim; the Science Lecture Hall; and the Commons, containing a 450-seat cafeteria.

C. H. Leavell & Co. is erecting the Campus Hall, including multi-purpose gymnasium-auditorium with stage, student health and university extension facilities and an outdoor swimming pool.

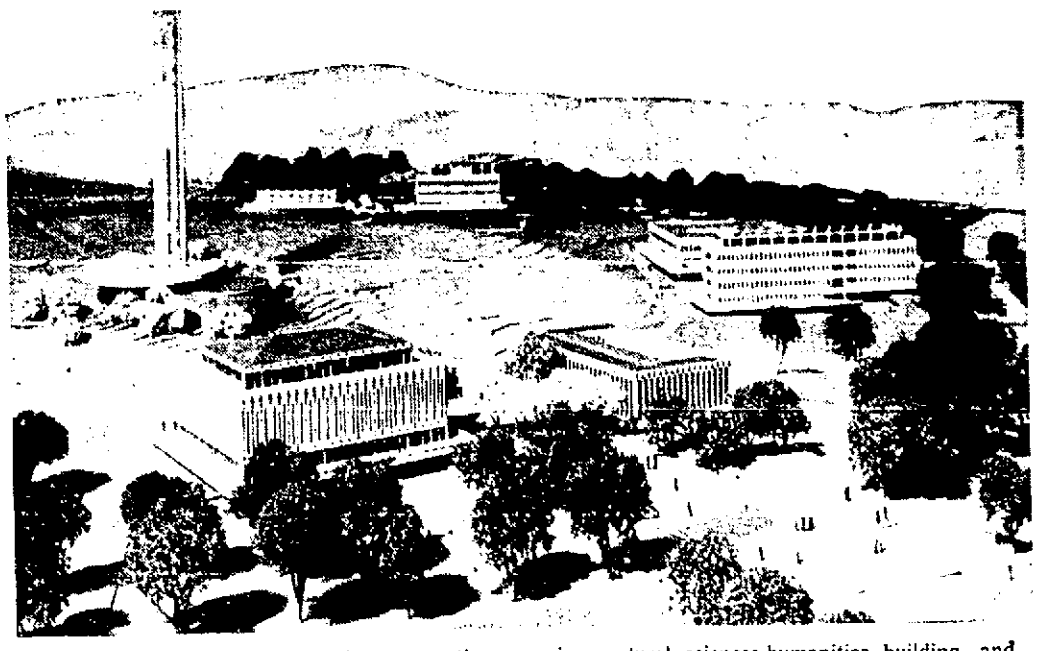

The Leavell firm also is nearing completion of 10 two-story wood frame residence cottages, accommodating 50 students each in the Mesa Court residence complex.

Bananas Can Slip From Ship to Plant at Newest Long Beach Harbor Facility

WORLD's largest banana processing plant was put into operation at Long Beach Harbor Wednesday.

The new $1.5 million banana plant with its unique dockside operation, located on Pier A, is the only facility of its kind in the U.S. able to take direct shipments of the delicate fresh fruit from freighters.

The Pier A facility, operated by Harbor Banana Distributors, Inc., was officially dedicated Wednesday.

The new fruit center can hold 80,000 boxes or 3½ million pounds of bananas, which is 200 rail car loads.

It is expected to handle 40,000 boxes of 40 pounds each, each week, according to Norf Jebbia, 49-year-old president of Harbor Banana.

Harbor Banana, with headquarters at 1420 Panorama Drive, Long Beach, was founded by 80-year-old Dominick Jebbia, the nation's biggest banana jobber.

Dominick, who has 22 great grandchildren, worked for two cents a week in a Sicilian macaroni factory as a boy.

He began selling bananas on the streets of Wheeling, West Va. as an immigant lad, and by the time he reached 17 had expanded his operation to 17 produce wagons and 30 horses.

The new straight line feed system built for the plant will send 3,000 boxes of bananas per hour from ship to cold storage or ripening in the plant.

The facility has a capacity greater than all other Jebbia plants in Long Beach, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, San Diego and Burbank combined.

The other plants are to be phased out, according to Jebbia.

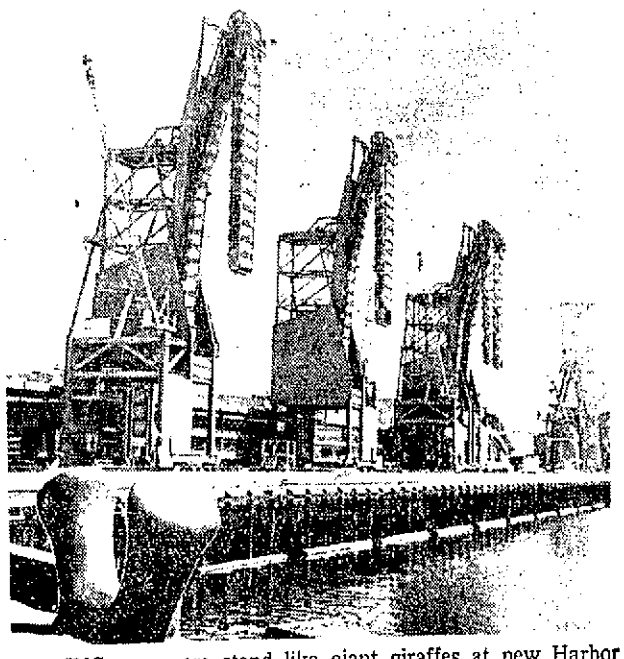

"The new Long Beach plant," he said "will insure greater quality control because of reduced and better handling of bananas and adds to our operation efficiency."

Temperatures and tropical humidity will be maintained at exact levels in the plant's 56 ripening rooms.

Eighteen of the 56 ripening rooms are arranged in a double story fashion, Jebbia explained, in order to accommodate pallets, boxes, or, if need be, stem fruit.

Idea for the family's latest enterprise was conceived two years ago by Jebbia and his father, Dominick.

AT GROUNDBREAKING

Work Started on Big 156-Unit LB Cooperative Apartment Complex

Construction started last week on the $3¼ million Sovereign Park Estates Cooperative Apartments, Inc., complex at an eight-acre site on the south side of Atherton Street, between Clark and Bellflower avenues.

Groundbreaking ceremonies Wednesday were attended by civic, Chamber of Commerce and business leaders, as well as directors and stockholders in the cooperative. Luncheon followed for an invited group at Mr. C's restaurant.

* * * *

THERE WILL BE 156 units in six main two-story complexes, five of which will be for adults only and one for families with children. Five of the complexes will be arranged in an oval shape around swimming facilities, a recreation building and landscaped area.

There will be 156 covered garages and 80 open parking spaces.

Apartments will range in sizes from 730 to 1,700 square feet, with one, two or three bedrooms. Cost varies from $14,090 to $33,490; and 98% of the units already have been sold.

Originator of the project was the Sovereign Development Co., of Redondo Beach. However, it sold its interests to Heavey Enterprises, Inc., Beverly Hills, headed by Francis Heavey.

* * * *

A MORTGAGE LOAN for $2,860,900 has been issued by Brentwood Mortgage Corp., Beverly Hills, according to Ira J. Morrison, Brentwood vice president.

Commitment was made under FHA's consumer cooperative Section 213. The 40-year term mortgage has been placed by Brentwood at a 5¼% interest rate with an eastern savings bank.

Ranking as the largest cooperative apartment project yet started in Long Beach, each homeowner in the complex owns one share of stock in the non-profit corporation. The corporation owns the entire property, which is FHA insured.

* * * *

A BOARD of directors has been elected by the stockholders. The five-person board has elected as officers M. J. Parkhurst, president; Clare McCord, vice president; Ruth O'Brien, secretary; Ellis Perlman, assistant secretary; and Ira Helm, director.

Overall maintenance will be done by contract under supervision of the board.

Completion of the first complex is scheduled for January by Millie & Severson, Inc., Long Beach, contractors; and the entire project is due to be finished in about 10 months.

Beauties Due at Realty Breakfast

Beauty before business will be the order of the day for Long Beach realty board members at the Tuesday breakfast.

The first program for August will be devoted to the upcoming International Beauty Congress, according to Sol Levin, program chairman for the 7:15 a.m. meeting at the Crown cafeteria.

Among those present will be Jemma Cruz, Miss International Beauty; Linda Taylor, Miss American Beauty; and Riki Wakeland, Miss Long Beach.

Edison Co. to Honor Buffums'

Buffums' newest department store, now ready to open its doors in Lakewood, has qualified for Southern California Edison Company's "Award for Electrical Excellence," it was announced Saturday.

Vaile G. Young, president of Buffums', will receive the special award from H. G. Hanawalt, Edison district manager, at grand opening ceremonies Monday.

The store is located at the intersection of Del Amo Boulevard and Graywood Avenue.

The coveted "Award for Electrical Excellence" is given only to all-electric commercial and professional buildings which meet high specific electrical standards, Hanawalt said.

The two-story structure, which contains 45,000 square feet, is comfort conditioned through use of electric heat pumps which automatically warm or cool areas to maintain a pre-set temperature.

Lighting throughout the store exceeds standards set by the Illuminating Engineering Society, he added.

A. R. OLMSTEAD
Leaves Imperial

A. R. Olmstead, Hardware Co. Exec, Retires

Alden R. Olmstead, 2120 Chestnut Ave., retired this weekend as credit manager at the Imperial Hardware Co., 437 Long Beach Blvd.

He had been with the firm 35½ years, coming to Long Beach from Canada in 1928. He started at the store when the firm was known as the American Avenue Hardware Co., under management of Roy W. Orris. The company later was called the Imperial Hardware Co. Present manager of the Long Beach store is G. Wade Orris.

Olmstead is past president of the former Long Beach Credit Club and is active in the First Methodist Church. He and his wife, Ruth, plan a trip to Canada this fall.

The Olmsteads were honored at a farewell luau party recently at the Orris home.

GARDEN GROVE REALTORS TO HAVE THIS NEW BOARD OFFICE BUILDING

Realty Board Honors Gerken

Glen A. Gerken, 6430 Long Beach Blvd., has been honored with a Merit Award by the Publications Committee of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors.

Awards are presented by the committee monthly to some deserving member of the board.

GLEN GERKEN

Gerken is a native of Hartford, S.D., and has held a real estate license since 1923. He was president of the Long Beach realty board in 1945 and over the years has served on many committees.

He has been connected with numerous business and civic groups in active capacities.

Gerken and his wife, Mable, have been married more than 55 years. They have two sons.

Realty Board Will Erect Office Building at Grove

Members of the Garden Grove Board of Realtors expect to have headquarters in a new building of their own by the end of this year.

Now occupying quarters at 12747 Brookhurst Way, the board will erect its own building at 10042 Lampson Ave. Construction of a two-story, 4,400 square foot structure will be started within three weeks, according to Art Guttman, board president.

The 11-year-old board has planned for the past several years for the day members could own their own building; but it was not until this year that a site was selected, and plans drawn.

Architect for the new structure is James R. Wilde, AIA.

* * * *

THE LOWER FLOOR will be devoted to general office facilities for the board, while the upper level includes a board of directors room, kitchen facilities, and a large meeting room which will be used for seminars and training programs.

The Building Committee is composed of Norman H. Ahrams, chairman, E. V. Kadow, Floyd Colglazier, John Schultz, Robert Flanagan, Charlie Bestel, Thelma Hanscom and Norman Milkes, with President Guttman and Ann Benjamine executive secretary, ex officio members.

Eleven years ago, when the board first was separated from the Santa Ana Board, headquarters was in a garage that had been loaned by a generous member. At that time the membership was less than 100; but it now stands at 536, with 89 offices to serve the area.

Newest members are Doss Jones, of Doss Jones Realty, and Don E. DeBenedictis, president of DeBenedictis Realty. Both firms have offices on Los Alamitos Boulevard at Rossmoor.

* * * *

IN COMPARING real estate sales activity then and now, Guttman stated that for the first six months in 1955 only 180 properties were sold, with a total valuation of $2,013,502 — the average sale being $11,173.

Today—11 years later, 868 sales were recorded through the volunteer multiple listing service of the board for the first six months of 1965, and the volume added up to a whopping $18½ million. The average sale is now $21,279.

Long Beach Airport's Aztec Aircraft Sales will open an office today for a Piper dealership outlet on the Bakersfield field, headed by a veteran Bakersfield flier, Gene Bridge.

An open house at the new office, with a showing of Piper aircraft, will be held Aug. 14-15, according to Bob Ceniceros, Aztec general manager.

TWO EXTRA DAYS of racing may have to be scheduled at the National Air Races in Reno next Sept. 9 through 12.

Unprecedented number of entries may force the additional days, which will be free to viewers because it's too late to print tickets, arrange staffing and provide other necessary services to cover the added period.

All five major U.S. aviation national championships will be decided at Reno, the National Aeronautic Association has ruled, making the meet the only real "National Air Races" in the country.

National championships to be determined include unlimited airplanes, 190 cubic inch midget airplanes, sport biplanes, aerial acrobatics and free (hot air) balloons.

Russian scientists now claim they will be coming out within the next few years with airplanes lifted by flapping wings.

The Soviets say they have discovered previously unknown principles which will make this possible, enhancing safety, they say, both in flight and in landing after an engine failure.

Work Started on Big 156-Unit LB Cooperative Apartment Complex

Construction started last week on the $3¼ million Sovereign Park Estates Cooperative Apartments, Inc., complex at an eight-acre site on the south side of Atherton Street, between Clark and Bellflower avenues.

Groundbreaking ceremonies Wednesday were attended by civic, Chamber of Commerce and business leaders, as well as directors and stockholders in the cooperative. Luncheon followed for an invited group at Mr. C's restaurant.

* * * *

THERE WILL BE 156 units in six main two-story complexes, five of which will be for adults only and one for families with children. Five of the complexes will be arranged in an oval shape around swimming facilities, a recreation building and landscaped area.

There will be 156 covered garages and 80 open parking spaces.

Apartments will range in sizes from 730 to 1,700 square feet, with one, two or three bedrooms. Cost varies from $14,090 to $33,490; and 98% of the units already have been sold.

Originator of the project was the Sovereign Development Co., of Redondo Beach. However, it sold its interests to Heavey Enterprises, Inc., Beverly Hills, headed by Francis Heavey.

* * * *

A MORTGAGE LOAN for $2,860,900 has been issued by Brentwood Mortgage Corp., Beverly Hills, according to Ira J. Morrison, Brentwood vice president.

Commitment was made under FHA's consumer cooperative Section 213. The 40-year term mortgage has been placed by Brentwood at a 5¼% interest rate with an eastern savings bank.

Ranking as the largest cooperative apartment project yet started in Long Beach, each homeowner in the complex owns one share of stock in the non-profit corporation. The corporation owns the entire property, which is FHA insured.

A BOARD of directors has been elected by the stockholders. The five-person board has elected as officers M. J. Parkhurst, president; Clare McCord, vice president; Ruth O'Brien, secretary; Ellis Perlman, assistant secretary; and Ira Helm, director.

Overall maintenance will be done by contract under supervision of the board.

Completion of the first complex is scheduled for January by Millie & Severson, Inc., Long Beach, contractors; and the entire project is due to be finished in about 10 months.

Beauties Due at Realty Breakfast

Beauty before business will be the order of the day for Long Beach realty board members at the Tuesday breakfast.

The first program for August will be devoted to the upcoming International Beauty Congress, according to Sol Levin, program chairman for the 7:15 a.m. meeting at the Crown cafeteria.

Among those present will be Jemma Cruz, Miss International Beauty; Linda Taylor, Miss American Beauty; and Riki Wakeland, Miss Long Beach.

Edison Co. to Honor Buffums'

Buffums' newest department store, now ready to open its doors in Lakewood, has qualified for Southern California Edison Company's "Award for Electrical Excellence," it was announced Saturday.

Vaile G. Young, president of Buffums', will receive the special award from H. G. Hanawalt, Edison district manager, at grand opening ceremonies Monday.

The store is located at the intersection of Del Amo Boulevard and Graywood Avenue.

The coveted "Award for Electrical Excellence" is given only to all-electric commercial and professional buildings which meet high specific electrical standards, Hanawalt said.

The two-story structure, which contains 45,000 square feet, is comfort conditioned through use of electric heat pumps which automatically warm or cool areas to maintain a pre-set temperature.

Lighting throughout the store exceeds standards set by the Illuminating Engineering Society, he added.

GARDEN GROVE REALTORS TO HAVE THIS NEW BOARD OFFICE BUILDING

Realty Board Honors Gerken

Glen A. Gerken, 6430 Long Beach Blvd., has been honored with a Merit Award by the Publications Committee of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors.

Awards are presented by the committee monthly to some deserving member of the board.

GLEN GERKEN

Gerken is a native of Hartford, S.D., and has held a real estate license since 1923. He was president of the Long Beach realty board in 1945 and over the years has served on many committees.

He has been connected with numerous business and civic groups in active capacities.

Gerken and his wife, Mable, have been married more than 55 years. They have two sons.

Realty Board Will Erect Office Building at Grove

Members of the Garden Grove Board of Realtors expect to have headquarters in a new building of their own by the end of this year.

Now occupying quarters at 12747 Brookhurst Way, the board will erect its own building at 10042 Lampson Ave. Construction of a two-story, 4,400 square foot structure will be started within three weeks, according to Art Guttman, board president.

The 11-year-old board has planned for the past several years for the day members could own their own building; but it was not until this year that a site was selected, and plans drawn.

Architect for the new structure is James R. Wilde, AIA.

* * * *

THE LOWER FLOOR will be devoted to general office facilities for the board, while the upper level includes a board of directors room, kitchen facilities, and a large meeting room which will be used for seminars and training programs.

The Building Committee is composed of Norman H. Abrams, chairman, E. V. Kadow, Floyd Colglazier, John Schultz, Robert Flanagan, Charlie Bestel, Thelma Hanscom and Norman Milkes, with President Guttman and Ann Benjamine executive secretary, ex officio members.

Eleven years ago, when the board first was separated from the Santa Ana Board, headquarters was in a garage that had been loaned by a generous member. At that time the membership was less than 100; but it now stands at 536, with 89 offices to serve the area.

Newest members are Doss Jones, of Doss Jones Realty, and Don E. DeBenedictis, president of DeBenedictis Realty. Both firms have offices on Los Alamitos Boulevard at Rossmoor.

* * * *

IN COMPARING real estate sales activity then and now, Guttman stated that for the first six months in 1955 only 180 properties were sold, with a total valuation of $2,013,502 — the average sale being $11,173.

Today—11 years later, 868 sales were recorded through the volunteer multiple listing service of the board for the first six months of 1965, and the volume added up to a whopping $18½ million. The average sale is now $21,279.

Satisfied Buyers Help Sol-Vista Home Sales

About half of the sales at SOL-VISTA's California Home Fair in Huntington Beach come as a result of recommendations from satisfied present home owners.

A major factor in this spectacular referral sales record is the prompt, efficient follow-up service, after the new home owner has moved into his SOL-VISTA home, states Baxter Caterson, sales director for Alco-Pacific Construction Co., developers of the project.

All too frequently, the new home buyer becomes the forgotten man the moment he has been given his keys; but at SOL-VISTA, the builder does not shirk his after sale service responsibilities, Caterson states. Result — referral sales.

• • • •

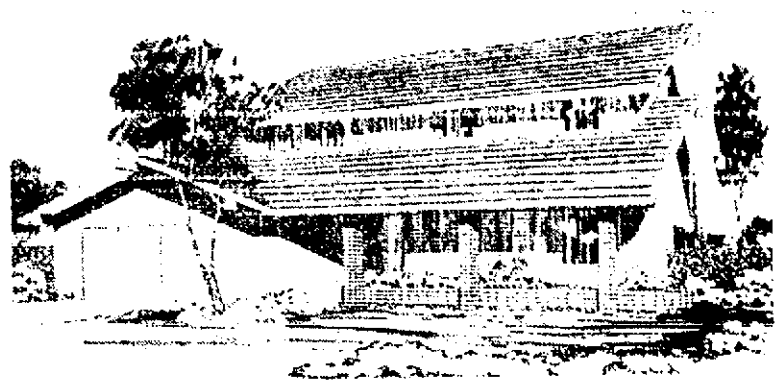

LATEST SOL-VISTA development is located in Huntington Beach about two miles north of the ocean and two and a half miles south of the new San Diego freeway.

Five floor plans with 21 different exteriors of three, four and five bedroom, two and a half bath homes are ready for immediate occupancy in the first completed unit.

The SOL-VISTA, California Home Fair homes are complete with just about every wife-saving feature that could grace a home. Among these are the latest Caloric Ultra-ray oven with meat probe and rotisserie, the range with Therm set burner, and the paper caddy. Waste King supplies the hush disposal, the Char-Glo broiler with lifetime ceramic coals for indoor barbecuing and the over sized super powered vent hood.

TIERED SINKS, decorator color formica counters with inbuilt Nutone blenders add to the warmth and charm of the hand rubbed furniture finish wood cabinets.

Models are located at 16661 Beach Blvd., Huntington Beach, and the buyers' pavilion is open from 10 to 8 daily. For phone information about these homes, telephone (714) 847-3545.

First Major Buildings on UCI Campus Set for Fall Opening

library, game room and laundry.

The Central Plant for utilities and a tunnel system connecting each of the major buildings for heating and cooling, communications and electrical equipment are being constructed by Merco Construction Engineers, Inc.

A classical style, but unusual architecture distinguishes the buildings which are to open this fall. Each building rises from a terraced pedestal. Pre-cast concrete sunshades and exposed aggregate panels form the exterior walls of the reenforced concrete structures.

THE ASSOCIATED ARCHITECTS, William Pereira, Blurock & Ellerbroek, and Jones & Emmons, conceived the distinctive sunshades both for the beauty of their architectural form and for their functional utility of shadowing the coastal sunlight and the area's prevailing "white sky."

Tinted window glass set in each of the sunshades enhances the view from each of the buildings of the surrounding Irvine Ranch and its rolling hills and the more distant Santa Ana Mountains.

Work on the buildings is in final stages of painting and completing of interiors. Landscaping of the building areas, the gateway plaza entrance and a portion of the central campus park is under way.

ON HAND THIS FALL will be a 115-member faculty.

Courses will be offered on a quarterly basis to students ranging from freshman to post-graduate levels.

Impact of the university will be felt throughout the county, for Chancellor Aldrich has stated that UCI's purpose is to educate, not only its students, but society as a whole.

Links already have been forged between campus and community with organization of several support groups: UCI Town and Gown, Friends of UCI, Friends of the UCI Library, The Big I Athletic Boosters, UCI Public Relations Advisory Council and the UCI Liaison Committee of the Newport Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The Irvine campus will seek to avoid the pitfalls of "bigness" by grouping its students according to their academic interests, rather than by where they' live.

THE PLANNED NEW CITY, about to emerge from an architect's dream, might well be a blueprint for America's urban future, as was pointed out in a recent article in Pageant magazine. Such planning is deemed vital, Pageant says, since U.S. cities are growing so fast that by 1980 some 75% of the population is expected to be urban.

As planned by Pereira, shopping in the new city will center on a mall, with parking on the periphery, thus avoiding the trap of lines of stores along a main street.

Adjacent to the shopping area will be a "green strip"—a ribbon of streams, ponds and meadows that flows through the city.

The look-alike houses of postwar communities will be shunned. There will be a variety of apartments and residences in the same area, thus permitting householders to change their accommodations without moving from their chosen locations.

AS TO TRANSPORTATION, there will be freeways running through the property, with arterials designed for facility in getting traffic on and off the freeways. City streets are being planned to absorb business traffic without crowding the arterials.

Planners have not overlooked the necessity for earning a living in their model city. Six thousand acres have been provided for industrial planis, with Ford, Douglas Aircraft and Collins Radio already moing in; but Irvine will not welcome foundries, refineries, or other industries that might produce smog and blight.

Records Set by Petrolane

Petrolane Gas Service, Inc., 1600 E. Hill St., Signal Hill, reports record sales and earnings for the 12 months ended June 30.

Sales were $40,614,689, up from $32,23,397 in 1964. Net earnings were $2,739,764, or $1.58 per share, a 15% increase over the $2,377,237, or $1.38 per share, a year ago.

In June, Petrolane earned $2,475,676, or $1.42 per share. In the same months of the prior fiscal year, net earnings were $2,152,117, or $1.25 per share.

R. J. Munzer, president, stated that record sales and earnings reflect increasing demand for liquefied petroleum gas in the company's 30-state marketing area, larger volume sales to wholesale accounts, and good gains in its Agricultural Chemical Division.

First Major Buildings on UCI Campus Set for Fall Opening

library, game room and laundry.

The Central Plant for utilities and a tunnel system connecting each of the major buildings for heating and cooling, communications and electrical equipment are being constructed by Merco Construction Engineers, Inc.

A classical style, but unusual architecture distinguishes the buildings which are to open this fall. Each building rises from a terraced pedestal. Pre-cast concrete sunshades and exposed aggregate panels form the exterior walls of the reenforced concrete structures.

THE ASSOCIATED ARCHITECTS, William Pereira, Blurock & Ellerbroek, and Jones & Emmons, conceived the distinctive sunshades both for the beauty of their architectural form and for their functional utility of shadowing the coastal sunlight and the area's prevailing "white sky."

Tinted window glass set in each of the sunshades enhances the view from each of the buildings of the surrounding Irvine Ranch and its rolling hills and the more distant Santa Ana Mountains.

Work on the buildings is in final stages of painting and completing of interiors. Landscaping of the building areas, the gateway plaza entrance and a portion of the central campus park is under way.

ON HAND THIS FALL will be a 115-member faculty.

Courses will be offered on a quarterly basis to students ranging from freshman to post-graduate levels.

Impact of the university will be felt throughout the county, for Chancellor Aldrich has stated that UCI's purpose is to educate, not only its students, but society as a whole.

Links already have been forged between campus and community with organization of several support groups: UCI Town and Gown, Friends of UCI, Friends of the UCI Library, The Big I Athletic Boosters, UCI Public Relations Advisory Council and the UCI Liaison Committee of the Newport Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The Irvine campus will seek to avoid the pitfalls of "bigness" by grouping its students according to their academic interests, rather than by where they live.

THE PLANNED NEW CITY, about to emerge from an architect's dream, might well be a blueprint for America's urban future, as was pointed out in a recent article in Pageant magazine. Such planning is deemed vital, Pageant says, since U.S. cities are growing so fast that by 1980 some 75% of the population is expected to be urban.

As planned by Pereira, shopping in the new city will center on a mall, with parking on the periphery, thus avoiding the trap of lines of stores along a main street.

Adjacent to the shopping area will be a "green strip"—a ribbon of streams, ponds and meadows that flows through the city.

The look-alike houses of postwar communities will be shunned. There will be a variety of apartments and residences in the same area, thus permitting householders to change their accommodations without moving from their chosen locations.

AS TO TRANSPORTATION, there will be freeways running through the property, with arterials designed for facility in getting traffic on and off the freeways. City streets are being planned to absorb business traffic without crowding the arterials.

Planners have not overlooked the necessity for earning a living in their model city. Six thousand acres have been provided for industrial plants, with Ford, Douglas Aircraft and Collins Radio already moing in; but Irvine will not welcome foundries, refineries, or other industries that might produce smog and blight.

Records Set by Petrolane

Petrolane Gas Service, Inc., 1600 E. Hill St., Signal Hill, reports record sales and earnings for the 12 months ended June 30.

Sales were $40,614,689, up from $32,23,397 in 1964. Net earnings were $2,739,764, or $1.58 per share, a 15% increase over the $2,377,237, or $1.38 per share, a year ago.

In June, Petrolane earned $2,475,676, or $1.42 per share. In the same months of the prior fiscal year, net earnings were $2,152,117, or $1.25 per share.

R. J. Munzer, president, stated that record sales and earnings reflect increasing demand for liquefied petroleum gas in the company's 30-state marketing area, larger volume sales to wholesale accounts, and good gains in its Agricultural Chemical Division.

GEORGE M. HOLSTEIN & SONS 40 YEARS OF BUILDING

A DEVELOPMENT BY GEORGE M. HOLSTEIN & SONS

Growing Room Big Feature of Homes

MEDITERRANEAN INFLUENCE
This model of a Showcase Home in Westminster shows the Mediterranean influence. The large homes are offered from $25,950, on Hazard Avenue at Brookhurst.

One of the many home features which attracted favorable comment from prospective buyers at the recent initial showing of Showcase Homes was the "growing room," according to Frank McFarland Sr., sales agent for the development in Westminster.

The "growing room," McFarland explained, can be utilized in a variety of ways to suit the individual needs of a family, from a two or three-bedroom suite to a rumpus or hobby room, and it can be changed over the years to meet the family requirements. The "growing room" is a feature incorporated into many of the plans available, he added.

* * * *

ALSO ATTRACTING favorable comment from viewers was the "custom completion" plan offered at the development, which gives the buyer the opportunity to choose many of the custom details and planning of the house. McFarland pointed out that an early selection insures the buyer a wider choice in the selection of materials, etc.

The new Medallion development is located on Hazard Ave. at Brookhurst, and the homes contain up to six bedrooms, ranging in price from $25,950. All-electric kitchens are fully-equipped with a variety of built-in appliances and the homes contain numerous features, as approved by the buyer.

* * * *

THE HOMES are built on spacious, terraced lots with room for a swimming pool and a wide variety of exterior stylings are available. Plans include one and two-story designs with three or four bedrooms and multiple bath arrangements, family rooms, separate dining rooms and master bedroom suites.

Growing Room Big Feature of Homes

MEDITERRANEAN INFLUENCE
This model of a Showcase Home in Westminster shows the Mediterranean influence. The large homes are offered from $25,950, on Hazard Avenue at Brookhurst.

One of the many home features which attracted favorable comment from prospective buyers at the recent initial showing of Showcase Homes was the "growing room," according to Frank McFarland Sr., sales agent for the development in Westminster.

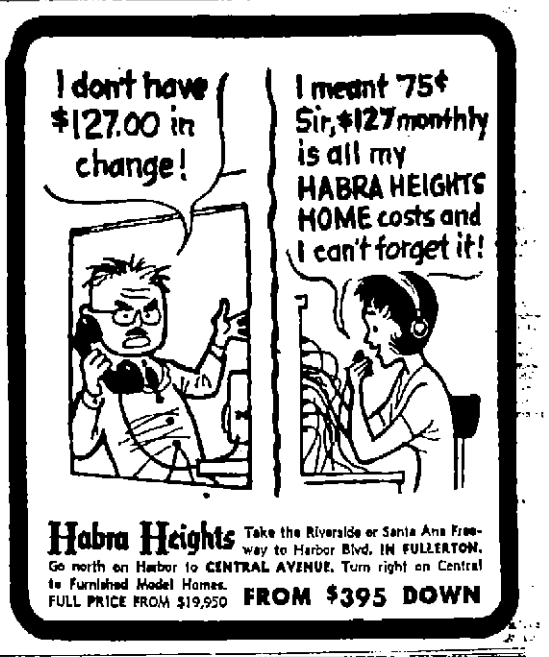

The "growing room," McFarland explained, can be utilized in a variety of ways to suit the individual needs of a family, from a two or three-bedroom suite to a rumpus or hobby room, and it can be changed over the years to meet the family requirements. The "growing room" is a feature incorporated into many of the plans available, he added.

* * * *

ALSO ATTRACTING favorable comment from viewers was the "custom completion" plan offered at the development, which gives the buyer the opportunity to choose many of the custom details and planning of the house. McFarland pointed out that an early selection insures the buyer a wider choice in the selection of materials, etc.

The new Medallion development is located on Hazard Ave. at Brookhurst, and the homes contain up to six bedrooms, ranging in price from $25,950. All-electric kitchens are fully-equipped with a variety of built-in appliances and the homes contain numerous features, as approved by the buyer.

The homes, take the Riverside Freeway to Lincoln Ave., then north on Tustin Ave. to Santa Ana Canyon Road and drive west to the models.

Habra Heights Take the Riverside or Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd. IN FULLERTON. Go north on Harbor to CENTRAL AVENUE. Turn right on Central to Furnished Model Homes.

Privacy and Luxury in Executive Homes

Popularity of the Influential Orange Executive Series homes may be attributed to quiet, protected surroundings of the privately-walled community, according to Mrs. Gene Harding of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the Butler-Harbour development.

Block fencing is another of the bonus "extras" included in the total price of the homes. Front yard landscaping and sprinkler system are also included with the purchase of every home, she explained. Refrigerated air conditioning for year round comfort is included in the price.

New Park to Boost Area Home Values

El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach were originally designed and planned to harmonize with the environment of the adjacent new municipal park now under construction, according to Doreen Smith, project sales manager for S & S Construction Co.

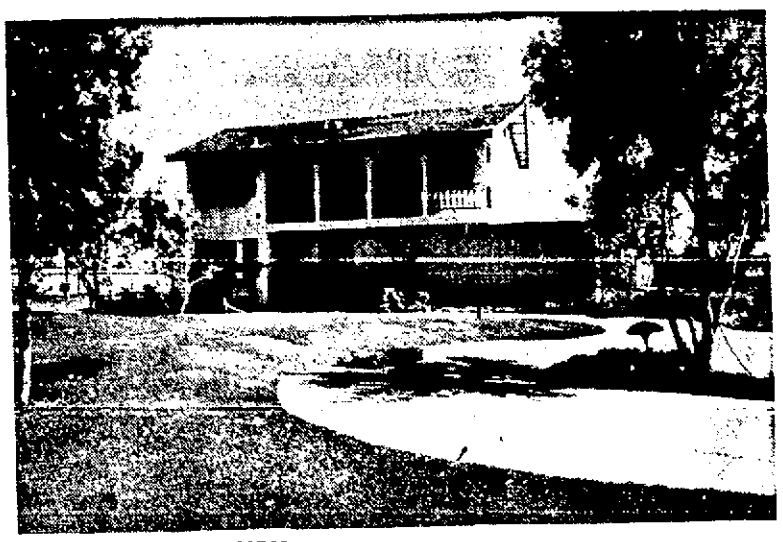

"Construction on El Dorado Park East, as the new city recreational area is to be called, was begun recently," Mrs. Smith said. "Its presence will bring beauty and increased land values to our development, just as the builders anticipated when these homes were first planned and designed."

El Dorado Park East will provide 441 acres of outdoor-type landscaping, when finished, that will incorporate a stream running between two lakes. It is being created to provide an "outdoors" atmosphere for those who have not the time to visit the mountains as regularly as desired.

I, P-T's COOK BOOK JUDGES

They have excellent taste!

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

It isn't just Mariner IV that's cruising around Mars these days . . . cooking aromas are spiraling into outer-space, as recipes for the Eleventh Annual, I, P-T Cook Book are being judged.

The post office did a bit of whirling, too, Sunday, July 18—closing date for entries. Some 1,062 recipes cleared the office that night. The cook book will be published Sunday, Sept. 5. The grand prize winner will receive an O'Keefe & Merritt Contempo Range; three cash prizes also will be awarded in each category.

Both women (AND MEN) responded en masse . . . recipes have been outstanding. Final judging on Aug. 10, by a panel of five home economists, will follow selection of 10 recipes (one from each classification) by 37 women's and three men's organizations.

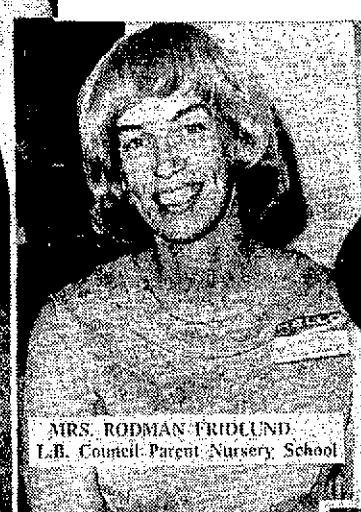

The five final judges: Mmes. Ruth Bateman, food consultant and author, Whittier; Beatrice Erickson, chairman, home economics department, Stephen White Junior High School, Torrance; Martha Kimball, supervisor of home economics, Western Research Kitchens, Los Angeles; Misses Marilyn Vanderwarf, associate professor home economics, Long Beach State College; and Barbara K. Duffy, director of home economics, Southern California Edison Co., Long Beach.

THESE NEWSPAPERS hosted a tea several weeks ago for representatives of these clubs, when they were instructed in their official contest duties. A representative from each of the judging clubs is pictorially presented here today.

Do the I, P-T cookbook judges know a baked Alaska from a broiled trout, a shirred egg from fried egg plant?

Are they really equipped to appreciate prize culinary concoctions?

If you're one of 1,062 women who sent in a favorite recipe for judging, you've probably asked yourself these same questions.

Well, relax—the judges have been judged and not found wanting.

A recent telephone survey proves the 40 judges (pictured here and on page W-3) are all great food fanciers. And what better recommendation could there be for the test kitchen judges than that?

HERE'S A composite picture of the typical clubwoman judge as brought out by the survey.

A whiz in the kitchen, she learned to cook by trial and lots of error . . . prefers aprons only on Sunday . . . gets minimum of family KP help . . . likes the challenge of stirring-up new dishes . . . believes men are clever at bringing home the bacon—but not cooking it.

The majority of those surveyed rated themselves "good" to "tops" in cooking and, even the more modest minority, allowed that their families "never miss a meal."

Few were staunch supporters of their mother's or their mother-in-law's cooking. Generally, they believed their own to be superior—in food value, variety, just plain taste.

. . . And here's more about judging good taste

visited her last summer," one matron informed us. "After a week of good, old-fashioned, plain meat and potato cooking—he changed his tune.

"Guess his taste has become more cosmopolitan."

"MODERN METHODS of marketing, storage, etc., have put many new dishes on the American table," agreed a young grandmother.

"There was a time when meals were restricted to seasonal things, seasonings were limited and no one fussed with foreign foods.

"I wouldn't go back for anything."

In one judge's opinion: "Modern ways not only have changed the food picture—but the kitchen, too."

"When men don aprons, it's usually not because they want to help out or have become captivated with creating a gourmet's gumbo, or such," she avered, "it's because they like pushing buttons and turning dials.

"Modern kitchen gadgets appeal to their engineering oriented minds."

Besides knowing their tumaric from their thyme and their curry from their cumin, the judges proved to be generous with sage views—sometimes even peppery—on food and family.

For example, one observed: "Becoming a cook is easy as pie.

"Just get married—and you'll learn quickly."

"Correct!" said another. "Culinary triumph doesn't come from classroom instruction or directions from mama, or even bouts with a cookbook. It evolves from hungry hours over a hot kitchen stove."

A FOOTNOTE TO NEW YORK?

The big fashion kick in Paris

It's giddy, young—booted and hooded . . . it's leggy and languorous, supple and snappy—always exciting . . . there are looks inspired by the horsewoman, the cosmonaut and the cavalier. Paris — like New York — wants all women to be fashion happy this fall.

AFTER-SKI OUTFIT by Paris designer Jacques Heim . . . here worn with tiger coat. It's the new total look . . . the same kind of put-together, matching game seen in New York collections in July.

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
Director, Women's News

Paris, they say, is THE last word in fashion.

Looks like it's particularly true this season. Judging from wirephotos pouring in the past week from the Paris showings, the French couturiers ARE last on many of their fall fashion statements. . . .

We saw them first during unveiling of the New York collections in July. Maybe this country is, indeed, taking some of the zing out of the Paris label.

From Paris comes word of the leggy look, with jacquard tights matching short tunic and bloomers (Heim) . . . and of legs that are "dressed" as hems go up — like Esterel's show-stopping gaiters that snap on for the street, snap off for inside . . . they speak of the total look, with everything matching from head to toe.

There are skinny tube coats with high seaming (Ricci) . . . suits and jackets that skim the hip line (Lapidus) . . . double-breasted coats with high seaming (Jacqueline Godard) . . . for day, knit turtlenecks—embroidered for evening.

MOST COLLECTIONS unveiled thus far are full of Courreges-isms (we saw his fashion architectural influence in many New York collections). Esterel apes Courrege, called by some the Frank Lloyd Wright of the fashion world, by hiking skirts three and one-half inches above the knee . . . Feraud is all low waists spiced with the sportive look . . . Madeleine de Rauch shows young, bouncy clothes—like her above-the-knee tunic skirt in beige gabardine over sweater and bermuda shorts of beige and white jersey tweed.

Also making a rerun: trenchcoats complete with Marlene Dietrich lapels and suits with trenchcoat belted jackets and swingy skirts, warm with turtleneck sweaters and ribbed stockings (Goma).

And like in New York hairdos are diminishing in height and width . . . the young individualist (and they're setting today's fashion pace) are letting their hair fall naturally for day, adding chignons at night . . . and hats, once again, are order of the day. Some of the newest says Paris (they were "new" last month in New York, too), are bonnet or hoods hiding all the hair . . . also turbans and scarf hats giving the same coverage.

So far, Paris collections seem to have more rehash than dash, but some of the big names are yet to show. Maybe by the time showings are concluded Wednesday, Paris may shake the world with a new shape.

Anyway, we're waiting for that "last word."

A Beauty Hint

Give your skin a delightful bloom to last through the driest and hottest of summers. Damp a cloth in the cold water from your refrigerator and smooth it over your face and neck, or better still, cool and use your bottle of lemon Jelvyn instead. Feel the skin respond to the refreshing Jelvyn toning action. Now, to hold the bloom, smooth on your oil of Olay and use it always under your make-up to protect against the weather and to give the skin that young dewy look.

Mice may prove women better astronauts

By DONALD P. MYERS
United Press International

DENVER — After working with a "kookie strain of mice" for a year, research psychologist Dr. Marion Philippus suspects women could be better astronauts than men.

The space key could be a sex hormone.

Dr. Philippus has finished the first phase of altitude research at National Jewish Hospital in Denver—itself a mile high—on a group of $8-a-pair mice. He calls them "fatties."

His main argument is that female mice function better and are less affected by rapid transportation to high altitudes.

"I suspect there is some reason the Russians are using women astronauts," Dr. Philippus said. "I can't believe it's just a whim that they had a woman go up there."

Valentina Tereshkova orbited the earth 48 times in Russia's Vostok VI June 16-19, 1963. She is the only woman among Russia's 11 astronauts.

All 10 American astronauts have been men, and no women are in U. S. space training.

On the second phase of his space research, Dr. Philippus will try to find out if estrogen—the female sex hormone — makes women better equipped generally for space flight.

During the first year of his research, he has put the fat mice in a small chamber where atmospheric conditions at 29,000 feet are simulated.

"Males experience sharp drops in appetite and performance," Dr. Philippus said, "while females frequently show no effects in their ability to take nourishment."

THE PROBLEM is anoxia, or oxygen starvation. It is created by reducing the amount of oxygen available for aeration of the blood.

"The first thing that happens when people experience anoxia is loss of appetite," he said. "The desire to eat is knocked out."

Philippus said both male and female mice are taken on their simulated space trip every day for a month in his experiments. Under controlled anoxia, the males drop off eating, but females eat twice as much.

"The fatties eat themselves to death," he said.

"It's probably the hormone estrogen that makes the females eat more," he said. "It also may be the hormone that makes them resistent to anoxia. If we inject estrogen into the males and they perform well, we wonder if women ought not to be the astronauts."

PHILIPPUS said he uses fat mice because bodily changes are much more obvious and easy to observe.

He said his fat mice are three times the normal size. The fat mice weigh about 80 grams, compared with 25 grams for the regular rodents.

"Compared with humans, it's like a 100-pound person weighing 300 pounds," he said.

He said the United States had women in initial astronaut training plans, but phased them out.

"I don't know why the women were dropped," he said. "There was no explanation."

He said he contacted the national aeronautics and space administration on the possibilities of his research.

"They asked me to submit a plan for research," he said.

Mice may prove women better astronauts

By DONALD P. MYERS
United Press International

DENVER — After working with a "kookie strain of mice" for a year, research psychologist Dr. Marion Philippus suspects women could be better astronauts than men.

The space key could be a sex hormone.

Dr. Philippus has finished the first phase of altitude research at National Jewish Hospital in Denver—itself a mile high—on a group of $8-a-pair mice. He calls them "fatties."

His main argument is that female mice function better and are less affected by rapid transportation to high altitudes.

"I suspect there is some reason the Russians are using women astronauts," Dr. Philippus said. "I can't believe it's just a whim that they had a woman go up there."

Valentina Tereshkova orbited the earth 48 times in Russia's Vostok VI June 16-19, 1963. She is the only woman among Russia's 11 astronauts.

All 10 American astronauts have been men, and no women are in U.S. space training.

On the second phase of his space research, Dr. Philippus will try to find out if estrogen—the female sex hormone — makes women better equipped generally for space flight.

During the first year of his research, he has put the fat mice in a small chamber where atmospheric conditions at 29,000 feet are simulated.

"Males experience sharp drops in appetite and performance," Dr. Philippus said, "while females frequently show no effects in their ability to take nourishment."

THE PROBLEM is anoxia, or oxygen starvation. It is created by reducing the amount of oxygen available for aeration of the blood.

"The first thing that happens when people experience anoxia is loss of appetite," he said. "The desire to eat is knocked out."

Philippus said both male and female mice are taken on their simulated space trip every day for a month in his experiments. Under controlled anoxia, the males drop off eating, but females eat twice as much.

"The fatties eat themselves to death," he said.

"It's probably the hormone estrogen that makes the females eat more," he said. "It also may be the hormone that makes them resistent to anoxia. If we inject estrogen into the males and they perform well, we wonder if women ought not to be the astronauts."

PHILIPPUS said he uses fat mice because bodily changes are much more obvious and easy to observe.

He said his fat mice are three times the normal size. The fat mice weigh about 80 grams, compared with 25 grams for the regular rodents.

"Compared with humans, it's like a 100-pound person weighing 300 pounds," he said.

He said the United States had women in initial astronaut training plans, but phased them out.

"I don't know why the women were dropped," he said. "There was no explanation."

He said he contacted the national aeronautics and space administration on the possibilities of his research.

"They asked me to submit a plan for research," he said.

Rouault print show opens at L. B. Museum

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Fifty prints by Georges Rouault (1871-1958) go on display today at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

Called the greatest religious artist of the 20th century, Rouault originally was a member of the Fauves, but broke away from that group's bold color and injected heavy, Gothic black lines, resembling stained glass, into his compositions.

Crucifixions and portraits of Christ are juxtaposed with studies of prostitutes and corrupt officials to create pictorial denunciations of society's evils.

The prints are parts of his four series, La Cirque, Passion, Pere Ubu and Miserere.

Also on diisplay is Part III of the summer program of "Selections From the Museum Collection," made up of paintings, drawings, prints and collages by Southern California artists Hans Erni, Edgar Ewing, Ernest Freed and Dean Spille.

Over a period of 13 years the museum has acquired more than 600 works, most of them by contemporary Southern California artists. Many of the pieces of art are donations from personal collections.

Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, 1 to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays, closed Mondays. Admission is free. The exhibits will remain through Aug. 29.

Los Angeles County Museum of Art is full of such a number of things . . . that it's possible to visit the Plaza and three pavilions at 5905 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, a number of times, and still find surprises.

The Plaza has a number of large sculptures, contemporary and classic, exhibited thereon. In the western corner is a garden with an arcade of Romanesque columns, a Della Robbia glazed terra cotta relief, and several Baroque statues. On the opposite side of the Plaza, one looks down on a complex of Calder mobiles, moved by streams of water.

Adding to the plot build-up is a herd of pigs and the flash from a tourist's camera which is mistaken for a sign from heaven.

Op art pops up... on home front

By MARY NETH
I. P-T Home Furnishings Editor

SHIFTY DECOR (above) changes shape and tone as viewer moves from side to side, backward or forward. Optical art at illusive best, vignette is set off by stripes, slats and color—rose, cyclamen, hyacinth and white.

LINING UP a room setting op-fashion (right) means shifting to stripes. Down wall and across floor, designer has cleverly alternated uneven black and white bands. To add to fun, T-cushion lounge chair is splashed with "lemon peel".

At-home op art caused some blinking of eyes at a recent exhibit in Chicago's National Design Center.

And well it should have. The visual vignettes truly were optical shockers. Bold colors, unusual angles, circles and squares added up to settings which jumped and jangled.

The fun exhibit, introducing U.S. Rubber's new home furnishing lines, was created by Ving Smith, A.I.D., who summed up the daring new look like this:

"MAN IS CHANGING, not physically perhaps, but certainly our sophisticated generation has a new sensibility of eye. Optical art will open our eyes to new delights in the world around us.

"It will certainly influence interior design—just as cubism was a major influence of the home of the '30s.

And how does the new "op look" look? Well, it looks different—from every angle. As the viewer steps in any direction, the setting changes in appearance; takes on a different composition, color and contrast.

TO ADD TO the visual impact of the Chicago exhibit, stagehands, dressed as magicians, performed color changes by turning background panels, switching carpeting and upholstery fabrics.

Will homes of the future go all out for op? Some well may.

There's a certain appealing sorcery to the new look of optical vistas and shifting planes.

But, if op decor really takes over, we bet homes will add a room—a no-look, no-color room, for resting one's eyes.

She learned to love Japan despite the differences

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

"I miss my 'family' terribly—and the rice and green tea," said Diana Ceko, daughter of Mrs. Rita Ceko, 3628 Countryclub Drive, recently returned from 11 months in Tokyo.

The Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo student lived with a Japanese family while she attended Waseda University under the California State College International Program.

"I went into culture shock when I first arrived," said Miss Ceko. "Everything was so different—sleeping on the floor, the food, the language. But one of the outstanding things about Japan is the kindness of the people and I soon learned to love it."

"You really grow to appreciate what you have here," Miss Ceko continued. "Japan is not a rich country and even the upper middle class do not have cars, central heating or large homes."

She found that the Japanese make the most out of what they have and she learned to like kelp, bamboo shoots, octopus and squid. Her family served bread for breakfast, noodles for lunch and rice as the main dish for dinner. Many of the older families still serve rice three times a day.

MR. AND MRS. Toyo Hiko Kawakami and their 14-year-old daughter, Yuriko, are Miss Ceko's Japanese family. Mr. Kawakami is export manager for a camera company.

Yuriko, like most Japanese, would like to visit the U.S. and would particularly like to study piano here when she graduates from the university.

The Kawakamis wear western clothes to business and outside their home and kimonos inside. According to Miss Ceko, Japanese girls like wearing the kimono best "because the boys think they are so pretty in them."

Students from San Diego to Humboldt colleges attended Waseda, where they took classes in Japanese language, history, literature, art, theater, music, and religion.

DURING the Viet Nam demonstrations at the university, the American students were very well treated. "They were protesting the country, not the people," said Miss Ceko.

The traveler's biggest shock on her return was "no people!" Tokyo is so crowded —the streets, the stores, the train stations —Long Beach seems quite deserted in comparison. On one 14-hour train trip, the train was so jammed that Miss Ceko and her friends stood all the way.

Because the Japanese have no yards and homes are small, everything in Long Beach looks big and beautiful to the returnee.

"Boy! My house looks like a palace," she said.

Sometimes you just don't know

When a defender drops a high card the presumption is that he did not hold a low card. Declarer should study the play to determine the possible card combinations that would have led to that high card play and then apply the principle of restricted choice to see which combination was most likely.

Today we have the same North and South hands as yesterday and South finds himself at the same six heart contract against the same opening lead. The only difference is that we have juggled the East-West trump holdings a trifle, so that when South plays the ace of trumps he drops the eight and seven and when he leads a low trump toward dummy West plays the ten.

South knows that the ten was played from king-jack-ten; king-ten or jack-ten. If it came from king-jack-ten South is not going to make his slam; if it came from jack-ten or king-ten South must guess correctly in order to bring home the bacon.

IN THEORY the principle of restricted choice calls for rising with the queen. In practice West would be inclined to play the king from king-ten as an automatic play. That is unless West is a real expert. A real expert would visualize the exact situation and duck like a shot with the king-ten combination while he might well have played the jack from jack-ten.

Assuming that West is a good enough player to play the ten quickly from king-ten, South should rise with dummy's queen in accordance with the principle of restricted choice. In actual play he should probably duck.

Which play would win today? We don't know. We made up the hand and did not show the king and jack of hearts.

Yuriko, like most Japanese, would like to visit the U.S. and would particularly like to study piano here when she graduates from the university.

The Kawakamis wear western clothes to business and outside their home and kimonos inside. According to Miss Ceko, Japanese girls like wearing the kimono best "because the boys think they are so pretty in them."

Students from San Diego to Humboldt colleges attended Waseda, where they took classes in Japanese language, history, literature, art, theater, music, and religion.

DURING the Viet Nam demonstrations at the university, the American students were very well treated. "They were protesting the country, not the people," said Miss Ceko.

The traveler's biggest shock on her return was "no people!" Tokyo is so crowded —the streets, the stores, the train stations —Long Beach seems quite deserted in comparison. On one 14-hour train trip, the train was so jammed that Miss Ceko and her friends stood all the way.

Because the Japanese have no yards and homes are small, everything in Long Beach looks big and beautiful to the returnee.

"Boy! My house looks like a palace," she said.

Sometimes you just don't know

When a defender drops a high card the presumption is that he did not hold a low card. Declarer should study the play to determine the possible card combinations that would have led to that high card play and then apply the principle of restricted choice to see which combination was most likely.

Today we have the same North and South hands as yesterday and South finds himself at the same six heart contract against the same opening lead. The only difference is that we have juggled the East-West trump holdings a trifle, so that when South plays the ace of trumps he drops the eight and seven and when he leads a low trump toward dummy West plays the ten.

South knows that the ten was played from king-jack-ten; king-ten or jack-ten. If it came from king-jack-ten South is not going to make his slam; if it came from jack-ten or king-ten South must guess correctly in order to bring home the bacon.

IN THEORY the principle of restricted choice calls for rising with the queen. In practice West would be inclined to play the king from king-ten as an automatic play. That is unless West is a real expert. A real expert would visualize the exact situation and duck like a shot with the king-ten combination while he might well have played the jack from jack-ten.

Assuming that West is a good enough player to play the ten quickly from king-ten, South should rise with dummy's queen in accordance with the principle of restricted choice. In actual play he should probably duck.

Which play would win today? We don't know. We made up the hand and did not show the king and jack of hearts.

MARY CALLAN, MEMORIAL HOSPITAL'S 'PLAY LADY,' ENTERTAINS HER YOUNG CHARGES

PET OF PEDIATRICS PATIENTS . . .

Playing pays for Miss Mary

By JOYCE KENT

Memorial Hospital of Long Beach lists her on its personnel records as Mrs. Mary Callan, play therapist.

But to the youngsters who visit the hospital's pediatrics ward—whether for a day or months on end—she is known affectionately and simply as "Miss Mary, the play lady."

"Miss Mary," grey hair piled high in braids, matching grey eyes twinkling, always wears bold colors or splashy prints to cheer her young charges. Her dangly earrings and bright beads are on purpose, too. "Gaudy, I know," she laughs, "but I dress this way for the children—they love it."

* * * *

HER HOSPITAL home is the playroom at the end of the hall in fourth floor pediatrics where she dispenses books, games, puzzles, good cheer, affection without solicitation, compassion without pity.

Lining the walls are gay pictures, dolls to be cuddled, magazines to be read, trucks to traverse imaginary highways. A child-high round table centers the room where children work puzzles, paint, or do simple crafts.

Helpful to her, as well as to the pediatric's staff, are parents who come at mealtime to feed their children, as well as the hospital's volunteers and teen-age Volunteens.

Monthly tours of pediatrics for children who will be patients in the near future also are a great help, she says. In this way youngsters become familiar with the wheelchairs and guerneys—even the pajamas they will be wearing—so nothing is new or frightening.

"Little ones who have toured don't even wait to be weighed in when they arrive—they just make a dash for the playroom."

* * * *

MRS. CALLAN, prior to her appointment as play therapist two years ago, was a volunteer worker in the wing.

"It was like coming home when the job as therapist opened," she says, "and I enjoy it so much I feel guilty to be paid."

A Long Beach resident for 25 years, she went to work just shortly after the death of her husband, Joseph Canning. "It was the true answer. I just couldn't face the thought of a life of playing bridge and filling time. Instead, my hours are spent playing with the children and reading them stories . . . I don't think children are read to as much as they were when I was a child . . . perhaps it's television. Why, do you know, many youngsters have never even heard of Mother Goose? And I've read Dr. Seuss so often, I can read his books without my glasses on!"

A share of her time, too, is spent in the rooms with children who cannot travel down the hall to the playroom, or visiting tots downstairs in intensive care.

* * * *

WHILE THE young patients enjoy the playroom toys, the older patients, she says, enjoy the beds. "The nurses are prepared to be driven crazy when patients are first admitted. They have a ball with the beds. First the foot goes up, then the head . . . the children look like pretzels. The bedside panel is irresistible. Lights flash, tv channels change, bells ring. Fortunately, the newness usually wears off by the second day."

Stimulating, challenging, rewarding are among the adjectives she uses to describe her work.

'You must know about so many things," she exclaims. "Their young bodies might be temporarily impaired, but there certainly is nothing the matter with their minds. One moment one has you reading Mother Goose, the next moment you're scouring the library for a book on unidentified flying objects."

Miss Mary's greatest reward? The mixed emotions of the youngsters about to be released — eager and happy to be going home, yet they have tears in their eyes as they throw their arms around her neck to say goodbye.

Students set the pace

Harold Dixon, Millikan High School, and Stephen Wilson, Polytechnic High School, have been chosen to serve on the Broadway Key Council for 1965-66.

Key Council is the ruling body of Key Club, which was organized as a result of the success of Hi-Debs, Broadway's club for girls. The purpose of both clubs: to provide educational as well as fun activities for boys and girls of high school age. . . also advising merchandise managers on the latest in school fads.

Council members are campus representatives from their high schools at Broadway and take an active part in planning Key Club activities.

WEST GERMANY HAS IT ALL

Europe's miracle land

West Germany, bordered to the east by Communist-controlled territory, and so recently devastated, is the miracle country of Europe. Its shops, offices and apartment buildings are as modern as any in the world.

This is a land of diversity —from the flat north German plain to the fairytale castles of the Rhineland, from the beautiful Black Forest to Bavaria and the Alps. And it is easily accessible, reports British Overseas Airways Corporation, which operates regular services to Frankfurt, only a jet hour from London.

The average German is both a disciplinarian and a sentimentalist. He excels at all forms of sport, and loves music and singing — especially in the Rhineland. In the country districts, the womenfolk tend to dress functionally rather than fashionably and many men still wear lederhosen (very practical leather shorts).

* * * *

AS FOR FOOD, the Germans have a propensity for dumplings and doughnuts, sausages and strudels. Every meal is a marathon, and stamina is needed to stay the course(s).

German beer is excellent, of course, and the country's white wines are among the world's best. They should naturally be sampled in the biergartens and wine cellars found in every town.

A summer "must" is a pleasure steamer trip on the winding Rhine to ponder the romantic nature of Germany as well as the landscape.

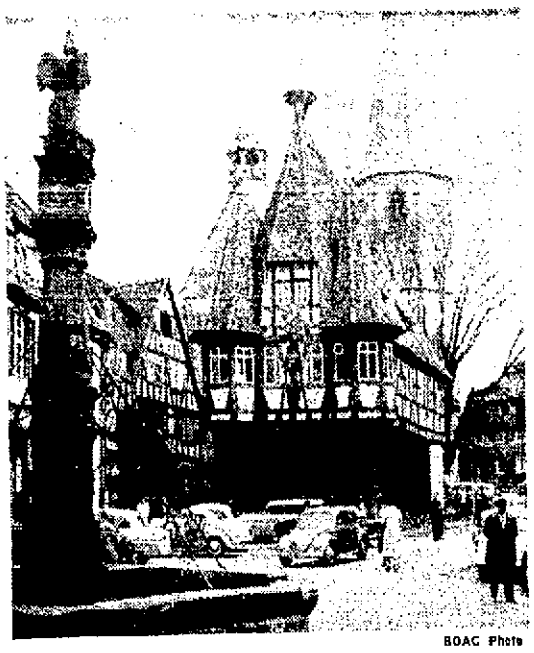

Western Germany does not have a national theater, but in the larger towns and cities there are many commercial ones. And for the connoisseur there are fine orchestral concerts as well as opera in almost every town.

* * * *

THIS IS a country teeming with night life. Even in the smallest towns there are night clubs, while the great seaport of Hamburg has Europe's liveliest entertainment in its world-famed St. Pauli district.

The country oozes prosperity. There is an air of plenty in every shop. Gold and silver jewelry as well as ceramics can be obtained at bargain prices. And German photographic equipment is unassailable, both in quality and price.

Berlin, the former capital city, now divided into sectors, boasts what is reputed to be the finest shopping street in Europe—the Kurfurstendam (called the Kudam), the shop window of the western world and the envy of many other cities.

Shakespeare again comes to Oregon

If you are looking for something different in vacations, why not return to school at America's first Vacation College, or attend Shakespearean productions at the nation's oldest Shakespearean Festival — both in the heart of Oregon's forested vacationlands.

In either case, you would be just minutes away from white water fishing streams, mountain lakes, forested camp sites or ocean shore.

Vacation College starts Aug. 15 at the University of Oregon at Eugene. Its prerequisites are simple — no entrance requirements, no examinations, no college credit. Just an interest in educational lectures, museum and industrial tours and a chance to relax. The one-week college is open to all adults and to high school students who are attending with parents.

The Oregon Shakespearean Festival is already under way with Silver Anniversary year productions at Ashland. Each night through Sept. 11, a Shakespearean production will appear in an outdoor theater patterned after the Fortune Theater of 1599 London. Four plays will be presented in nightly rotation.

Include red in outdoor snapshots

If you are going off into the woods or wilds on your summer vacation picture-taking trip, make sure somebody in the party takes along a red shirt or some other item of red wearing apparel.

In the woods nearly all the scenery you run across will be made up of greens, blues and browns and a spot of red, which of course, is a direct complimentary to green, can add sparkle to your pictures.

Including someone in your pictures always adds to their interest, anyway, and with a red shirt you can't miss them even if they are on the shore of that sparkling blue lake below you.

Zoo to end zoos

Berlin's zoo now has the largest collection in Europe. There are 12,000 specimens, including 9,000 fish, reptiles and invertebrates, and 855 different kinds of birds.

Animal heaven

A census conducted at Kruger National Park in South Africa reveals that the park has more animals per square mile than any other area in the world. There is, in fact, a population explosion with the elephants estimated at 1,750, lions at 1,050, zebras at 13,000, buffalos at 10,000, hippos at 3,200 and giraffes at 3,000. As an added attraction, reports Pan American Airways from Johannesburg, there are 23 rare white rhinos and 220 cheetahs, a species once thought to be dying out.

BEETHOVEN FETE OPENS ON SEPT. 18

The 25th Beethoven Festival will open in Bonn on Sept. 18 with a gala performance of "Fidelio." On the three-week program are listed all nine symphonies, 17 string quartets and several rarely heard pieces. The "Missa Solemnis" will be offered at the final performance on Oct. 10.

Many guest soloists and groups are scheduled to appear: Sept. 21-22, Claudio Arrau (piano); Sept. 23, Wilhelm Kempff (piano), Sept. 24-25, Rome's Santa Cecilia Orchestra; Sept. 26 (morning), Bonn Cathedral Choir; Sept. 26-27, Edith Peinemann (violin); Sept. 28, Antonia Janigro (cello); Sept. 29-30, Cologne's Guerzenich Choir and Orchestra; Oct. 1, La Salle Quartet; Oct. 2-3, Warsaw National Philharmonic; Oct. 4-5, Friedrich Gulda (piano); Oct. 6, Koeckert Quartet; Oct. 7-8, Zino Francescatti (violin).

On Sept. 19, the 1965 Beethoven Prize will be presented to the winner of a competition that attracted a total of 56 works from 26 composers.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

Drivers deflated

"Operation Flat Tires" is the newest tourist attraction in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. When motorists continually ignored no parking regulations, the police chief ordered that tires be deflated on illegally parked cars. Visitors on Pan Am's jet tours of South America join the "fun" of watching irate drivers discuss the situation with traffic officers.

Traveling with Delaplane

"Do you think it is possible to retire on a modest income in Hawaii?"

FRIENDS of mine were transferred here after living in San Francisco—which is high-priced by national standards. They find it more expensive here. Major costs are because so much has to be shipped in.

Labor is a little cheaper. Food is higher. Maybe on the outer islands you'd find living easier. But the little plantation towns don't have much. All the theaters, shops, music, restaurants are around Honolulu, an expensive city.

* * * *

"Some friends of ours heard about brass rubbings in England. Now we are going. . . ."

THAT'S GETTING to be quite a hobby for visitors. These are brass images of the person buried beneath the church floor—carved in intaglio. You put a sheet of paper over it and rub it with a special wax. The image comes up on the paper. It's exactly like you used to do as a child: Put a piece of paper over a penny and rubbed it with a pencil until the face of the penny reproduced itself in pencil marks.

I saw some excellent brasses of men in armor—the Eyre family — in the church at Hathersage in Derbyshire. (Charlotte Bronte wrote "Jane Eyre" in the vicarage.) They are not let into the floor but are raised. So the brass is not worn as most. The figures are almost life-sized.

Now—how do you do it? You buy a how-to-do-it book called "Monumental Brasses." I don't know if it's sold in America. But you buy it in England at the Times book shop in the London Times building. And I should think Foyles, the huge book shop in London, would have it. The rubbings, you frame and hang.

* * * *

"We had thought of visiting the Robin Hood country."

THE GRAVE of Little John is at this same Hathersage church. It's a fine drive through the midlands of England. All full of ruined abbeys and falling down castles. Robin Hood is supposed to be buried outside the ruins of Kirklees Priory near Wakefield. There's a stone with an inscription — faked. But it was faked in the time of Henry VIII. Which makes it an historical fake anyway.

The priory is on a private estate near the road. Visitors are discouraged. But if you go to a nearby pub called "The Three Nuns," they will tell you how to shinny up the embankment. (They do everything but issue you a map.)

You'll read in the ballad how Robin sent his men to pick up a fat friar for lunch "at the Watlynge Street." And if you look on the map of London, you'll find Watling Street starting at the Thames. It was the old Roman road to the north. And it begins there.

* * * *

"How would you plan to find your way around Paris?"

GET A pocket map (free) from one of the airline offices. One way to figure where you are: Find any Metro (subway) entrance. There's a big map on the sidewalk. Where you are is spotted in red.

* * * *

"We were thinking of driving as far south in Mexico as Tehuantepec peninsula but would like your opinion."

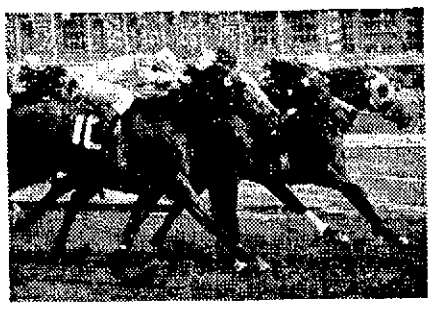

I FOUND it pretty buggy and hot. Colorful and dirty. The only hotel is very medium. Take anti-malaria shots. Take a look. And get out. Good road now over to the East coast and the new road down to Yucatan.

Sportfishing— more of the fun in San Diego!

Man, woman or child — there's little to rival the thrill of hooking a "big one" from the depths of the Blue Pacific. And the waters off San Diego are a sportfisherman's paradise.

Fabulous prizes are offered for yellowtail, albacore and bluefin tuna caught from boats operating from San Diego Bay landings during the annual Yellowtail Derby, thru September. Sportfishing derbies are also held for anglers using boats from Mission Bay landings and Oceanside Boat Harbor. Fishing boats also operate regularly from Imperial Beach.

There are all-day and half-day trips, with a variety of departure times. Bait is provided and tackle may be rented. Rates: all-day, $7 to $15 (children under 13, $4 to $8); half-day, $5 to $5.50 (children under 13, $2.50 to $3).

Thoroughbred & Dog Racing

Excitement is king as many of America's finest thoroughbreds come pounding down the stretch at Del Mar Turf Club off Highway 101 at Del Mar just north of San Diego — daily except Sunday thru Sept. 14. Also Saturday and Sunday year-round at Caliente Race Track in Tijuana. And Greyhound racing at Caliente Wednesday thru Sunday nights.

Discover La Jolla—"The Jewel"

Called by many "America's Riviera," La Jolla just up the coast from San Diego will delight you with its rocky coastline and white sand beaches. You can swim, surfboard and skin-dive for abalone. Visit the new campus of the University of California at San Diego and Scripps Aquarium — as well as scores of smart shops, fine restaurants, hotels and motels.

Jai Alai—World's Fastest Sport

WEST GERMANY HAS IT ALL

Europe's miracle land

West Germany, bordered to the east by Communist-controlled territory, and so recently devastated, is the miracle country of Europe. Its shops, offices and apartment buildings are as modern as any in the world.

This is a land of diversity —from the flat north German plain to the fairytale castles of the Rhineland, from the beautiful Black Forest to Bavaria and the Alps. And it is easily accessible, reports British Overseas Airways Corporation, which operates regular services to Frankfurt, only a jet hour from London.

The average German is both a disciplinarian and a sentimentalist. He excels at all forms of sport, and loves music and singing — especially in the Rhineland. In the country districts, the womenfolk tend to dress functionally rather than fashionably and many men still wear lederhosen (very practical leather shorts).

* * * *

AS FOR FOOD, the Germans have a propensity for dumplings and doughnuts, sausages and strudels. Every meal is a marathon, and stamina is needed to stay the course(s).

German beer is excellent, of course, and the country's white wines are among the world's best. They should naturally be sampled in the biergartens and wine cellars found in every town.

A summer "must" is a pleasure steamer trip on the winding Rhine to ponder the romantic nature of Germany as well as the landscape.

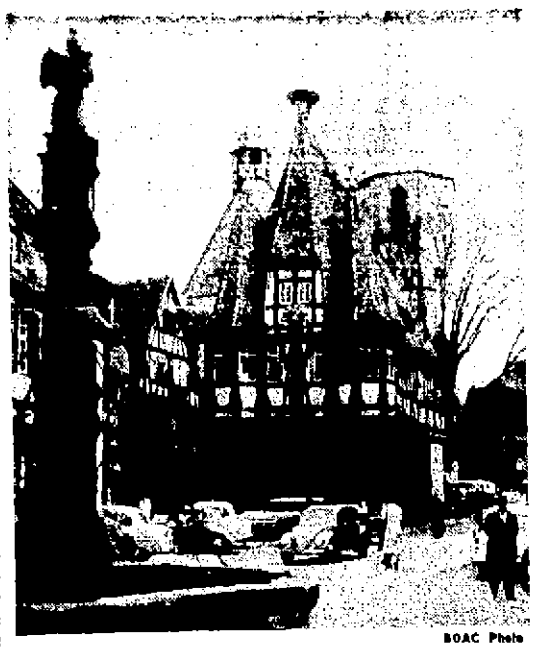

Western Germany does not have a national theater, but in the larger towns and cities there are many commercial ones. And for the connoisseur there are fine orchestral concerts as well as opera in almost every town.

* * * *

THIS IS a country teeming with night life. Even in the smallest towns there are night clubs, while the great seaport of Hamburg has Europe's liveliest entertainment in its world-famed St. Pauli district.

The country oozes prosperity. There is an air of plenty in every shop. Gold and silver jewelry as well as ceramics can be obtained at bargain prices. And German photographic equipment is unassailable, both in quality and price.

Berlin, the former capital city, now divided into sectors, boasts what is reputed to be the finest shopping street in Europe—the Kurfurstendam (called the Kudam), the shop window of the western world and the envy of many other cities.

BEETHOVEN FETE OPENS ON SEPT. 18

The 25th Beethoven Festival will open in Bonn on Sept. 18 with a gala performance of "Fidelio." On the three-week program are listed all nine symphonies, 17 string quartets and several rarely heard pieces. The "Missa Solemnis" will be offered at the final performance on Oct. 10.

Many guest soloists and groups are scheduled to appear: Sept. 21-22, Claudio Arrau (piano); Sept. 23, Wilhelm Kempff (piano), Sept. 24-25, Rome's Santa Cecilia Orchestra; Sept. 26 (morning), Bonn Cathedral Choir; Sept. 26-27, Edith Peinemann (violin); Sept. 28, Antonia Janigro (cello); Sept. 29-30, Cologne's Guerzenich Choir and Orchestra; Oct. 1, La Salle Quartet; Oct. 2-3, Warsaw National Philharmonic; Oct. 4-5, Friedrich Gulda (piano); Oct. 6, Koeckert Quartet; Oct. 7-8, Zino Francescatti (violin).

On Sept. 19, the 1965 Beethoven Prize will be presented to the winner of a competition that attracted a total of 56 works from 26 composers.

Shakespeare again comes to Oregon

If you are looking for something different in vacations, why not return to school at America's first Vacation College, or attend Shakespearean productions at the nation's oldest Shakespearean Festival — both in the heart of Oregon's forested vacationlands.

In either case, you would be just minutes away from white water fishing streams, mountain lakes, forested camp sites or ocean shore.

Vacation College starts Aug. 15 at the University of Oregon at Eugene. Its prerequisites are simple — no entrance requirements, no examinations, no college credit. Just an interest in educational lectures, museum and industrial tours and a chance to relax. The one-week college is open to all adults and to high school students who are attending with parents.

The Oregon Shakespearean Festival is already under way with Silver Anniversary year productions at Ashland. Each night through Sept. 11, a Shakespearean production will appear in an outdoor theater patterned after the Fortune Theater of 1599 London. Four plays will be presented in nightly rotation.

Animal heaven

A census conducted at Kruger National Park in South Africa reveals that the park has more animals per square mile than any other area in the world. There is, in fact, a population explosion with the elephants estimated at 1,750, lions at 1,050, zebras at 13,000, buffalos at 10,000, hippos at 3,200 and giraffes at 3,000. As an added attraction, reports Pan American Airways from Johannesburg, there are 23 rare white rhinos and 220 cheetahs, a species once thought to be dying out.

Include red in outdoor snapshots

If you are going off into the woods or wilds on your summer vacation picture-taking trip, make sure somebody in the party takes along a red shirt or some other item of red wearing apparel.

In the woods nearly all the scenery you run across will be made up of greens, blues and browns and a spot of red, which of course, is a direct complimentary to green, can add sparkle to your pictures.

Including someone in your pictures always adds to their interest, anyway, and with a red shirt you can't miss them even if they are on the shore of that sparkling blue lake below you.

Zoo to end zoos

Berlin's zoo now has the largest collection in Europe. There are 12,000 specimens, including 9,000 fish, reptiles and invertebrates, and 855 different kinds of birds.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

Drivers deflated

"Operation Flat Tires" is the newest tourist attraction in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. When motorists continually ignored no parking regulations, the police chief ordered that tires be deflated on illegally parked cars. Visitors on Pan Am's jet tours of South America join the "fun" of watching irate drivers discuss the situation with traffic officers.

Traveling with Delaplane

"Do you think it is possible to retire on a modest income in Hawaii?"

FRIENDS of mine were transferred here after living in San Francisco—which is high-priced by national standards. They find it more expensive here. Major costs are because so much has to be shipped in.

Labor is a little cheaper. Food is higher. Maybe on the outer islands you'd find living easier. But the little plantation towns don't have much. All the theaters, shops, music, restaurants are around Honolulu, an expensive city.

* * * *

"Some friends of ours heard about brass rubbings in England. Now we are going. . . ."

THAT'S GETTING to be quite a hobby for visitors. These are brass images of the person buried beneath the church floor—carved in intaglio. You put a sheet of paper over it and rub it with a special wax. The image comes up on the paper. It's exactly like you used to do as a child: Put a piece of paper over a penny and rubbed it with a pencil until the face of the penny reproduced itself in pencil marks.

I saw some excellent brasses of men in armor—the Eyre family — in the church at Hathersage in Derbyshire. (Charlotte Bronte wrote "Jane Eyre" in the vicarage.) They are not let into the floor but are raised. So the brass is not worn as most. The figures are almost life-sized.

Now—how do you do it? You buy a how-to-do-it book called "Monumental Brasses." I don't know if it's sold in America. But you buy it in England at the Times book shop in the London Times building. And I should think Foyles, the huge book shop in London, would have it. The rubbings, you frame and hang.

* * * *

"We had thought of visiting the Robin Hood country."

THE GRAVE of Little John is at this same Hathersage church. It's a fine drive through the midlands of England. All full of ruined abbeys and falling down castles. Robin Hood is supposed to be buried outside the ruins of Kirklees Priory near Wakefield. There's a stone with an inscription — faked. But it was faked in the time of Henry VIII. Which makes it an historical fake anyway.

The priory is on a private estate near the road. Visitors are discouraged. But if you go to a nearby pub called "The Three Nuns," they will tell you how to shinny up the embankment. (They do everything but issue you a map.)

You'll read in the ballad how Robin sent his men to pick up a fat friar for lunch "at the Watlynge Street." And if you look on the map of London, you'll find Watling Street starting at the Thames. It was the old Roman road to the north. And it begins there.

* * * *

"How would you plan to find your way around Paris?"

GET A pocket map (free) from one of the airline offices. One way to figure where you are: Find any Metro (subway) entrance. There's a big map on the sidewalk. Where you are is spotted in red.

* * * *

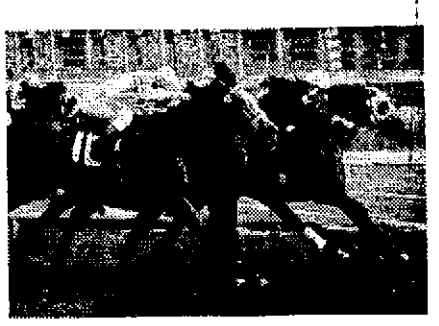

"We were thinking of driving as far south in Mexico as Tehuantepec peninsula but would like your opinion."

I FOUND it pretty buggy and hot. Colorful and dirty. The only hotel is very medium. Take anti-malaria shots. Take a look. And get out. Good road now over to the East coast and the new road down to Yucatan.

FERIA DEL HOGAR

Arts of Mexico come to Tijuana

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Feria del Hogar, Mexico's most important national fair, opens next Friday in Tijuana and continues through Sept. 6.

Several pegs above most Mexican fairs, the Feria del Hogar should be well worth the drive from the Long Beach-Orange County area.

For instance, the Mexican National Tourist Council says that for the first time the National Institute of Fine Arts is gathering massive pieces from museums all over Mexico, both modern and contemporary art, to be displayed at the Feria. It is pointed out that it would normally take a tourist weeks, or even months, to visit all the museums from which this art is being drawn.

There will also be an exposition of pre-Columbian architecture.

* * * *

ANOTHER interesting feature, so far as many Californians are concerned, will be the Hall of Mexican Arts and Crafts where more than 40 native craftsmen will gather before visitors to work on pottery, ceramics, copper and brass, artistic sheet metal, wood carvings, silver, leather, textiles and musical instruments.

This exposition, says the Council, will include the best works of 1,500 outstanding Mexican artists whose skills were inherited from their ancestors in converting raw materials into genuine expressions of art.

The articles will be available to Feria visitors. For pesos, of course.

* * * *

ON THE CULTURAL side, the Ballet National Aztlan, well known Mexican ballet troup, will perform national folklore songs and dances in a new theater built especially for the exposition.

If you're worried about your Spanish, the Tourist Council assures that interpreters will be on hand to aid in the various transactions, free of charge.

A new 215,000-square-foot hall has been built expressly for the Feria, to remain as a permanent youth center after the dust has all cleared away.

* * * *

MONGOLIAN tugriks, anyone? Burma kyats, Grek drachmas, Rumanian lei, or Mexican pesos?

A foreign exchange and travelers cheques facility, the first of its kind in California, has been opened by Bank of America NT&SA at Los Angeles International Airport and is doing quite well, thank you.

A service to passengers on arriving and departing international flights, the new facility is open 24 hours a day at the International Satellite Office in the Satellite No. 2, building, 200 World Way.

Bank of America has two other offices at the huge airport: the Los Angeles International Airport branch, which is moving soon into new and larger quarters on Century Blvd., and a branch in the Theme Building office.

* * * *

LAST SPRING, we reported that M. K. Guertin was up to here in the work of distributing six million Travel Guides of Western Motels, Inc. (Best Western Motels/Best Eastern Motels) from the main office of the company at 3141 E. Broadway, Long Beach. Here's an interesting postscript:

American Oil Co. and Standard Oil (Midwest Division) since have joined the club by notifying their 6,760,000 credit card holders that their cards would be accepted by Best Western member hotels (the biggest referral group in the world) in payment for lodging, food and miscellaneous expense, coast to coast. They also told these good customers that Best Western Motels would send them a copy of its Travel Guide if they mailed the inclosed postcard.

That really put Guertin on the heavy end of the spade.

The cards have been avalanching into his office at the rate of 15,000 a day. One day, 26,351 cards were received. Guertin added 22 employes to process his mail. His postage bill, he adds, had been averaging $600 a day.

Being a success, fellow travelers, apparently is no sinecure.

Big parades scheduled for August

Southern Californians during August are going to be treated to parades—one of colorful Spanish costumes, one of 100 international beauties, another of hundreds of dancing girls, and still another of the zaniest boats ever to sail the seas.

Beauties from 50 countries and 50 states will parade along Ocean Boulevard in Long Beach on Aug. 8 as a highlight of the International Beauty Congress Aug. 4-14.

Colorful silks and shawls of the Spanish California days will come out of old trunks to be worn in El Desfile Historico, the historical parade of the Old Spanish Days fiesta held during the light of the full moon in Santa Barbara from Aug. 11-15. In El Desfile de Ninos, children will parade in Spanish dress.

* * * *

HUNDREDS of kimono-clad dancing girls will sway through the streets of the Li'l Tokyo district in downtown Los Angeles during the Ondo parade of the Nisei Week Festival from Aug. 14-22. Colorful Japanese lanterns will light up this area where the Americans of Japanese descent have their shops and cafes. There will be judo, karate and sword tournaments.

The Character Boat Parade will be held Aug. 28 at Newport Harbor. A typical Character Boat is Edgar Bergen's SS Poopalong, a Monterey double-ender with purple cabin, ivy growing up the antenna, run by an elderly steam engine with a shrieking whistle. There's a miniature river sidewheeler and one shaped like a sea horse. About 50 of them ply the channels among the seven islands during the late afternoon cocktail hour.

* * * *

IN THE ONE-TIME gold mining country of Big Bear Lake in the mile-high San Bernardino Mountains, visitors attending the Old Miners Days celebration Thursday through next Sunday will watch a Clementine contest, and the finals of the National Burro Derby — a three-day, 45-file trek by 85 burros and their weary wranglers up the mountain from Apple Valley on the desert floor.

The Farmers Fair held at Hemet below towering Mt. San Jacinto from Aug 18-22 is hilariously different because of the Farmer's Daughter contest. Five beauties compete nightly in a different farm task such as cow milking, sewing, baking, tractor driving, and a surprise climax such as wall papering and dressing out a chicken.

An entire field of sweet corn is bought by the Lions Club at La Habra, not far from Disneyland, and served up as 50,000 ears, hot and buttered, during the annual Corn Festival next Friday and Saturday.

GRAND CANYON of the Yellowstone and Lower Falls of Yellowstone River drop 308 feet in this view from Artists' Point, favorite scene in Yellowstone National Park.

Open in Trinidad

A new restaurant, The Hummingbird, has been opened in Port of Spain, Trinidad. One of the dining rooms is presided over by a Swiss chef, and offers formal dining from 10 a.m. till midnight. A second room, featuring self-service meals, operates from 7 a.m. till 7 p.m.

Both dining rooms are air-conditioned, and reservations are accepted in the formal restaurant. The "Hummingbird" is in the downtown section of Port of Spain, convenient to all shops.

Hawaii's Neighbor Islands have ample hotel rooms

Hawaii's Neighbor Islands—none of which is more than a 50-minute flight from Honolulu International Airport—still have plenty of room at the inns for last minute vacation planners, according to the Hawaii Visitors Bureau and the Hawaii Hotel Association.

Longtime favorites with kamaaina (old-timer) islanders, the islands of Maui, Hawaii, Kauai, Molokai and tiny Lanai each has its own particular brand of charm. More rural than the capital island of Oahu—locale of Honolulu and famed Waikiki—these islands have fine resort hotels, excellent restaurants and a wide variety of historic and scenic attractions.

There are more than 3,300 hotel rooms located throughout the Neighbor Isles and accommodations run the gamut from rustic mountain cabins and seaside cottages to motel-type complexes and post destination resort areas.

* * * *

ON KAUAI, northernmost of the island chain, there is still space available at several hotels on the sunny Poipu-Kukuiula coastline and a limited number of rooms are available throughout the island during most of the summer months.

Maui, too, has hotel rooms available throughout the summer, especially in the Kaanapali-Napili area on the west coast and Wailuku-Kahului district in central Maui.

Hawaii, southernmost of the island chain, and for many years second only in popularity to Oahu as a visitor destination area has many resort hotels from which to choose. Space is still available throughout the island.

* * * *

FOR THE outdoorsman who wants to rough it Hawaiian style, all of the Neighbor Islands offer exciting sport whether it be big game fishing or hunting, hiking the slopes of Mauna Kea on Hawaii, Haleakala on Maui or the Na Pali cliffs on Kauai. For the less adventurous, there are museums, gardens and historic sites, all within a few minutes' drive from resort centers.

U-Drive facilities are available as are guided tours.

Travel by the book

Witnessing the early-morning hubbub of the world's largest fish market, in Tokyo; looking down from a Nagasaki hilltop to the lights and the harbor below; lounging on the beach at Hong Kong's Repulse Bay—such experiences can increase the fun of an Orient vacation but won't add significantly to its cost.

These suggestions are from the new edition of "Japan and Hong Kong on Five Dollars a Day" by John Wilcock, probably the liveliest guidebook written about the Orient's two most popular tourist destinations.

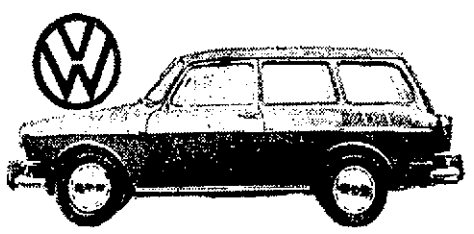

Although the "five dollars" in the book's title refers only to basic costs of a modest hotel room and three meals, the book is filled with low-cost sightseeing and entertainment suggestions.

* * * *

THE PREMISE of the book is that the more a visitor eats in low-cost restaurants and stays in local-style lodgings used by Japanese and Chinese themselves, the better will be his opportunities to absorb and understand their life, customs and attitudes. The book applies this same theory to all of the traveler's activities.

Thus while some travelers will want to climb Mount Fuji and others will want to visit Japanese theaters, rewarding experiences also await those who linger in their Japanese inn, studying its architecture, soaking in its hot bath and enjoying its personal service. The book explains the best way of pursuing these and many other activities.

Copies of the book, $2 each including postage and handling, may be obtained from Japan Air Lines, 240 Stockton St., San Francisco, Calif.

FERIA DEL HOGAR

Arts of Mexico come to Tijuana

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Feria del Hogar, Mexico's most important national fair, opens next Friday in Tijuana and continues through Sept. 6.

Several pegs above most Mexican fairs, the Feria del Hogar should be well worth the drive from the Long Beach-Orange County area.

For instance, the Mexican National Tourist Council says that for the first time the National Institute of Fine Arts is gathering massive pieces from museums all over Mexico, both modern and contemporary art, to be displayed at the Feria. It is pointed out that it would normally take a tourist weeks, or even months, to visit all the museums from which this art is being drawn.

There will also be an exposition of pre-Columbian architecture.

* * * *

ANOTHER interesting feature, so far as many Californians are concerned, will be the Hall of Mexican Arts and Crafts where more than 40 native craftsmen will gather before visitors to work on pottery, ceramics, copper and brass, artistic sheet metal, wood carvings, silver, leather, textiles and musical instruments.

This exposition, says the Council, will include the best works of 1,500 outstanding Mexican artists whose skills were inherited from their ancestors in converting raw materials into genuine expressions of art.

The articles will be available to Feria visitors. For pesos, of course.

* * * *

ON THE CULTURAL side, the Ballet National Aztlan, well known Mexican ballet troup, will perform national folklore songs and dances in a new theater built especially for the exposition.

If you're worried about your Spanish, the Tourist Council assures that interpreters will be on hand to aid in the various transactions, free of charge.

A new 215,000-square-foot hall has been built expressly for the Feria, to remain as a permanent youth center after the dust has all cleared away.

* * * *

MONGOLIAN tugriks, anyone? Burma kyats, Grek drachmas, Rumanian lei, or Mexican pesos?

A foreign exchange and travelers cheques facility, the first of its kind in California, has been opened by Bank of America NT&SA at Los Angeles International Airport and is doing quite well, thank you.

A service to passengers on arriving and departing international flights, the new facility is open 24 hours a day at the International Satellite Office in the Satellite No. 2, building, 200 World Way.

Bank of America has two other offices at the huge airport: the Los Angeles International Airport branch, which is moving soon into new and larger quarters on Century Blvd., and a branch in the Theme Building office.

LAST SPRING, we reported that M. K. Guertin was up to here in the work of distributing six million Travel Guides of Western Motels, Inc. (Best Western Motels/Best Eastern Motels) from the main office of the company at 3141 E. Broadway, Long Beach. Here's an interesting postscript:

American Oil Co. and Standard Oil (Midwest Division) since have joined the club by notifying their 6,760,000 credit card holders that their cards would be accepted by Best Western member hotels (the biggest referral group in the world) in payment for lodging, food and miscellaneous expense, coast to coast. They also told these good customers that Best Western Motels would send them a copy of its Travel Guide if they mailed the inclosed postcard.

That really put Guertin on the heavy end of the spade.

The cards have been avalanching into his office at the rate of 15,000 a day. One day, 26,351 cards were received. Guertin added 22 employes to process his mail. His postage bill, he adds, had been averaging $600 a day.

Being a success, fellow travelers, apparently is no sinecure.

Big parades scheduled for August

GRAND CANYON of the Yellowstone and Lower Falls of Yellowstone River drop 308 feet in this view from Artists' Point, favorite scene in Yellowstone National Park.

Southern Californians during August are going to be treated to parades—one of colorful Spanish costumes, one of 100 international beauties, another of hundreds of dancing girls, and still another of the zaniest boats ever to sail the seas.

Beauties from 50 countries and 50 states will parade along Ocean Boulevard in Long Beach on Aug. 8 as a highlight of the International Beauty Congress Aug. 4-14.

Colorful silks and shawls of the Spanish California days will come out of old trunks to be worn in El Desfile Historico, the historical parade of the Old Spanish Days fiesta held during the light of the full moon in Santa Barbara from Aug. 11-15. In El Desfile de Ninos, children will parade in Spanish dress.

* * * *

HUNDREDS of kimono-clad dancing girls will sway through the streets of the Li'l Tokyo district in downtown Los Angeles during the Ondo parade of the Nisei Week Festival from Aug. 14-22. Colorful Japanese lanterns will light up this area where the Americans of Japanese descent have their shops and cafes. There will be judo, karate and sword tournaments.

The Character Boat Parade will be held Aug. 28 at Newport Harbor. A typical Character Boat is Edgar Bergen's SS Poopalong, a Monterey double-ender with purple cabin, ivy growing up the antenna, run by an elderly steam engine with a shrieking whistle. There's a miniature river sidewheeler and one shaped like a sea horse. About 50 of them ply the channels among the seven islands during the late afternoon cocktail hour.

* * * *

IN THE ONE-TIME gold mining country of Big Bear Lake in the mile-high San Bernardino Mountains, visitors attending the Old Miners Days celebration Thursday through next Sunday will watch a Clementine contest, and the finals of the National Burro Derby — a three-day, 45-file trek by 85 burros and their weary wranglers up the mountain from Apple Valley on the desert floor.

The Farmers Fair held at Hemet below towering Mt. San Jacinto from Aug 18-22 is hilariously different because of the Farmer's Daughter contest. Five beauties compete nightly in a different farm task such as cow milking, sewing, baking, tractor driving, and a surprise climax such as wall papering and dressing out a chicken.

An entire field of sweet corn is bought by the Lions Club at La Habra, not far from Disneyland, and served up as 50,000 ears, hot and buttered, during the annual Corn Festival next Friday and Saturday.

Open in Trinidad

A new restaurant, The Hummingbird, has been opened in Port of Spain, Trinidad. One of the dining rooms is presided over by a Swiss chef, and offers formal dining from 10 a.m. till midnight. A second room, featuring self-service meals, operates from 7 a.m. till 7 p.m.

Both dining rooms are air-conditioned, and reservations are accepted in the formal restaurant. The "Hummingbird" is in the downtown section of Port of Spain, convenient to all shops.

Hawaii's Neighbor Islands have ample hotel rooms

Hawaii's Neighbor Islands—none of which is more than a 50-minute flight from Honolulu International Airport—still have plenty of room at the inns for last minute vacation planners, according to the Hawaii Visitors Bureau and the Hawaii Hotel Association.

Longtime favorites with kamaaina (old-timer) islanders, the islands of Maui, Hawaii, Kauai, Molokai and tiny Lanai each has its own particular brand of charm. More rural than the capital island of Oahu—locale of Honolulu and famed Waikiki—these islands have fine resort hotels, excellent restaurants and a wide variety of historic and scenic attractions.

There are more than 3,300 hotel rooms located throughout the Neighbor Isles and accommodations run the gamut from rustic mountain cabins and seaside cottages to motel-type complexes and post destination resort areas.

* * * *

ON KAUAI, northernmost of the island chain, there is still space available at several hotels on the sunny Poipu-Kukuiula coastline and a limited number of rooms are available throughout the island during most of the summer months.

Maui, too, has hotel rooms available throughout the summer, especially in the Kaanapali-Napili area on the west coast and Wailuku-Kahului district in central Maui.

Hawaii, southernmost of the island chain, and for many years second only in popularity to Oahu as a visitor destination area has many resort hotels from which to choose. Space is still available throughout the island.

* * * *

FOR THE outdoorsman who wants to rough it Hawaiian style, all of the Neighbor Islands offer exciting sport whether it be big game fishing or hunting, hiking the slopes of Mauna Kea on Hawaii, Haleakala on Maui or the Na Pali cliffs on Knuai. For the less adventurous, there are museums, gardens and historic sites, all within a few minutes' drive from resort centers.

U-Drive facilities are available as are guided tours.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Gill, a gourmand, on the go

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

Today's Chef of the Week, Don G. Gill, has the imagination and ability to create food fitting the appetite of the gourmand—yet, here's what he has for breakfast: a special juice, corn flakes and a cup of cocoa. It NEVER varies!

And for dinner, he'll settle any day for a can of baked beans and some wieners. Daughters Kimberly, 7, and Alison, 2, seem to agree with Pop. Just imagine the life-of-a-wife who never has to wonder "how shall I cook those eggs—or what'll I have for dinner?"

Gill is a native son. He left his mark of leadership on Fremont Elementary, Jefferson Junior and Wilson High Schools. He devoted his freshman year to Long Beach City College, but finished at Occidental.

* * * *

GILL'S activities in all the aforementioned schools ranged from speaking—to singing—to sports. He was a student reader and lecturer in Occidental's economics department and served as vice-president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and president of Phi Kappa Alpha fraternities.

Don's father, the late Anthony (Tony) Gill, was equally well-known, having been director of Poly High's band and orchestra for 26 years.

Gill's first position was in 1944 with the research department of Bank of America. He was serving as lending officer and credit analyst when he accepted a position with the City of Long Beach as administrative assistant in the department of finance. He also did public relations for "Chef" and former City Manager Sam Vickers. Gill produced and narrated the first motion picture ever made of our city.

* * * *

IN 1956, HE joined the Los Altos Association as general manager of Home Owners' Association, and in 1961 became self-employed . . . economic research, trust deed loans and development of investment ventures.

Gill's past finds him on the board of directors of Long Beach Community Chest, the Heart Association and Volunteers of America. He has "chaired" such organizations as Community Welfare Council, the Citizens Fair Taxation Committee, Long Beach Area Multiple Sclerosis campaign and the Los Altos area March of Dimes.

He has served as president, Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce and of the SAE Alumni Association.

Presently he is vice-chairman of United Way Crusade, Greater Long Beach Area. Gill still finds time to "chair" the New Main Library committee and the Economic Opportunities Council. He also is a member of the Marina advisory committee, City of Long Beach.

* * * *

PROBABLY ONE of the most outstanding feats of today's "Chef" is the All-Western Band Review of which he has been executive director for 10 years. This event, sponsored by the city, is the largest high school marching band competition in the nation.

Gill is a life member of the Long Beach Junior Chamber and SAE fraternity. As to the latter, he is vice-president of the California Lambda (SAE) Housing Corp.

Vice-President and program chairman, Downtown Kiwanis Club, he still finds time to belong to the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, Elks Lodge No. 888, Recreation Park Golf Club and the Long Beach 49er Club.

Just when he finds time to cook, we wouldn't know. But after writing this, we can understand his "a-guy-in-a-hurry" menus.

We've been told, however, and we quote a friend—"last Sunday evening Don and Sandy Gill treated us to a most special meal. Sandy's complementary dishes were so perfect with Don's marinated seven-bone roast, we would recommend them highly."

Well, "behind every successful husband there is a wife," and Sandy, the former Sandra Lee Hicks of Long Beach, did win the $5 prize for her "Mud Pie" recipe. It's composed of chocolate cookie-crumb pastry, filled with coffee ice cream and topped with chocolate frosting. Says she—"it's great with Don's Party Roast."

PARTY ROAST

Mix this marinade and pour over a round bone roast (allow 1 pound of meat per person). Cover and refrigerate for 2 days, turning meat each day.

1 cup red wine
1 cup vinegar

Don G. Gill

2½ cups oil
⅔ cup HOT sauce
1 bottle Russian dressing
1 large Bermuda onion, chopped fine
½ tsp. onion powder
3 cloves garlic, mashed
1 tsp. coarse grind pepper
dash of chili powder

Bring meat to room temperature before barbecuing. Barbecue over VERY HOT COALS, basting often. (Our "chef" even thinks the meat is best when it catches fire.)

Good served with stuffed baked potatoes, a sweet and sour bean salad, garlic bread and an ice cream pie.

Amundson, McGhee read vows

Linda Jo McGhee and John C. Amundson recited nuptial vows Saturday afternoon in the Los Altos United Church of Christ in Long Beach.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan McGhee, 1909 Bellflower Blvd., wore a gown of silk organza with front panel appliqued with Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her bouffant illusion veil was held by a crystal and pearl tiara.

* * * *

JOYCE WELTY was maid of honor; Kristine Amundson, sister of the groom, and Eleanor McNeill were bridesmaids.

The groom, son of Mrs. Carl Amundson, 2369 Charlemagne, and the late Dr. Amundson, chose Karl Andrews as best man and David Long and Harry Dirks as ushers. Susan Jo Scott, cousin of the bride, and Patrick McGhee, brother of the bride, were flower girl and ringbearer.

The bride was graduated from Wilson High School, the groom from Millikan High. Both are attending Long Beach State College.

MRS. RONALD KECK

Donald W. Kecks to make home in Long Beach

Candlelight Chapel in North Long Beach was setting for the nuptials uniting in marriage Carol Sue MacDonald and Ronald Wayne Keck.

Parents of the newlyweds are Messrs. and Mmes. Robert M. MacDonald and Roland W. Keck, all of Paramount.

The bride wore a short gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta. Her veil was held by a crown of pearls and crystals.

Honor attendants were Christine Hammond and El Faego Torres. William Keck and John Swank seated guests.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

It's his choice, you know

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

A very odd thing has happened. Our son, now 24 years old, called us from out of state (where he presently is employed in a subsidiary company owned by his father) and asked if he could bring home a girl he is very much in love with and wants to marry.

Naturally we were delighted and excited as all-get-out. Our son always has been a very handsome boy, was an excellent student, graduating from college with honors. Ever since he was a young fellow in high school, girls galore ran after him but he never showed any special interest.

So now, at last, this was a very special occasion!

Well, Mrs. M., he arrived with the girl and my heavens how in the world he could ever have fallen for her his Dad and I will never know. She not only isn't pretty, or faintly attractive, but she is downright ugly with protruding teeth and legs like fence posts.

Her hair is scrawny, she has a bad complexion and her nose looks as though it had started to grow in one direction, then decided in favor of another.

I was actually ashamed to introduce her to friends.

Oh, I suppose if she'd been brilliant or had a scintillating personality you could overlook her unfortunate appearance, but she is very difficult to talk to, is shy to the point of no return and, as far as we could gather, had never read anything much beyond Bugs Bunny.

I asked our son if he already had proposed and he said he hadn't, that he wanted to bring her home to meet us, but that he was sure there was an "understanding."

His dad and I both advised him to wait and quite bluntly told him what we thought.

I'm afraid this was a mistake. He and the young lady left a day sooner than expected, and now he has called and said all is settled, that they will be married someday soon, but that as far as he is concerned we can skip any idea of coming

We are terribly upset but he refuses to discuss the matter further with us. What to do now?—SICK AT HEART

DEAR SICK:

Yes, I can imagine how sick you do feel. But I also can imagine how sick the young man feels to find his parents so alien to the young lady of his choice.

Oh, I know how important his choice of a bride was to you both. But do you honestly think this short weekend was long enough to judge her? And isn't his judgment in this case more important than yours?

After all, he must have a pretty fair knowledge of the fair sex by now, and he is a mature adult, certainly old enough to choose a wife.

Why don't you make a trip to see him, and tell him his choice is your choice? After all, you don't want to lose this son you love so dearly, and any kind of amends is worth making, don't you think?—M.M.

P.S. Please don't think I'm not sympathetic because I am—but I'm sympathetic toward your son and the young lady, too. If she is as "hopeless" as she sounds, she is genuinely in need of all the kindness and affection you and your husband can tender her.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Gill, a gourmand, on the go

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P-T Food Editor

Today's Chef of the Week, Don G. Gill, has the imagination and ability to create food fitting the appetite of the gourmand—yet, here's what he has for breakfast: a special juice, corn flakes and a cup of cocoa. It NEVER varies!

And for dinner, he'll settle any day for a can of baked beans and some wieners. Daughters Kimberly, 7, and Alison, 2, seem to agree with Pop. Just imagine the life-of-a-wife who never has to wonder "how shall I cook those eggs—or what'll I have for dinner?"

Gill is a native son. He left his mark of leadership on Fremont Elementary, Jefferson Junior and Wilson High Schools. He devoted his freshman year to Long Beach City College, but finished at Occidental.

* * * *

GILL'S activities in all the aforementioned schools ranged from speaking—to singing—to sports. He was a student reader and lecturer in Occidental's economics department and served as vice-president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and president of Phi Kappa Alpha fraternities.

Don's father, the late Anthony (Tony) Gill, was equally well-known, having been director of Poly High's band and orchestra for 26 years.

Gill's first position was in 1944 with the research department of Bank of America. He was serving as lending officer and credit analyst when he accepted a position with the City of Long Beach as administrative assistant in the department of finance. He also did public relations for "Chef" and former City Manager Sam Vickers. Gill produced and narrated the first motion picture ever made of our city.

* * * *

IN 1956, HE joined the Los Altos Association as general manager of Home Owners' Association, and in 1961 became self-employed . . . economic research, trust deed loans and development of investment ventures.

Gill's past finds him on the board of directors of Long Beach Community Chest, the Heart Association and Volunteers of America. He has "chaired" such organizations as Community Welfare Council, the Citizens Fair Taxation Committee, Long Beach Area Multiple Sclerosis campaign and the Los Altos area March of Dimes.

He has served as president, Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce and of the SAE Alumni Association.

Presently, he is vice-chairman of United Way Crusade, Greater Long Beach Area. Gill still finds time to "chair" the New Main Library committee and the Economic Opportunities Council. He also is a member of the Marina advisory committee, City of Long Beach.

* * * *

PROBABLY ONE of the most outstanding feats of today's "Chef" is the All-Western Band Review of which he has been executive director for 10 years. This event, sponsored by the city, is the largest high school marching band competition in the nation.

Gill is a life member of the Long Beach Junior Chamber and SAE fraternity. As to the latter, he is vice-president of the California Lambda (SAE) Housing Corp.

Vice-President and program chairman, Downtown Kiwanis Club, he still finds time to belong to the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, Elks Lodge No. 888, Recreation Park Golf Club and the Long Beach 49er Club.

Just when he finds time to cook, we wouldn't know. But after writing this, we can understand his "a-guy-in-a-hurry" menus.

We've been told, however, and we quote a friend—"last Sunday evening Don and Sandy Gill treated us to a most special meal. Sandy's complementary dishes were so perfect with Don's marinated seven-bone roast, we would recommend them highly."

Well, "behind every successful husband there is a wife," and Sandy, the former Sandra Lee Hicks of Long Beach, did win the $5 prize for her "Mud Pie" recipe. It's composed of chocolate cookie-crumb pastry, filled with coffee ice cream and topped with chocolate frosting. Says she—"it's great with Don's Party Roast."

PARTY ROAST

Mix this marinade and pour over a round bone roast (allow 1 pound of meat per person). Cover and refrigerate for 2 days, turning meat each day.

1 cup red wine
1 cup vinegar
2½ cups oil
⅔ cup HOT sauce
1 bottle Russian dressing
1 large Bermuda onion, chopped fine
½ tsp. onion powder
3 cloves garlic, mashed
1 tsp. coarse grind pepper
dash of chili powder

Bring meat to room temperature before barbecuing. Barbecue over VERY HOT COALS, basting often. (Our "chef" even thinks the meat is best when it catches fire.)

Good served with stuffed baked potatoes, a sweet and sour bean salad, garlic bread and an ice cream pie.

Don G. Gill

Woman's Club plans luncheon

The North Long Beach Women's Club will hold a noon luncheon meeting Wednesday in Houghton Park Club House, 6301 Myrtle Ave. An executive board meeting will be held at 10 a.m.

Amundson, McGhee read vows

Linda Jo McGhee and John C. Amundson recited nuptial vows Saturday afternoon in the Los Altos United Church of Christ in Long Beach.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan McGhee, 1909 Bellflower Blvd., wore a gown of silk organza with front panel appliqued with Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her bouffant illusion veil was held by a crystal and pearl tiara.

* * * *

JOYCE WELTY was maid of honor; Kristine Amundson, sister of the groom, and Eleanor McNeill were bridesmaids.

The groom, son of Mrs. Carl Amundson, 2369 Charlemagne, and the late Dr. Amundson, chose Karl Andrews as best man and David Long and Harry Dirks as ushers. Susan Jo Scott, cousin of the bride, and Patrick McGhee, brother of the bride, were flower girl and ringbearer.

The bride was graduated from Wilson High School, the groom from Millikan High. Both are attending Long Beach State College.

MRS. RONALD KECK

Donald W. Kecks to make home in Long Beach

Candlelight Chapel in North Long Beach was setting for the nuptials uniting in marriage Carol Sue MacDonald and Ronald Wayne Keck.

Parents of the newlyweds are Messrs. and Mmes. Robert M. MacDonald and Roland W. Keck, all of Paramount.

The bride wore a short gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta. Her veil was held by a crown of pearls and crystals.

Honor attendants were Christine Hammond and El Faego Torres. William Keck and John Swank seated guests.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

It's his choice, you know

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

A very odd thing has happened. Our son, now 24 years old, called us from out of state (where he presently is employed in a subsidiary company owned by his father) and asked if he could bring home a girl he is very much in love with and wants to marry.

Naturally we were delighted and excited as all-get-out. Our son always has been a very handsome boy, was an excellent student, graduating from college with honors. Ever since he was a young fellow in high school, girls galore ran after him but he never showed any special interest.

So now, at last, this was a very special occasion!

Well, Mrs. M., he arrived with the girl and my heavens how in the world he could ever have fallen for her his Dad and I will never know. She not only isn't pretty, or faintly attractive, but she is downright ugly with protruding teeth and legs like fence posts.

Her hair is scrawny, she has a bad complexion and her nose looks as though it had started to grow in one direction, then decided in favor of another.

I was actually ashamed to introduce her to friends.

Oh, I suppose if she'd been brilliant or had a scintillating personality you could overlook her unfortunate appearance, but she is very difficult to talk to, is shy to the point of no return and, as far as we could gather, had never read anything much beyond Bugs Bunny.

I asked our son if he already had proposed and he said he hadn't, that he wanted to bring her home to meet us, but that he was sure there was an "understanding."

His dad and I both advised him to wait and quite bluntly told him what we thought.

I'm afraid this was a mistake. He and the young lady left a day sooner than expected, and now he has called and said all is settled, that they will be married someday soon, but that as far as he is concerned we can skip any idea of coming

We are terribly upset but he refuses to discuss the matter further with us. What to do now?—SICK AT HEART

DEAR SICK:

Yes, I can imagine how sick you do feel. But I also can imagine how sick the young man feels to find his parents so allen to the young lady of his choice.

Oh, I know how important his choice of a bride was to you both. But do you honestly think this short weekend was long enough to judge her? And isn't his judgment in this case more important than yours?

After all, he must have a pretty fair knowledge of the fair sex by now, and he is a mature adult, certainly old enough to choose a wife.

Why don't you make a trip to see him, and tell him his choice is your choice?

After all, you don't want to lose this son you love so dearly, and any kind of amends is worth making, don't you think?—M.M.

P.S. Please don't think I'm not sympathetic because I am—but I'm sympathetic toward your son and the young lady, too. If she is as "hopeless" as she sounds, she is genuinely in need of all the kindness and affection you and your husband can tender her.

'Gidget' Claims Adults 'Categorize' Teenagers

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

THE 13-YEAR-OLD GIRLS were on a shopping trip, but it was more than that to them.

It was an adventure. It was delight. It was being on their own in an adult world.

They had taken the bus to a Los Angeles department store.

One of them, Sally Field, wanted to buy a bracelet. She picked one up to more closely examine it.

"Put it down!" rasped an irate clerk. "Don't handle anything."

At least, thought Sally, a clerk had finally recognized that she was there.

Politely, Sally explained her mission and went to the extent of showing she had the money to make a purchase.

The clerk's manner changed—for the worse. She became ruder and treated the teenager as if having the money for a purchase still didn't entitle her to even enter the store.

EXAGGERATED? Perhaps, but not in the eyes of the victim of the rudeness.

Sally, now 18 and the title star of ABC-TV's fall "Gidget" series, never forgot it.

An isolated incident?

No. There were five girls on that shopping trip and each, in different Los Angeles stores, received similar treatment.

"It was the worst thing they could have done to us," said Sally. "We were polite and trying to be adult.

"They put us down and it made us feel like saying something back, we were so resentful.

"It made us feel like wanting to mess up things, like taking something from one counter and leaving it on another."

They didn't talk back. They didn't mess up things. They behaved more adult than the adults.

But they felt put down. It was unfair.

"ADULTS SHOULD TAKE every teenager as a different individual," said Sally.

"Ok, let's assume that my sales clerk had been given a rough time once by a teenager.

"Is that any reason for her to take it out on me?

"If she had a nasty adult customer, I'm sure she'd talk nicely to the next one."

Too many adults, Sally feels, categorize teenagers.

Personally; she has never known a teenager who was "a hood." She knows there aren't really very many hoods.

"But the terrible thing is that so many adults have this image of teenagers," she said.

She's hopeful that the Screen Gems "Gidget" series will help destroy this mistaken image.

"If there's one thing that has been done," said Sally, "it is to make 'Gidget' intelligent."

SURE, SHE HAS PROBLEMS. But intelligent reasoning is employed by the title star to figure out why she had the problem and what knowledge gained from the experience.

Sally hopes to gain considerable knowledge from her video experience as "Gidget."

Selected from among girls attending the Columbia workshop. Sally still can't get over feeling:

"Most fantastic thing . . . Ecstatic . . . Work just most fun . . . Best exhaustion that ever was."

Best because it's in line with a personal mission for a new teenager image.

"Somehow, in other stories written about teenagers by adults, the teenagers always turn out to be dodos."

With the help of the "Gidget" scripts, Sally's out to prove that teenager dodos are extinct.

'Gidget' Claims Adults 'Categorize' Teenagers

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

THE 13-YEAR-OLD GIRLS were on a shopping trip, but it was more than that to them.

It was an adventure. It was delight. It was being on their own in an adult world.

They had taken the bus to a Los Angeles department store.

One of them, Sally Field, wanted to buy a bracelet. She picked one up to more closely examine it.

"Put it down!" rasped an irate clerk. "Don't handle anything."

At least, thought Sally, a clerk had finally recognized that she was there.

Politely, Sally explained her mission and went to the extent of showing she had the money to make a purchase.

The clerk's manner changed—for the worse. She became ruder and treated the teenager as if having the money for a purchase still didn't entitle her to even enter the store.

For TV, Movies Are Scarcer Than Ever

WHAT TELEVISION PROGRAMMERS would like to get in the way of movies is typified by (left) Vivien Leigh in "Gone With the Wind," Julie Andrews as "Mary Poppins" and Elizabeth Taylor as "Cleopatra." Such films, however, are still popular as re-releases in regular theater market.

HOLLYWOOD (U P I) — The motion picture pool for first-run televiewing is drying up.

What with four movies a week beaming this fall first-rate, recent vintage films are becoming scarce — upping the price of good ones and increasing the number of not-so-good ones.

Television's problem is compounded by the number of new risque pictures that are not precisely the right fare for home viewing.

Grant Tinker, West Coast programming chief for NBC-TV, recognizes the approaching dearth, and says: "If everyone continues using movies at the present rate it portends a shortage in the near future."

* * * *

NBC THUS FAR has been the chief source of movies on the tube (excepting local stations) with "Wednesday Night at the Movies" and "Saturday Night at the Movies." ABC has done well with its Sunday night movies, and now CBS has joined the club with Thursday night movies.

The market is saturated.

"Viewers are seeing as many movies as they'll ever see on TV right now," Tinker said.

"Fewer televisable pictures are being made, and the quality, of course, is down. By televisible, I mean pictures with themes that are suitable for family viewing.

The networks are able to clip offending scenes from pictures but when the entire theme is off-color, the big webs back away.

* * * *

DOPE ADDICTION, prostitution, nymphomania and sin are generally considered out of bounds, depending on the treatment.

"I can't foresee the television climate of tomorrow," said Tinker. "Perhaps TV standards will maintain the sanctity of the home. Perhaps the moral aspects will be less a basis for judgment.

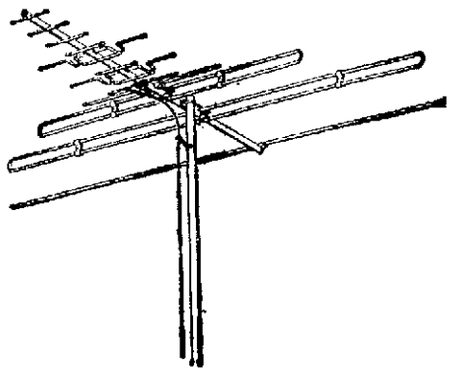

"But I can't imagine our showing 'Irma La Douce'."

Further complications are added by block-buster movies that can earn more money by re-releases in the future. "Gone With the Wind," "Cleopatra," "The Music Man," "Mary Poppins" and such will probably be held back for many, many years.

"Movies are popular with viewers," Tinker said, "but except for an occasional big one, they seldom are in the top 20. However, they're a hit with sponsors, and that's important in our business."

Now that top-flight pictures are becoming scarce, there is a possibility the studios will turn out movies especially for television. Universal and NBC already have explored the possibilities.

SPECIAL

LEGEND of Jimmy Blue Eyes—Steve Allen is host for the world TV premiere of the lone U. S. entry in this year's Cannes Film Festival, a folk ballad with a jazz background which was nominated for an Oscar as 1964's best live action short subject. In color at 10 p.m., ch. 2, film tells of a legendary jazz trumpeter who sells his soul to the devil in exchange for the "highest note." Told in narrative verse, film features the music of Teddy Buckner and the All-Stars, and an all-Negro cast headed by Garland Thompson, Jeff Burton and Isabelle Cooley. Production was by Robert Clouse, whose Oscar-winning "The Cadillac" will be re-shown next Sunday on KTLA.

AN ESSAY OF DOORS—Harry Reasoner rambles through an endlessly fascinating world of doors in a "CBS News Special" being repeated at 10:30 p.m., ch. 2. In a light, humorous essay we see doors of many types—bronze, wooden, plastic, French, Victorian, swinging, dentist, closet and screen—plus film footage of doors used in movie classics starring Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Gloria Swanson.

TONIGHT—Joey Bishop continues his stint as guest-host for the vacationing Johnny Carson by playing host to fellow members of the "Hollywood Clan"—Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. Joining in the 11:15 p.m., ch. 4 color show are singer Nancy Ann Howes and Emily Yancy.

SPECIAL

LEGEND of Jimmy Blue Eyes—Steve Allen is host for the world TV premiere of the lone U. S. entry in this year's Cannes Film Festival, a folk ballad with a jazz background which was nominated for an Oscar as 1964's best live action short subject. In color at 10 p.m., ch. 2, film tells of a legendary jazz trumpeter who sells his soul to the devil in exchange for the "highest note." Told in narrative verse, film features the music of Teddy Buckner and the All-Stars, and an all-Negro cast headed by Garland Thompson, Jeff Burton and Isabelle Cooley. Production was by Robert Clouse, whose Oscar-winning "The Cadillac" will be re-shown next Sunday on KTLA.

AN ESSAY OF DOORS—Harry Reasoner rambles through an endlessly fascinating world of doors in a "CBS News Special" being repeated at 10:30 p.m., ch. 2. In a light, humorous essay we see doors of many types—bronze, wooden, plastic, French, Victorian, swinging, dentist, closet and screen—plus film footage of doors used in movie classics starring Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Gloria Swanson.

TONIGHT—Joey Bishop continues his stint as guest-host for the vacationing Johnny Carson by playing host to fellow members of the "Hollywood Clan"—Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. Joining in the 11:15 p.m., ch. 4 color show are singer Nancy Ann Howes and Emily Yancy.

Pan and Fan Mail

During these days of the restless teenagers, filled with serious problems, solutions, whole or partial, are difficult to find.

It is nice to know that a station like KRLA supplies wholesome and clean entertainment.

I attribute the fact that my children, Karen, 17, Donna, 13, and Ricky, 8, have their ears tuned in to KRLA every possible moment.

By this I do not wish to imply that they are, to put it in teen-talk, "squares," and spend every second near a transistor.

They do enjoy outside activities.

However, I can not help but feel that many young people would keep out of certain trouble if they tuned in to KRLA.

Dick Witkowski, Chino

Could you possibly recommend a station for restless adults, filled with serious problems?

* * * *

I have heard that the great show "The Man From UNCLE" is going to change its time to 10 p.m. on Friday evenings.

I was and am very disappointed that the networks, when they get a good show like UNCLE, have to kill it by putting it on so late.

Can we do anything about it?

Joan Onusic, Long Beach.

I don't know about "we," but you might try taking a nap after school and asking your parents to let you stay up later.

The advertisers and the TV technicians should be intelligent enough to realize that a commercial that almost blasts a listener out of his chair and causes him to turn the volume off his TV set does not sell products.

Linda P. Crossett, Costa Mesa.

The National Association of Broadcasters and the Federal Communications Commission are currently investigating deblasting techniques.

'Voice of Desert'

Naturalist Joseph Wood Krutch pointedly comments on man's role in nature during "The Voice of the Desert," an hour COLOR special repeated at 5 p.m. today (Sunday), channel 4.

Comments Krutch:

"When ranch visitors amuse themselves by lassoing the saguaros cactus and pull over a giant which has been a century and a half in growing, that is merely another illustration of the fact that, of all living creatures, man is the most dangerous to everything else that lives — as well as to himself."

'THE LEGEND OF JESSE JAMES'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Series Makes James' Boys 'Knights in Shining Bandanas'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—All things are possible on television, even making heroes of the notorious James brothers.

The new Western series, titled "The Legend of Jesse James," co-stars Allen Case and newcomer Chris Jones in stories that are plainly more legend than factual.

Case, in the role of brother Frank James, once starred in "The Deputy." He was a lawman. Now he's an outlawman.

ALLEN CASE

Handsome, young and articulate, Case has an explanation for converting a pair of rough-neck losers into knights in shining bandanas.

* * * *

"WE'RE GOING to make them good-bad guys," he said with a grin.

"There are four divisions of western characters. First there is the super-hero. He is a good-good guy. Then, like the James brothers there are good-bad guys. After them come the bad-good guys. And finally the bad-bad guys.

"The good-good guy kills the bad-bad guy, and the good-bad guy kills the bad-good guy.

"The good-good guy gets the girl, and the good-bad guy goes on to bigger and better things."

* * * *

CASE ADMITS that the ABC-TV series will depict the James boys as Robin Hoods of the Old West. Hoods they were, and robbin' trains and banks was their occupation. They weren't just stealing hubcaps off wagon trains.

"It would be impossible for us to follow history," Case said. "But we are keeping the wardrobe and sets as authentic as possible. The writers have taken tidbits of lore from the lives of the brothers and incorporated them in the stories.

"Actually we're trying to demonstrate a new point of view of the outlaws. Their robberies are not really the highlights of each episode."

* * * *

CASE believes the romanticized version of Jesse and Frank James is justified because they were colorful, legendary characters.

"Some people think that it's wrong to glorify bandits, and I'd agree with them if the story was contemporary. It would be like glamorizing John Dillinger.

"But the James boys were a cut above the gangsters of this century. They actually started out robbing trains to return money to the landowners in the territory who were victimized by the railroad people.

'THE LEGEND OF JESSE JAMES'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Series Makes James' Boys 'Knights in Shining Bandanas'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—All things are possible on television, even making heroes of the notorious James brothers.

The new Western series, titled "The Legend of Jesse James," co-stars Allen Case and newcomer Chris Jones in stories that are plainly more legend than factual.

Case, in the role of brother Frank James, once starred in "The Deputy." He was a lawman. Now he's an outlawman.

ALLEN CASE

Handsome, young and articulate, Case has an explanation for converting a pair of rough-neck losers into knights in shining bandanas.

* * * *

"WE'RE GOING to make them good-bad guys," he said with a grin.

"There are four divisions of western characters. First there is the super-hero. He is a good-good guy. Then, like the James brothers there are good-bad guys. After them come the bad-good guys. And finally the bad-bad guys.

"The good-good guy kills the bad-bad guy, and the good-bad guy kills the bad-good guy.

"The good-good guy gets the girl, and the good-bad guy goes on to bigger and better things."

* * * *

CASE ADMITS that the ABC-TV series will depict the James boys as Robin Hoods of the Old West. Hoods they were, and robbin' trains and banks was their occupation. They weren't just stealing hubcaps off wagon trains.

"It would be impossible for us to follow history," Case said. "But we are keeping the wardrobe and sets as authentic as possible. The writers have taken tidbits of lore from the lives of the brothers and incorporated them in the stories.

"Actually we're trying to demonstrate a new point of view of the outlaws. Their robberies are not really the highlights of each episode."

* * * *

CASE believes the romanticized version of Jesse and Frank James is justified because they were colorful, legendary characters.

"Some people think that it's wrong to glorify bandits, and I'd agree with them if the story was contemporary. It would be like glamorizing John Dillinger.

"But the James boys were a cut above the gangsters of this century. They actually started out robbing trains to return money to the landowners in the territory who were victimized by the railroad people.

CRITIC'S CORNER

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Shows

Program: President's News Conference aired last Wednesday on all network channels.

The time has come when journalism schools should start special courses for White House correspondents.

For television—the President's news conferences specifically—has cast the reporters in a new role.

Like it or not, they are television performers in the eyes of millions of viewers.

They are performers, although not actors. There is no need to emote.

But there is a need to firmly grasp the microphone and speak in a distinct voice.

Theirs' is the visual and audible responsibility for projecting a good image of reporters to the eyes of the nation.

For the most part, they muffled that image at this last presidential news conference.

Speak up, gentlemen. Mike fright is not fatal.

Program: "Vacation Playhouse" presentation of "Joe Starr, First Baseman," aired July 23 on channel 2.

It is four months before Thanksgiving, but they served up a turkey anyway on this latest issue of "Vacation Playhouse." A projected baseball series which understandably never passed the pilot stage, "Starr" is of such ancient vintage it still has Casey Stengel managing the N. Y. Yankees. But the story is older than old Case.

It's about a baseball rookie who makes it big with the Yankees. He's hit by a beanball, and from then on bats like he was a Dodger (current edition). His nerves are like shredded wheat, and he's benched while he broods over his fate for almost a half-hour. Up comes the big game, two out, men on base, and our hero comes to bat. You'll never guess it, but Frank Merriwell overcomes that fear and punches over the winning run, just like that. Ho-hum.

Critic Daku of "Variety"

Don't knock the shows you see every week. Be grateful the real bombs never survive the pilot stage.

"Vacation Playhouse," a showcase for losers, presented "Starr, First Baseman," a pilot film made so long ago that Casey Stengel was still manager of the New York Yankees.

Starr is Joe Starr, a rookie first baseman who is leading the Yanks to a pennant. It had everything possible going against it.

First of all, sports dramas are historically unsuccessful in movies as well as television. Secondly, the star, Martin Milner, (of the defunct "Route 66" series) was never cut out to be a ballplayer, possibly excepting Little League. And third, the dialogue was more suitable for a seminar than a baseball dugout.

Originally the series was to be titled "Starr of the Yankees." Thus it was fitting that CBS-TV, which now owns the Yanks, should beam the show.

COMMON SENSE vs BALDNESS

S. I. TUROFF, Director
Calif. Turoff Clinics

In a recent interview, S. I. Turoff, nationally known authority on baldness, and director of the large organization of the Turoff Scalp Clinic said.

"Most people don't stop to realize that in 95% of the cases where a person is on the road to baldness, common sense on his or her part could prevent this tragedy."

People simply do not get around to doing something about their balding condition until in many cases it is too late. Yet, in the years that they have the danger signals of approaching baldness, such as excessive hair fall, dandruff, itchiness, dry scalp, thinning or bald spots—in those years they probably spend substantial sums on their teeth and general body health.

Yes, it is peculiar, but because baldness doesn't hurt like most parts of the body that are wasting away, many people simply let it go too long.

Our Turoff Clinics, in many major cities, are growing by leaps and bounds because more and more intelligent people are discovering that the secret of a healthy, thick head of hair is professional treatment to remove the causes of hair loss.

Our Turoff Clinics have nothing mysterious in them. We get results by the use of the latest scientific methods and apparatus in the field of scalp culture.

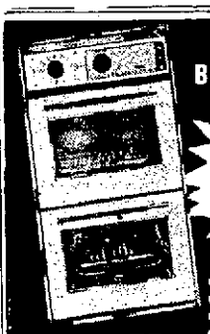

We like skeptical people—they become our biggest boosters. However, if YOU have a scalp problem, don't be so skeptical that you don't come into our clinics for that all-important FREE examination. There is no obligation, we'd enjoy talking to you and we may well change your ideas concerning your hair loss. Come in very soon. No appointment needed for FREE examination.

Capt. Max Schumacher's job is anything but dull. At the controls of his traffic-watch helicopter, he not only spies the freeways for jam-ups and reports them so that other drivers may avoid the same misfortune, but he saves lives as well. The Hunted Queen

URSULA Andress, contender for the most beautiful woman in the world title and currently starring in "She," screen version of the famous H. Rider Haggard novel, finds her new found fame constricting.

Until recently she was the attractive but unknown wife of actor John Derek and was happy to stay that way. Then Ursula made her movie debut as the sleek, blonde in "Dr. No" and her privacy disappeared. People began to stop her on the street and say, "Excuse me, but aren't you . . ."

Her shopping expeditions became more and more limited as she went from one picture to the other and more and more people began stopping her on the street, in stores and restaurants with requests for autographs.

"I BEGAN to feel hunted," said Ursula. "After all, I did little but walk around in a bikini in 'Dr. No' and already people were recognizing me. Now I know how Elvis Presley feels. I got to know Elvis when I worked with him in 'Fun in Acapulco' and I really feel sorry for him. He doesn't dare to go to a movie or night club or even a well known restaurant because he always gets mobbed. I don't want to have to live like that."

However, Miss Andress, with the help of her husband, actor John Derek, has devised a simple formula for coping with part of the problem. When people stop her on the street and ask if she is Ursula Andress, she always shakes her head and says no.

"I tell them I'm a Swedish model who looks like her," she says, "and then they lose all interest in me. Of course, I realize it's not nice to be untruthful, but this is what is known as a white lie. It's about the only way most of us who work in movies can preserve our privacy."

ADVENTURE, fantasy, spectacle and romance are the ingredients of "She," which comes to the Fox West Coast theater Aug. 11 in a Seven Arts-Hammer production in CinemaScope and color, presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

It is the fascinating story of a 2,000-year-old white queen of an African kingdom who finds in a contemporary Englishman the reincarnation of the lover she had killed in ancient Egypt.

Miss Andress plays the title role of Queen Ayesha. The role of the young Englishman under her spell is enacted by John Richardson.

Ursula Andress lends her captivating beauty to the H. Rider Haggard novel "She." Above, in relaxed pose, below, with John Richardson.

Until recently she was the attractive but unknown wife of actor John Derek and was happy to stay that way. Then Ursula made her movie debut as the sleek, blonde in "Dr. No" and her privacy disappeared. People began to stop her on the street and say, "Excuse me, but aren't you . . ."

Her shopping expeditions became more and more limited as she went from one picture to the other and more and more people began stopping her on the street, in stores and restaurants with requests for autographs.

"I BEGAN to feel hunted," said Ursula. "After all, I did little but walk around in a bikini in 'Dr. No' and already people were recognizing me. Now I know how Elvis Presley feels. I got to know Elvis when I worked with him in 'Fun in Acapulco' and I really feel sorry for him. He doesn't dare to go to a movie or night club or even a well known restaurant because he always gets mobbed. I don't want to have to live like that."

However, Miss Andress, with the help of her husband, actor John Derek, has devised a simple formula for coping with part of the problem. When people stop her on the street and ask if she is Ursula Andress, she always shakes her head and says no.

"I tell them I'm a Swedish model who looks like her," she says, "and then they lose all interest in me. Of course, I realize it's not nice to be untruthful, but this is what is known as a white lie. It's about the only way most of us who work in movies can preserve our privacy."

ADVENTURE, fantasy, spectacle and romance are the ingredients of "She," which comes to the Fox West Coast theater Aug. 11 in a Seven Arts-Hammer production in CinemaScope and color, presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

It is the fascinating story of a 2,000-year-old white queen of an African kingdom who finds in a contemporary Englishman the reincarnation of the lover she had killed in ancient Egypt.

Miss Andress plays the title role of Queen Ayesha. The role of the young Englishman who falls under her spell is enacted by John Richardson.

Ursula Andress lends her captivating beauty to the H. Rider Haggard novel "She." Above, in relaxed pose, below, with John Richardson.

It's a Cruel World for Admirers of IBC Beauties

IBC contestants are guarded from male admirers 24 hours a day. Here, hostess Mrs. M. C. F. Graeber and firemen escort two beauties of a past pageant on a stroll to insure full "hands off" policy.

By JERRY CONWAY

HOW BOLD are the attempts of young men to meet beauty contestants — especially in a pageant that lures curvaceous creatures from all over the world?

The International Beauty Congress Pageant, held each August in Long Beach, not only does this luring but is well known for its "hands off" policy.

How thwarting is it for a man to view the world's lovelies—knowing he mustn't touch?

Ray Cunningham, writer for the Long Beach News Bureau, suggests it just might be a little rougher on the girls. "Women can't be isolated from men—without their becoming crabby and irritated," he insists.

Maybe so. But the cases at hand seem to point in the other direction—it's harder on the men. Hostesses for the IBC pageant claim they have to be sharp to keep the girls immune to the male approach.

A HOSTESS is with a contestant every time a beauty leaves her hotel room; if the beauty must attend an event that demands an escort—such as the Coronation Ball—IBC not only decides who the escort will be but also decides to watch his every move.

Georgia Berbower, hostess in 1958 for Miss Canada and Miss South Carolina, recalls vividly an attempt by escorts to date her "responsibilities."

"We were invited to a private party after the IBC parade. The young men who were assigned to escort us back to the hotel had promised the young girls that they would take them to Disneyland. The only polite way to get rid of the men was to ask them to stop at the hotel for our wraps. While the girls went to their rooms we told them the score and they took it pretty well."

But not all incidents are smoothed so easily. Tania Verstak, Miss Australia and Miss International Beauty in 1963, settled one instance that might possibly still be hurting.

Tania had the talent of giving ad-lib talks whenever she was asked; she could do it with such poise and warmth that her hostess recalls her leaving tears in the eyes of her listeners.

A YOUNG BACHELOR minister—word is he never married—felt that Tania would make an ideal wife and work well with him in helping other people. After the pageant he called Mrs. Howard Dumm, Tania's hostess, and asked her for help in getting messages to Tania. But Tania's reply was that she had no time and in a few days she went home to her own country.

Not all instances are so melancholy. Some are downright hilarious. Hostess Viola Hixon remembers an episode from last year's pageant.

The beauties were enjoying a day at Disneyland and were running quite a pace from attraction to attraction. Suddenly an elderly gentleman began to keep pace with them. Soon a little boy and two other children came alongside the men, their legs "doing fifty" to keep up. "But Daddy," said the boy, "the family isn't with us. . . ."

Once there was a young man who nearly succeeded. He arranged to have a front seat every night at the IBC spectaculars—until he decided on the one contestant who was the most ideal. He then arranged to sit next to her at the Lions Club Luncheon held in honor of the girls. When he was told it is impossible to date a contestant during the pageant, he convinced the beauty to stay in America for an entire month—and he saw her every day.

THEY PLANNED to be married, until the girl woke up one fine morning and decided it was time to go home—6,000 miles away. And that was the end of that.

Gallantry failed for a young man in 1958. He had fallen in love with Miss Italy who resembled Marilyn Monroe. He sent a red rose to her room every day. One morning he decided on a more direct approach and he called Valeria Fabrizzi from the hotel desk. Since the hostess for Miss Italy was in the beauty's room at the moment, the call was switched to Miss Italy's room. The conversation was one-sided — Valeria couldn't speak English. She finally drifted off to sleep and the young man may still be wondering what happened.

Only males permitted close to pageant beauties, other than supervised escorts and firemen-guardians, are press photographers of the world.

Sheer shock failed for a young man in 1954. A little girl—obviously well bribed—suddenly broke "curb" ranks the spectators formed during the IBC parade and rushed to Miss Canada's float. Dodging policeman's arm, the girl handed Marlene Leeson a note and disappeared into the crowd. Miss Canada opened the note and read a man's name, address, and phone number—and a man's request.

The request? "Please call me for a date."

EVEN BROTHERS are cut off from visiting their sisters during the pageant—mainly because all men claim they are brothers when they make their attempts.

Miss Guam floored her hostess and others in 1954. Doris Sablan received more phone calls and male visitors at the hotel desk than any contestant the hostesses could remember. "And what was so unnerving," recalls one hostess, "was that every one claimed to be her cousin."

Later in the pageant Miss Guam tried to relieve their amazement. "In Guam," said Doris, "we are all cousins."

Most of the male attempts are cut off by IBC officials as politely as possible. However, there must be a weak link some-

Man's imagination or lack of it may be the only limits

Ultimate Potential of Computer Has Science Dreaming

By LOU JOBST

Under the direction of an operator seated at a console for manual control, a computer goes about its work. Man in background changes a magnetic tape.

MAN'S imagination or lack of it may be the only limits on the powers of his electronic genie, the computer.

This is the view of a growing number of computer scientists including Killiam H. Mitchel of 11301 Wallingsford Dr., Rossmoor.

Former director of management planning for the U.S. Bureau of Budget and a trained political scientist who left this fascinating field to ride herd on electronic brains, Mitchel is boss of the Computer Sciences Laboratory at USC.

The USC lab houses two computers worth about $2 million, a "fair sized" layout even by Los Angeles County standards. The county has the greatest concentration of computers in the United States.

ONE OF MITCHEL'S charges, an all-transistorized, medium-large Honeywell 800 is capable of processing and printing all the names in the two-inch thick, 1580-page Los Angeles Central Telephone Directory in six minutes by performing 30,000 calculations per second.

But, asserts Mitchel, that's an elementary exercise compared to the potential of computers.

"We make the mistake too often of thinking about the computer as purely a mathematical tool," he states.

"If we considered it, instead, a general purpose symbol manipulator, we could modify the nature of the man-machine relationship to make it fit almost anything we want it to do.

"There is probably no field of knowledge known to man in which computers could not play a vital role, complementing man's imagination and giving him more time to do the thinking which he alone can do."

MITCHEL believes computers could be used in fine arts (selections of color combinations are computer problem), language teaching and even in government management games.

Equipment in the computer field already has advanced beyond man's present practical ability to use it, says Mitchel.

The USC center performs a multitude of tasks in addition to teaching and research including data processing of student registration, alumni records and faculty and staff payrolls.

More than 100 scientific research projects including work in medicine, chemistry, engineering, juvenile delinquency, oceanography, suicide, geology, economics and city planning are being conducted by its computers.

THESE RANGE from attempts to determine relationship between facial disfigurement and juvenile delinquency to an analysis of the voting behavior in the state legislature and the habit patterns of local consumers.

Mitchel has set a really impressive task for his machines. He wants to make a survey of all the computers in the area to determine what information is available on each machine and what form it takes.

Dr. Clay L. Perry, director of the computer center at the University of California, San Diego, says there are definite limits to the capacities of computers.

The UCSD computer is the equal of anything found on any campus in the world.

It is equalled, in speed, by few anywhere. The San Diego computer can work in 70 seconds a problem that a man could not complete in a lifetime.

WHILE COMPUTERS are unrivalled in accurate evaluation and systematized absorption and assimilation of vast amounts of information, they aren't about to challenge the human mind for subtlety and capacity.

Computers cannot be expected to grapple successfully with the really "important" problems of mankind such as war, bigotry hatred, strife, greed, crime and the other vagaries of human nature.

They lack the necessary judgment (as, it appears, does most of mankind).

Mathematical beasts, the computer can be taught to play flawless checkers, but a not so good game of chess, a contest that relies more upon creative judgment. Their chess game, however, is good enough to beat many humans.

Perry adds, however, computers are being perfected and advanced at an astounding rate. A new generation of computers, he asserts, comes out about every three to five years, and the machines of 1961 are ponderous and slow by the standards of the present systems.

The United States, he continues, is the world leader in computer development and sales.

The immaculate UCSD center handles about 300 problems daily.

THESE INCLUDE highly complex projects in which computers are used to help chart ocean storm systems, trace the life cycle of sub atomic particles formed in atomic decay and in seismic detection work.

Most computer scientists believe the role computers will play in the day-to-day life of Americans will continue to grow by leaps and bounds.

Architects and designers such as Konrad Wachsmann believe computers soon will be used to design homes which will create the most comfortable and safest habitats in human history.

Wachsmann, a professor of architecture brought to Southern California from Genoa, envisions the day when homes, designed and developed by computers, will be manufactured in factories and mass distributed.

Companies all over the country are working feverishly to further improve computers.

ONE FIRM, Recognition Equipment, Inc. of Dallas, has developed a high speed computer which uses an electric eye to scan 2,400 printed characters a second.

REI has spent more than $3 million developing the machine, which is based on the biological principle of the human eye. The mechanical eye scans constantly like

Dr. W. H. Mitchel of Rossmoor believes computer potentials are far from ultimate achievement.

How Computer Operates

How does a computer operate?

In oversimplified and imaginative terms, the electronic brain has a memory which is housed in tiny rings or doughnuts and thinks or reacts through transistorized switches which have the ability to flip back and forth at fantastic speeds.

These high-speed calculations are made possible by employment of two basic number symbols, 1 and 0, the so-called binary system.

Specific memory is made possible by the fact that tiny memory rings are tiny magnets threaded with thin wires which can be arranged in various patterns.

Any number can be written and pictures even drawn by using these two symbols alone.

Virtually endless variations and sequences of doughnuts or rings can be made and when combined with a multitude of transistorized switches and electronic interconnections called logic circuits, the brain can perform prodigous feats of recall and analysis.

A pair of computers, for instance, may contain 20,000 flip-flop transistor switches and 1.5 to 1.6 million magnetic rings in its memory bank.

In operation, the computer works something like a telephone. Each computer problem or operation has a serial number which can be "dialed" like a phone number. (Except there is no dial.)

Data or information is fed to computers via punched cards or magnetic tape which is converted into electrical energy for use inside the machine.

When the problem is solved the electrical energy is converted back to symbols or printed words.

MAN'S imagination or lack of it may be the only limits on the powers of his electronic genie, the computer.

This is the view of a growing number of computer scientists including Killiam H. Mitchel of 11301 Wallingsford Dr., Rossmoor.

Former director of management planning for the U.S. Bureau of Budget and a trained political scientist who left this fascinating field to ride herd on electronic brains, Mitchel is boss of the Computer Sciences Laboratory at USC.

The USC lab houses two computers worth about $2 million, a "fair sized" layout even by Los Angeles County standards. The county has the greatest concentration of computers in the United States.

ONE OF MITCHEL'S charges, an all-transistorized, medium-large Honeywell 800 is capable of processing and printing all the names in the two-inch thick, 1580-page Los Angeles Central Telephone Directory in six minutes by performing 30,000 calculations per second.

But, asserts Mitchel, that's an elementary exercise compared to the potential of computers.

"We make the mistake too often of thinking about the computer as purely a mathematical tool," he states.

"If we considered it, instead, a general purpose symbol manipulator, we could modify the nature of the man-machine relationship to make it fit almost anything we want it to do.

"There is probably no field of knowledge known to man in which computers could not play a vital role, complementing man's imagination and giving him more time to do the thinking which he alone can do."

MITCHEL believes computers could be used in fine arts (selections of color combinations are computer problem), language teaching and even in government management games.

Equipment in the computer field already has advanced beyond man's present practical ability to use it, says Mitchel.

The USC center performs a multitude of tasks in addition to teaching and research including data processing of student registration, alumni records and faculty and staff payrolls.

More than 100 scientific research projects including work in medicine, chemistry, engineering, juvenile delinquency, oceanography, suicide, geology, economics and city planning are being conducted by its computers.

THESE RANGE from attempts to determine relationship between facial disfigurement and juvenile delinquency to an analysis of the voting behavior in the state legislature and the habit patterns of local consumers.

Mitchel has set a really impressive task for his machines. He wants to make a survey of all the computers in the area to determine what information is available on each machine and what form it takes.

Dr. Clay L. Perry, director of the computer center at the University of California, San Diego, says there are definite limits to the capacities of computers.

The UCSD computer is the equal of anything found on any campus in the world.

It is equalled, in speed, by few anywhere. The San Diego computer can work in 70 seconds a problem that a man could not complete in a lifetime.

WHILE COMPUTERS are unrivalled in accurate evaluation and systematized absorption and assimilation of vast amounts of information, they aren't about to challenge the human mind for subtlety and capacity.

Computers cannot be expected to grapple successfully with the really "important" problems of mankind such as war, bigotry hatred, strife, greed, crime and the other vagaries of human nature.

They lack the necessary judgment (as, it appears, does most of mankind).

Mathematical beasts, the computer can be taught to play flawless checkers, but a not so good game of chess, a contest that relies more upon creative judgment. Their chess game, however, is good enough to beat many humans.

Perry adds, however, computers are being perfected and advanced at an astounding rate. A new generation of computers, he asserts, comes out about every three to five years, and the machines of 1961 are ponderous and slow by the standards of the present systems.

The United States, he continues, is the world leader in computer development and sales.

The immaculate UCSD center handles about 300 problems daily.

THESE INCLUDE highly complex projects in which computers are used to help chart ocean storm systems, trace the life cycle of sub atomic particles formed in atomic decay and in seismic detection work.

Most computer scientists believe the role computers will play in the day-to-day life of Americans will continue to grow by leaps and bounds.

Dr. W. H. Mitchel of Rossmoor believes computer potentials are far from ultimate achievement.

Architects and designers such as Konrad Wachsmann believe computers soon will be used to design homes which will create the most comfortable and safest habitats in human history.

Wachsmann, a professor of architecture brought to Southern California from Genoa, envisions the day when homes, designed and developed by computers, will be manufactured in factories and mass distributed.

Companies all over the country are working feverishly to further improve computers.

ONE FIRM, Recognition Equipment, Inc. of Dallas, has developed a high speed computer which uses an electric eye to scan 2,400 printed characters a second.

REI has spent more than $3 million developing the machine, which is based on the biological principle of the human eye. The mechanical eye scans constantly like

How Computer Operates

How does a computer operate?

In oversimplified and imaginative terms, the electronic brain has a memory which is housed in tiny rings or doughnuts and thinks or reacts through transistorized switches which have the ability to flip back and forth at fantastic speeds.

These high-speed calculations are made possible by employment of two basic number symbols, 1 and 0, the so-called binary system.

Specific memory is made possible by the fact that tiny memory rings are tiny magnets threaded with thin wires which can be arranged in various patterns.

Any number can be written and pictures even drawn by using these two symbols alone.

Virtually endless variations and sequences of doughnuts or rings can be made and when combined with a multitude of transistorized switches and electronic interconnections called logic circuits, the brain can perform prodigous feats of recall and analysis.

A pair of computers, for instance, may contain 20,000 flip-flop transistor switches and 1.5 to 1.6 million magnetic rings in its memory bank.

In operation, the computer works something like a telephone. Each computer problem or operation has a serial number which can be "dialed" like a phone number. (Except there is no dial.)

Data or information is fed to computers via punched cards or magnetic tape which is converted into electrical energy for use inside the machine.

When the problem is solved the electrical energy is converted back to symbols or printed words.

Arizona's Mission of Mystery

By Jack B. Kemmerer

ALL of the Spanish missions established in the Southwest have wonderful legends concerning the pots of gold and rich jewels somehow acquired by the padres. According to the legends, the padres buried these tremendous riches when the great Spanish mission chain fell into general disorder under the newly established country of Mexico in 1821. These treasures, the legends insist, are still there, never reclaimed.

One mission stands out above all others when it comes to legends and Tumacacori Mission, now a strangely beautiful national monument in southern Arizona, has become known as the "Mission of Mystery."

Tumacacori Mission is easily reached, lying just 48 miles south of Tucson on U.S. 89. It is also just 18 miles north of Nogales and the Mexican border.

TUMACACORI is a picture book ruin through which roam the winds of memory and the ghosts of a thousand adventures, one of the finest of the many missions the Spanish zealots built. No truly imaginative person can even visit here without a quickening of the spirit and a feeling of awe.

The oldness of Arizona is present and, strangely, is not out of place in this modern day. Arizona, which celebrated its 52nd birthday on Feb. 14, 1965, is one of the very youngest of our states—in fact, the youngest of the first 48—yet it is, in many ways the oldest. It has Indian towns that exist today much as they did before Columbus was born, and the deserts and mountains that echoed to the voices of white men almost 100 years before there was a settlement from Maine to Florida.

Tumacacori itself is a very ancient place and was originally selected in 1691 as a mission site by one of the greatest of all missionaries, Father Eusebia Francisco Kino, a Jesuit, who introduced European culture to this region.

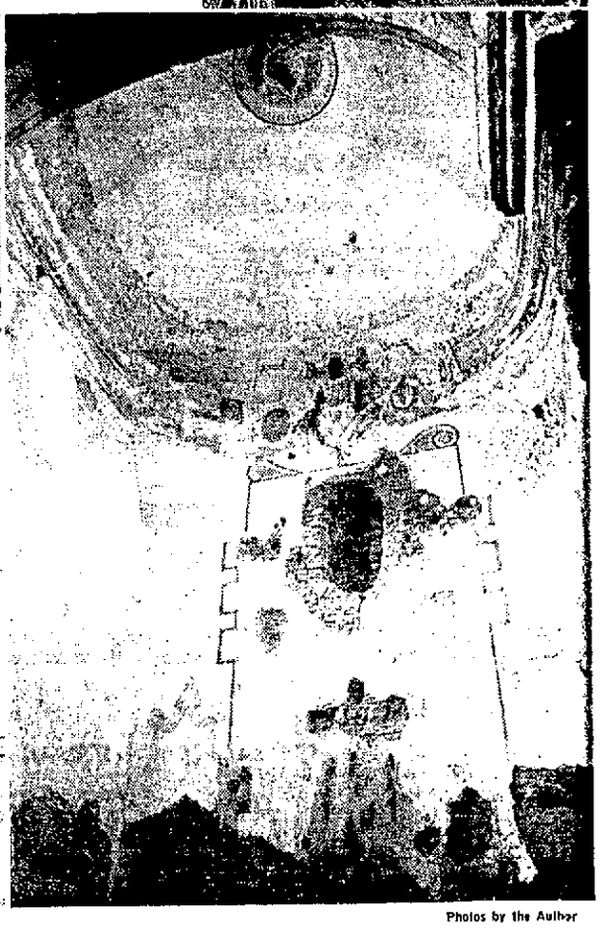

THE JESUITS were expelled from all Spanish dominions in 1767, and the following year the Franciscan Order took over the Sonora mission chain. Tumacacori was destroyed several times by raiding Apaches and each time the padres were forced to flee for their lives.

The present church, started between 1796 and 1806, was never completed on the outside. However, it was in use as a "live" mission until 1828 when the last resident missionary was withdrawn.

This came about because Mexico declared independence from Spain in 1821 and promptly ended the Spanish practice of using government money for establishing and maintaining missions. Before long, Mexico began ordering missionaries out of the frontiers, and requiring secularization of the missions.

Secularization means changing a church from a mission church to a parish church, and changing the missionary priests for diocesan priests. Where the mission church was supported by the government, the parish church was supported by the local community.

Tumacacori National Monument has an ancient mission, prominent in legend, as its central feature. Top, a sign marks mission entry; left, mission exterior and bell tower and, right, the sanctuary as it is today with original walls.

MOST FRONTIER Indian towns were too poor to support a church and so the majority of the missions had to close their doors within a few years. Tumacacori was one of those which lost its priest, although the Indian village continued until 1848 to receive occasional visits by a priest from northern Sonora.

In 1849, the Indians abandoned Tumacacori and there was no real protection left for the church. During the next 80 years Tumacacori Mission was at the mercy of weathering and vandalism, with the latter being by far the most destructive. It was during this period that most of the legends began that later established Tumacacori as a "Mission of Mystery."

In 1844, Mexico sold the mission lands to a private citizen and they remained in private hands until donated to the United States in 1908, and Theodore Roosevelt made the area a national monument.

The legends of lost gold, incredibly rich jewels and missing bells began to spread. In 1920, an old Mexican told the monument employes that a golden chalice was buried in the sanctuary walls when raiding Apaches hit the mission in 1821.

"We have heard that legend many times," the employes scoffed, "Thanks just the same."

"I ASK NOTHING for myself, Senores," the old man replied simply. "But I have the facts from my grandparents, they knew!"

Our cynics—with nothing better to do—decided to humor the old Mexican and they began digging at the spot he indicated. An hour of casual digging passed when suddenly one digger exclaimed: "Hey, there is something!"

Excitement rose and the dirt flew; in a few minutes a box was removed from the wall. In it was a cup of sacred usage, golden treasure had been found!

The church fathers requested the chalice be placed at San Xavier, an active mission near Tucson, where it would have safe and sacred keeping. It may be seen there today.

With one legend being true, impetus was given to the rest. The old timers had claimed for years that "the padres had a secret tunnel that led from the sanctuary to the Santa Cruz River a mile away. It was their escape route whenever Indians raided the mission. They must have taken their gold and jewels out that way when the final attack hit them in 1821. Who knows, they might have buried some of the treasure in the tunnel."

Uncle Sam practically dug up the entire area but not only no tunnel, not even a trace of one was found.

Probably the greatest mystery of all is the legend of the bells that once hung in the bell tower: for the bells of Tumacacori still ring, even though they've long since vanished from the unfinished tower.

WE MUST GO back almost 500 years to start the story of Tumacacori's lost bells. In the 15th Century, European bellmongers

MANY YEARS IN THE LONG BEACH AREA

Stay-at-Home Pirates

Boys' delight in a pirate theme bedroom such as this, with floor of vinyl in pebble effect and a "treasure island." Even a crow's nest is provided.

ALMOST every boy who has ever read "Treasure Island" dreams of changing places with young Jim Hawkins sailing before the mast in quest of pirate treasures.

Designing a boy's bedroom with a pirate theme can be a rewarding adventure for both parents and children and provide an "extra" room in the house where the young man and his friends can create their own exciting recreation.

With a minimum of expense, a combination bedroom and playroom can be furnished to include a comfortable and interesting play area for the children, yet many of the practical aspects to please the parents such as easy maintenance, plenty of storage space, built-ins and slide-aways for athletic equipment and model train sets, and a sound absorbing ceiling to keep rumpus noise from spreading throughout the house.

AFTER considerable research to recreate a boy's bedroom in a medium-priced home, Mrs. Louisa Cowan, A.I.D., of Armstrong Cork Company's bureau of interior design, compiled a collection of inexpensive suggestions for creating an ideal bedroom-playroom combination with a pirate's theme.

The focal point of the pirate's theme is in one corner of the room where a crow's nest fashioned from a plain wooden barrel stands atop a wooden mast. The crow's nest is elevated from the floor several feet and is bordered on either side by clerestory windows.

Nearby is a telescope and on an adjacent wall is a map of some distant shore. From his "nest" the modern Jim Hawkins can pretend he's looking for Long John Silver's arrival or he and his friends can maintain a sharp lookout for neighboring buddies about to storm his island fortress. To reach his crow's nest a ladder has been made from a heavy rope and four wooden spindles.

SHORTLY BEFORE eight bells in the evening it's time to put away the adventuresome thoughts of the day and come back to the reality of spelling, arithmetic and geography. On either side of the crow's nest is a desk area for schoolwork, drawing or working on model planes. Adding real authenticity to the pirate's theme for very little cost has been achieved by constructing two desk seats from nail kegs with vinyl covered cushions.

The floor of the room features sheet vinyl flooring with a design of vinyl pebbles that provide a natural effect of beach stones smoothed by the pounding surf. The field color is rich walnut and a custom designed inset of a mysterious "treasure island" has been installed using a contrasting golden beach coloring of the same material. Inset into the lighter coloring is an "x" marking the exact location of the buried treasure. The "x" was cut from two pieces of black vinyl tile. The vinyl floor has a nubbly, textured surface which conceals scuff marks and greatly simplifies maintenance.

A NEW TYPE of suspended acoustical ceiling that features a natural wood beam effect as an integral part of the ceiling was selected to complement the rustic theme. The ceiling helps to absorb excessive noise created by active boys at play. Above the desk area the lay-in acoustical panels have been replaced by luminous panels to provide lighting for the boys while studying or doing handicraft.

Built-in bunk beds have been installed in such a way that one boy can go to sleep and not be disturbed while the other boy continues working at his desk. This is ideal for families with two boys, several years apart, where one is allowed to stay up later at night. To separate the beds from the rest of the room, two 8'x4' wood panels have been installed. While these panels are available from most lumber leaders, Mrs. Cowan used roughhewn panels from an old barn in the room she designed to add authenticity to the rustic theme. Decorative black hinges have been painted on the panels for an attractive custom treatment.

EVERY BOY who has a model train will welcome an unusual idea for keeping the train yard set up the year 'round. The train yard is built on a platform that rolls out from under one of the bunk beds. Mothers should also find this a convenient way of keeping the train yard out of sight when it's not in use. Under the other bed is additional storage space for miscellaneous items that young boys have a habit of collecting.

This complete FAMILY POOL only $2095*

Letter from pool buyer cites fast construction schedule

"Mr. Phil Anthony:
Recently our pool was completed by you and we wish to take this opportunity to compliment you and your organization on the fine job you did. From start to finish it was handled with speed—(17 days)—and efficiency.

All of the various crews who did the construction work were efficient and courteous. We would not hesitate to wholeheartedly recommend "Anthony" to anyone who is considering a pool."

Sincerely,
Gilbert and Betty Harris.

The recommendation of pool owners, such as Mr. and Mrs. Harris, is one of the reasons far more pool buyers continue to pick Anthony. In the first three months of 1965, in all of Southern California where competition is keenest, Anthony built almost four times as many pools as the largest other single builder.†

including deck, electric and everything you'll need!

Compare this pool's value! For only $27.93 a month you can give your family this beautiful Anthony Constellation pool. Complete. Ready for a summer's fun. Nothing else needed. And what a pool! You will enjoy the sweep of its dramatic curves, the elegance of its broad steps. Deck, electric and everything you'll need has been combined into one low package price. This is a deluxe pool, now priced lower because of Anthony's greater summer volume. Compare. You'll find the Constellation is larger (389 sq. ft.); has a host of quality features. Ask for a free sketch showing this pool in your yard.

How Anthony gives greater value. By building almost four times as many pools as any other single builder in Southern California,† Anthony's overhead per pool is less. This is one way prices can be cut without cutting value—and only Anthony—the worlds' largest pool builder—can do it. Call today. There's no obligation.

The Anthony Constellation, style 290, is 16' x 30', 389 sq. ft., 3' to 8' deep; has 88' perimeter. Lifetime structural guarantee. Features: (1) coping and deck (27 inch total), (2) electrical hookup to 50 feet, (3) ¾ H.P. pump, (4) filter, (5) skimmer, (6) white plaster interior, (7) steps, (8) cleaning tools, (9) test kit, (10) plans, permits, earth removal. *Summer Special list price for Zone 1. Subject to change for conditions of expansive soil or difficult access.

On ten-year bank terms. †Southern California building permits, first three months of 1965.

It's Small... but Surprising

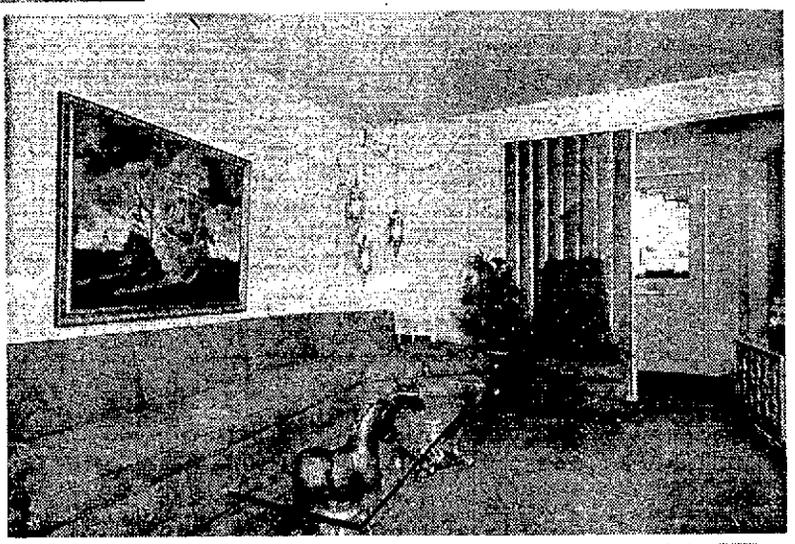

By Stella George

SMALL but surprising, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris J. Carona and daughter, Cathy, 6541 Don Julio Ave., Lakewood Plaza, contains unanticipated richness when the interior is judged from exterior size and lack of pretension. The achievement is the result of long and careful planning, with the assistance of Shirley Lynn, interior designer, who custom-designed many of the accessories.

Stained cathedral glass panelling ornaments the front door, with tones of amber, deep red, and yellow-green. Carpeting was especially dyed antique gold to blend with the maize walls, an enhancing Beauty and elegance reign in the small but interesting home of the Morris J. Carona family. From the exterior, the home is intriguing but gives no indication of the surprising richness of the interior. Above, a view of the living room from across the glass-topped dining table in the dining area that is an "L" off the living room. Below, a view toward the entry.

While evidence of ideas and good taste is seen in landscaping and exterior treatment of the Carona residence, true evaluation must come by a survey of the interior.

This attractive setting is a portion of the living room, looking from the sofa into the dining area where the decor gives a sense of space.

background for the furnishings.

The entry leads to the living room straight ahead with a handrubbed birch divider partially hiding the room. The kitchen is to the left, two bedrooms and a bath down a hallway to the right. Drapes are of the same color as the walls, giving an illusion of space and depth, one of many such ideas used in the decorating plan.

AN 18-FOOT sectional is angled and upholstered in a matte fabric in Moorish red with threads of avocado, bronze-green, and deep amber. The coffee table, an original design by Lynn, is of heavy plate glass which has been cut to follow the unusual angle of the sectional. Double pedestals are intricately carved and done in gold leaf. Sitting on each pedestal is a black, forged iron disc to hold the top.

Two occasional chairs which face the sofa are upholstered in faille nylon fabric in deep bronze green. These two chairs back the dining area which turns an L from the living room. Another space illusion is created here since the table has a heavy plate glass top mounted on black iron with hand-rubbed gold highlights. Chairs are upholstered in Spanish red.

Each accessory in the area is interesting. The hanging swag light, imported from Italy, is in gold leaf with red cathedral glass inserts. A modular unit is in goldleaf with Spanish carvings and has a slab of golden breccia marble. A small table by the hearth has a top of mosaic done in reds, greens, black, and gold to pick up all colors in the room.

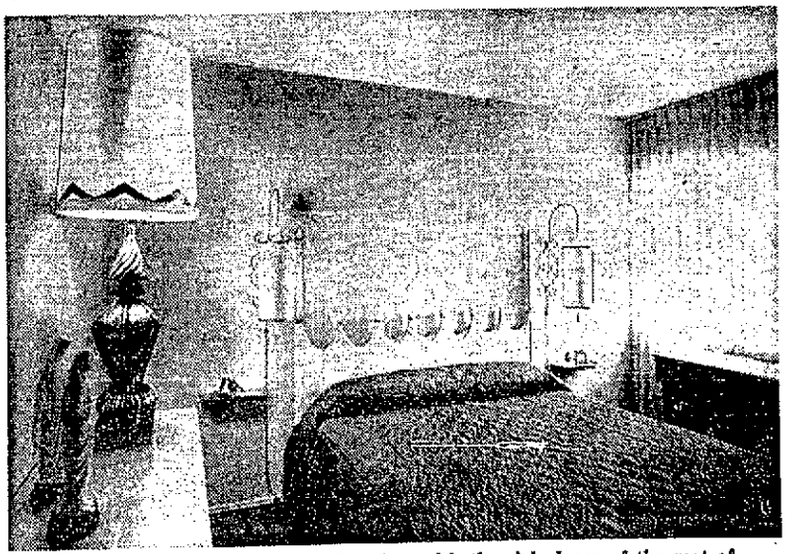

A LARGE PAINTING, imported from Spain dominates the wall area above the sectional and depicts Spanish galleons in full sail. An oil painting above the mantle is called "Mantilla." A small, hand-carved treasure chest lined with red velvet rests at the right of the hearth near a tall Spanish candlestick. Figures on the mantle are hand-carved statues of Don Quixote the Scholar and Don Quixote the Monk.

Other accessories include an antique globe imported from Italy, a goldleaf ballerina centering the dining table and a floral arrangement on a small pedestal table between the sectional and a tall back chair.

In the hallway are authentic reproductions of old Spanish castle keys finished in Granada iron and a collection of antique sailing charts.

CARPETING in the master bedroom is a soft shade of reseda green. The quilted bedspread is peacock blue. Furnishings are antique white in Mediterranean motif with gold trim. Hanging swag lights are done in gold trim, and project from a goldleaf white pleated silk with gold tassels and wrought iron bracket. Small shelves attached to the wall serve as nightstands.

Daughter Cathy's room is decorated in an Oriental motif at her own request. Carpeting is blue-lilac, walls silver lilac. Her bed and the spread were especially designed by Lynn and are horse-shoe shaped. This unusual bed actually saves space in the room but still allows sufficient room for an overnight guest. The spread is a hand-screened fabric done in purple, pink, and blue, and running the entire length of the spread is an obi in a striking shade of sparkling cerise.

Intriguingly arranged and in keeping with the rich decor of the rest of the home is the master bedroom (above). Note lamps, shelf nightstands.

Suspend Ceiling for Style

By Walter Finch

1. Installing Box Beam ceiling begins with application of wall molding at new height.

2. Main runners are installed by fastening one end of beam to hanging wire, as here.

INSTALLING a new ceiling isn't the time-consuming job it used to be. With one of the new suspended ceiling systems now on the market, any home handyman can put up a completely finished ceiling in just a few evenings or over a weekend.

Suspended ceilings consist of 2x4-foot or 2x2-foot ceiling panels supported by a metal framework or "grid" which is hung from the existing ceiling structure by wires. This differs considerably from the more familiar ceiling tiles which are usually 12 inches square and are either stapled to furring strips or cemented directly to the existing ceiling.

IMMEDIATE accessibility is one of the chief advantages of suspended ceilings. Should it ever become necessary to reach any of the pipes, wiring, or ductwork located around the joists, the ceiling panels can be lifted out of the framework in seconds. Another advantage is the adaptability of these systems to recessed lighting. Transluscent plastic panels can be installed easily anywhere in the ceiling beneath fluorescent fixtures for a modern, "luminous" ceiling effect.

Many decorative options are available in the new suspended ceilings. Panel designs range from plain white through textured surfaces, metallic accents, and striking embossed patterns. According to one manufacturer, the Armstrong Cork Company, a new suspended ceiling even duplicates the look of an authentic exposed beam ceiling. Called "Box Beam," the "beams" are actually a part of the supporting framework and extend 2 inches below the ceiling surface. The beams are made of heavy gauge steel and are lithographed with an attractive graining that makes them barely distinguishable from real wood.

INSTALLATION procedures for the "Box Beam" system parallel those of conventional suspended ceilings. First, determine the new ceiling height and install the molding on the walls. Next, attach hanger wires to the existing ceiling structure and fasten to the main runner "box beams" at either 24- or 48-inch intervals, depending upon the number of beams desired. Then, attach the cross tees to the main beams. This forms the supporting framework. Finally, lay the 2x4 or 2x2-foot panels into the framework to complete the ceiling.

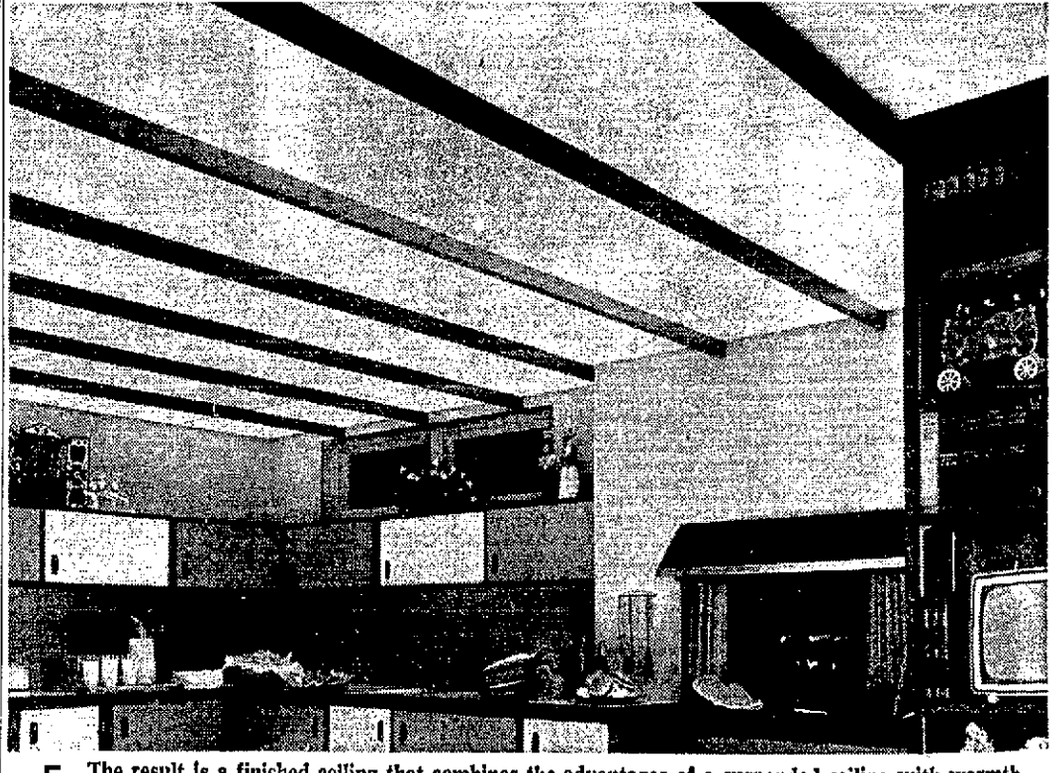

Due to their flexibility, ease of installation, and attractive appearance, suspended ceilings can be used to lower high, old-fashioned ceilings, finish off a new room, or cover cracked and unsightly ceilings. Many suspended ceiling panels are acoustical and add to the comfort of the room by quieting the level of sound. Mineral fiber acoustical panels are incombustible and provide fire protection as well as acoustical control.

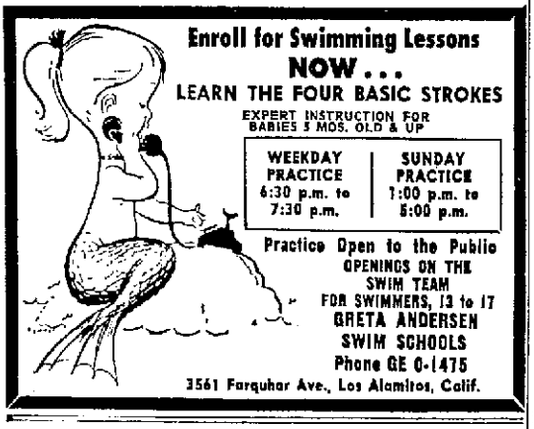

3. Cross tees fit slots in flange above the beams, bent to lock, and form a "grid."

4. To place acoustical panels into the grid, tilt panel slightly upwards and slide in.

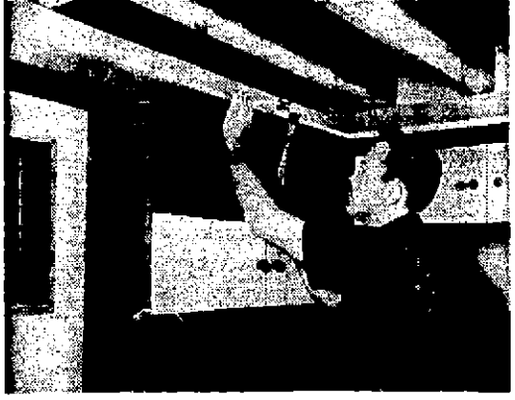

5. The result is a finished ceiling that combines the advantages of a suspended ceiling with warmth and traditional charm of exposed beams. For do-it-yourselfers, a suspended ceiling is the ticket.

PROPER Rx FOR TIRED HOMES

What does it take to make an ordinary early postwar stucco house into a spacious, attractive, fashionable home?

"It usually takes one dissatisfied home-owner, too much house to tear down, too convenient an area to leave, but not enough house for today's demands on living."

Answered Carol Weeks, charming design coordinator for Pacific Builders, the remodeling firm responsible for the after in the before and after face lifting of the Manhattan Beach home pictured.

The next step is translating the home owner's idea into an asset. The transition from concept to reality, however, requires the services of a highly specialized firm that deals only in the remodeling field. If you don't hire a specialist whose integrity is backed with years of experience, you may awake one morning to the unpleasant realization that your home, seemingly, has become eligible to be listed as a disaster area.

"With over 48 years experience behind us," continued Mrs. Weeks, "and 20,000 remodelings to show for it, we are in a position to offer expert home guidance. This includes our FREE design and plan service. Our counselors are master tailors when it comes to fitting finances to meet your needs. They give unstintingly of their time and knowledge because at Pacific Builders you are never just a number on an estimate or job sheet."

With the approval of plans, the final picture starts to come into focus.

When you are ready to remodel, choose a reputable firm. Your job will receive full time supervision, a speedy completion date and all work will be fully guaranteed in writing.

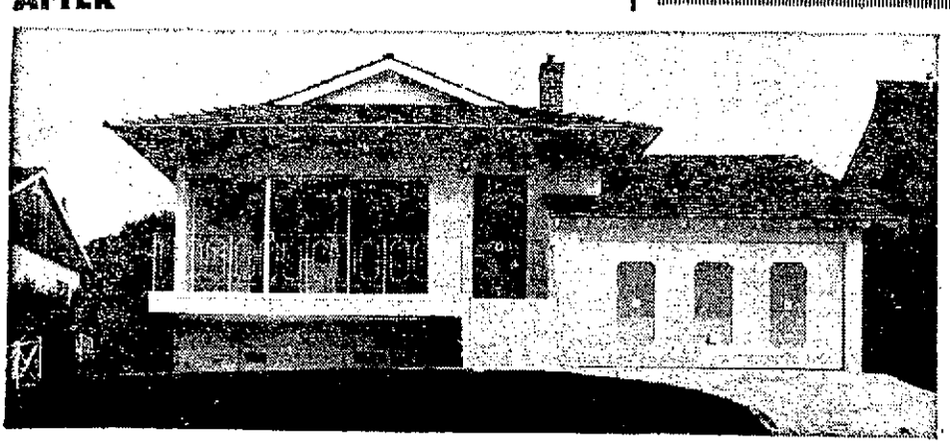

When is the best time to remodel?

Of course, that depends on the individual's circumstances, but the projection trends all indicate the longer you procrastinate, the less your dollar will return. And as you are well aware, your home is your greatest asset, a nest egg you can rely upon if ever you need it.

BEFORE

AFTER

REGAL SPLENDOR RISES FROM A COMMONER'S BACKGROUND as sweeping glass windows in a spacious living-room embrace the ocean view and help to create a remodeled masterpiece. The front overhead shades the glare of summer sun and gives an air of distinction to the elegant exterior that renounces an ordinary past.

The transition from concept to reality, however, requires the services of a highly specialized firm that deals only in the remodeling field. If you don't hire a specialist whose integrity is backed with years of experience, you may awake one morning to the unpleasant realization that your home, seemingly, has become eligible to be listed as a disaster area.

"With over 48 years experience behind us," continued Mrs. Weeks, "and 20,000 remodelings to show for it, we are in a position to offer expert home guidance. This includes our FREE design and plan service. Our counselors are master tailors when it comes to fitting finances to meet your needs. They give unstintingly of their time and knowledge because at Pacific Builders you are never just a number on an estimate or job sheet."

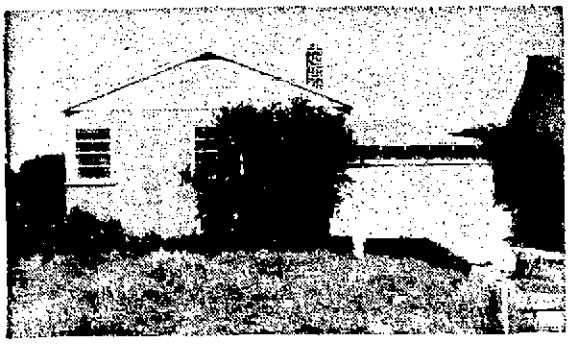

With the approval of plans, the final picture starts to come into focus.

When you are ready to remodel, choose a reputable firm. Your job will receive full time supervision, a speedy completion date and all work will be fully guaranteed in writing.

When is the best time to remodel?

Of course, that depends on the individual's circumstances, but the projection trends all indicate the longer you procrastinate, the less your dollar will return. And as you are well aware, your home is your greatest asset, a nest egg you can rely upon if ever you need it.

REGAL SPLENDOR RISES FROM A COMMONER'S BACKGROUND as sweeping glass windows in a spacious living-room embrace the ocean view and help to create a remodeled masterpiece. The front overhead shades the glare of summer sun and gives an air of distinction to the elegant exterior that renounces an ordinary past.

KITCHEN REMODELING TIPS

Most of your better Home Remodeling Firms offer FREE expert plan service. Their Home Guidance Counselors can show you the most efficient shape that will best suit your kitchen needs . . . and how to stretch your remodeling dollars.

According to the Cornell University Housing Research Center, the design of your kitchen, to best suit your family needs, should be based on two premises: (1) an open plan, where you can participate in family activities, or (2) a "down to business" food preparation center that isolates the home-maker behind closed doors.

The best place to start is with your present kitchen. Prepare a check list of its pros and cons. Research shows that step-saving centers are a must if yours is to be an efficient kitchen. The key ingredient in planning your work centers is the provision you allow for storage.

The prime centers to consider are the refrigeration, the preparation and clean-up, and the cooking and serving areas. Bear in mind, storage requirements as you plan these major work centers.

In laying out your refrigeration center, the refrigerator should be placed close to the supply entry and should be no more than 4 to 7 ft. from sink.

Select a refrigerator with a door that opens away from the counter that is to be used in conjunction with it. The mixing area should be convenient to the refrigerator and food storage center and, if possible, near the sink.

The preparation and clean-up center require a minimum of 36" counter space each, and should contain sink, disposal, dishwasher, cutting board and storage facilities.

The cooking and serving center should allow for small appliances and storage areas. The range should be located 4 to 6 feet from the sink and 4 to 9 feet from the refrigerator. Good kitchen design creates a step-saving working-triangle as you walk from range to sink to refrigerator. A minimum of 21" of work space adjacent to the range is a must.

DON'T MOVE, RISE TO THE OCCASION!

EXAMPLE of proper architectural tie-in for two story addition from an original single story dwelling.

Be it new home construction or the remodeling of an old, the new California look is — UP! Not only is the second story home the practical answer to high land costs in the ever expanding megalopolis, but the higher elevation offers a refreshingly new approach in today's breakthrough in remodeling designs.

Heretofore, second story additions in the remodeling field were costly and the exteriors left much to be desired. Much research has gone into this remodeling problem. Wayne Todd, production manager for Pacific Builders, a leader in the field, expounded on the results.

"As you know, Pacific Builders specializes in remodeling. As members of the American Building Contractors Association, we feel we have an obligation to the homeowner and to the remodeling industry itself. Through the years, we have met these obligations by improving production techniques, while maintaining excellent quality controls. But to reduce the cost of second story additions, we knew we must do more."

"We put our best draftsmen-designers to work on the second story ugly duckling! Their's was a two-fold dilemma. They had to develop a master plan series to reduce building costs and at the same time eliminate the 'block-house' appearance."

Here Todd's eyes lit up as he continued, "Their newly designed elevations surpassed our greatest expectations with a pleasing split-level-look that offerred new areas of functional quiet living."

"Then the ball was picked up by time study engineers and cost analysts. Construction time was reduced and waste kept to an unprecedented minimum. At building seminars, Pacific's head, Sam Weeks, ran the ball to national building supply manufacturers. We showed our plans — the manufacturers gave us their full cooperation. Next we reduced production costs further and employed new methods for the various components we manufacture for use in room additions. Based on our volume, sales projection and as a 'thank you' for 20,000 remodelings, Pacific Builders, during our 5 day Home Remodeling Celebration offers the home owner a SAVINGS of 30% on all second story additions."

MEDICINE AND YOU

Brain Power

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

TO MOST persons a big brain means mental prowess and a small brain signifies stupidity.

Not necessarily so, says a neurologist. Only very small human brains are inadequate. And very large brains have no advantage over medium-sized ones.

Dr. Stanley Cobb of Harvard University, in an article in Archives of Neurology, says many successful animals have small brains. Example: the alligator and the opossum. These have very small brains yet seem to be living successfully in the modern world.

SOME FORMS of bone disease now being seen may be a result of radium salts administered years ago, two University of Chicago medical scientists say.

Radium salts were administered to thousands of persons in this country from 1910 to 1930. Their administration was a highly popular form of treatment in the early part of this century. The radium was given by mouth or by injection for conditions ranging from psoriasis to psychoneurosis.

Subsequent problems, when they show up, may vary from fractures to bone tumors to certain forms of arthritis, the researchers say in a report in Medical Clinics of North America.

DOCTORS in Canada think that two fraternal twins born earlier this year may have set a birth-weight record.

The babies weighed 9 pounds 9 ounces and 9 pounds 5 ounces, respectively, according to a report in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

WOMEN who are deficient in estriol, a female hormone, may be predisposed to breast cancer, a doctor reports.

If the observation is confirmed, a form of hormone-substitution treatment may be feasible, says Dr. Henry M. Lemon of the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, Omaha.

Dr. Lemon found evidence of hormonal imbalance in the urine of breast-cancer patients.

WHEN SHOULD mothers of mongoloid children be told of the offspring's condition?

During the first three months of the child's life, two University of Edinburgh researchers say in a report in British Medical Journal.

Otherwise mothers, if reassured a child is OK when they suspect the child isn't normal, may express resentment years later. They will adjust better if told early.

NEW RESEARCH supports earlier findings that the antidepression drug Tofranil can often dramatically halt bed wetting in children.

Two doctors at Valley Forge General Hospital, Phoenixville, Pa., prescribed the drug for 10 bed wetters aged 4 to 7 years. In nine there was complete disappearance of bed wetting.

Six of nine patients remained dry when the drug was discontinued after two to six weeks. In the other three patients Tofranil has been continued for three months "with excellent results."

The report is in American Journal of Diseases of Children.

A WOMAN who has worn an implanted pacemaker (battery-powered heartbeat assister) for two years has given birth to a healthy boy, according to German Medical Journal. She had an uneventful delivery after a normal pregnancy, the report says.

(This column frequently reports advances in medical research and opinions of medical authorities not yet accepted in general practice.

Arizona Mission

cast four flawless bells that never rang in unison but always with a melodious chime. How or when these four bells reached the desert mission isn't known, but there's no doubt that they once hung in the now empty bell tower.

The legend tells of the Spanish padres' quandary when they were finally forced to leave the mission: the fabulous bells—Tumacacori's greatest treasure — would have to be left behind.

There was only one thing to do—the padres decided—bury the bells until such time as they could return. And so, two of the padres, secretly and in the dead of night, carried the four bells far out into the silent desert and buried them deep in the sandy soil. Carefully they memorized important landmarks to be sure of the site when once again the bells would be needed by the mission. But the padres never returned and with their death went the secret of the bells' location—to be lost forever.

But the legend, like all good legends, grew with each retelling. The bells might be lost, but they still rang and many a devout Mexican and Indian claims to have heard their melodious chime. Would-be discovers, trying to follow the ghostly sounds, made many fruitless attempts to locate them.

Perhaps the famed Mexican rebel, Pancho Villa, found them. He visited Tumacacori. His equally famous pursuer, Gen. John J. Pershing, actually camped in the Tumacacori courtyard.

I have been asked, "Do the bells of Tumacacori really ring?" I have never heard them, but perhaps you should visit the mission yourself. Stand beside its weathered walls and listen carefully. Perhaps then you might hear the fabulous bells of Tumacacori ringing softly, pealing their ghostly litany over the quiet desert.

Zoo 'Location'

If you're a home moviemaker and plan to film a "growing up" story featuring your children, take them to the zoo. Here is an opportunity for priceless unposed footage of the youngsters. Your subjects can lead you from one cage or exhibit to another to tie your various sequences together.

Remember to maintain variety by shooting closeups of the zoo inhabitants and visitors, scenes of the children buying popcorn, signs and other familiar zoo props.

It's a Cruel World for Admirers of IBC Beauties

where — since some of the beauties are still in America, married, and even U.S. citizens. Iris Walter, Miss England, 1958, is married to an ex-Marine and is living in Sacramento.

So, then, what's the answer? Is it rougher on the girls or on the men? With every respect to Cunningham's opinion, the cases seem to point to men as the central sufferers.

THE HOTEL Lafayette is experienced in screening out the impostors — the young man posing as a Western Union messenger or a bell hop to meet Miss Beauty is a common tactic. Western Union blanks have been found on past impostors and bell hops at the Lafayette have been warned that they would be fired should they "loan" their uniforms to "friends" wanting to meet Miss Beauty.

The fire department screened out a group of boys last year — from the north fire escape leading to the third floor — where the American Beauty Queen was napping.

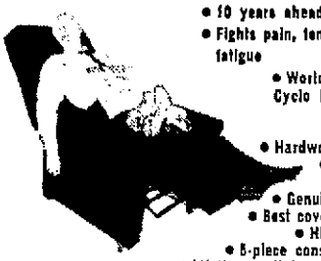

A group of boys tried letting themselves down from the roof of the Lafayette by tied sheets — and nearly broke their necks when one of their knots loosened.

THERE STILL is one fellow who carries a torch for a former Miss Germany — so brilliant a torch that he calls her via the transatlantic telephone to convince her she ought to marry him and live in the United States. They have never met.

So then, what's the answer? Harder on men or on women? The male attempt to meet the beauty is indeed bold—yet it is nearly always defeated. And during the Pageant, it is always defeated under the close scrutiny of IBC.

But this very boldness tells the success story of IBC — the sheer frustration of having beauty around that a man musn't touch is the very incentive to try to win her.

A group of boys tried letting themselves down from the roof of the Lafayette by tied sheets — and nearly broke their necks when one of their knots loosened.

THERE STILL is one fellow who carries a torch for a former Miss Germany — so brilliant a torch that he calls her via the transatlantic telephone to convince her she ought to marry him and live in the United States. They have never met.

So then, what's the answer? Harder on men or on women? The male attempt to meet the beauty is indeed bold—yet it is nearly always defeated. And during the Pageant, it is always defeated under the close scrutiny of IBC.

But this very boldness tells the success story of IBC — the sheer frustration of having beauty around that a man musn't touch is the very incentive to try to win her.

Outside House Painting Now Eliminated

Another boon of the space age has been accomplished for the homeowner . . . an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is Fiberglass FLEXON.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residence until they hear the FLEXON STORY. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather, and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with special heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

You Ask We Answer

By Haskin

As a reader of Southland, you can get an answer, by mail, to any question of fact by writing to Southland Magazine Information Bureau, 635 F. St., N.W., Washington, D. C. 20004. Please enclose return postage or self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Q. Why were the Amendments known as the Bill of Rights necessary so soon after the Constitution was adopted? W.E.

A. Many Americans feared the new Constitution would establish a Federal Government strong enough to violate the rights of the states and of individual citizens. They were particularly disturbed because the Constitution did not specify the existing individual rights and liberties with which the new Government would not be allowed to interfere. The First Congress therefore submitted to the states 12 proposed amendments. The ten of these that were finally ratified have come to be called the Bill of Rights. These rights which Americans already possessed were listed as amendments to the Constitution simply to make sure the new Government could not take them away.

Q. What is the history of the Old Moravian Cemetery in Bethelehem, Pa.? T.A.

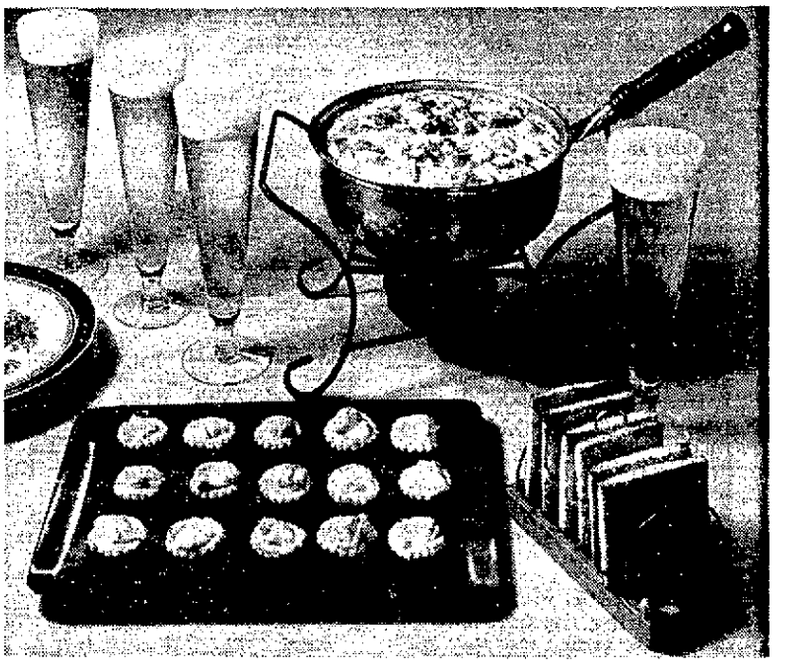

A. This famed cemetery, in which Indians as well as white people are buried, dates back to 1742, the year after Bethlehem was founded; it was in use up to 1910. Its gravestones, laid flat on the ground, show by their inscriptions that white and Indian, missionary and farmer, Bethlehemite and foreign visitor, were buried side by side without regard to their earthly importance. The site, now in the center of the city, was chosen for the burial of a youth who died on June 26, 1742, and was consecrated following his funeral service.

Q. Does softwood make a better fire than hardwood? K.S.

A. Softwood (from pine, birch, aspen, and other quick-growing trees) is good for starting fires or for quick hot fires, but a softwood fire needs frequent refueling and does not leave good coals. Hardwood (from oak, maple, hickory, and other slow-growing trees) burns slowly and produces coals which last, but needs a hot fire to get it well started.

Near-Midnight Snacks

Chipped beef, mushrooms and horseradish sauce spooned into bite-sized patty shells or over toast is a delightful late hour snack combination.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

IMPROMPTU Invitations are easily and gladly extended, if you're all set with things to serve.

Here's a versatile idea—a combination with a high degree of acceptance among most guests and it has just the right amount of tang and savor to make it a good choice for that going-on-midnight hour. Depending on whether or not you want to use plates and silver, or restrict it to in-hand eating, it lends itself to either.

For bite-size servings, just fill plenty of the tiny frozen or packaged hors d'oeuvres shells. For more substantial servings, spoon it over toast or into patty shells or even rice. Another nice thing—if you've anticipated your invitation, the mixture can be all ready to just reheat and serve.

Chipped Beef and Mushrooms in Horseradish Sauce

2 (2½-oz.) jars sliced dried beef
1 (10-oz.) can condensed cream of mushroom soup
½ cup beer
1 (4-oz.) can sliced mushrooms, drained
1 beef bouillon cube
1½ tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons horseradish (or to taste)

Place the beef in a strainer and hold it under cold running water to rinse off salt. Then spread it on paper towels to dry before cutting it into bite size pieces. Heat together the mushroom soup, beef and mushrooms, stirring until blended. Add the bouillon cube and stir until dissolved. In another saucepan, melt the butter, add the flour and stir until smooth. Add the cream and heat, stirring constantly, until the sauce is thick and shiny. Add to the soup mixture and heat until the sauce is thickened, stirring constantly. Stir in horseradish. Add chipped beef and heat together thoroughly. Spoon into bite-size patty shells and serve as hors d'oeuvres or serve over toast as main dish. Makes 3½ cups, or about 6 main servings or 50 hors d'oeuvres.

MISS RULE: Please explain MacDONALD, McDONALD. — E.M., G.M., Long Beach.

MacDONALD and the short form McDONALD are famous Scottish clan names. A legend relates that two reckless rival brothers many centuries ago raced each other in small galley ships for Scotland from their native Ireland. When they neared shore one brother, seeing his competitor was winning the race, cut off his own left hand, threw it ashore and shouted, "my flesh and my blood are ashore ahead of you!" The land won by this means was the Hebrides Islands, 2,900 miles square off the west Scottish coast. The MacDonald title "Lords of the Isles" refers to the Hebrides. MacDonald depicts "son of world-ruler." The ancient clan crest is a red hand and a black galley, representing the hand and the craft that won the race from Ireland. The MacDonald armorial shield is gold, again decorated with the black galley ship, overlaid with a red eagle.

MISS RULE: Would like data on HADLEY, HEADLEY, HEADLEE. — K.H., Seal Beach; A.H., A.S., Long Beach; B.H., Anaheim.

HADLEY developed in medieval England from a village name, originally "Head-leay" describing "place at the head of a pasture meadow." HEADLEY and HEADLEE are earlier forms of Hadley. One Hadley ancestor was Lord Mayor of London in 1379 and again in 1393. The Hadley armorial shield is blue, decorated with a gold chevron between three gold rings.

MISS RULE: Please inform us on ARRAS, both Norwegian and French. — H.A., L.B., Anaheim.

ARRAS is primarily a French surname. This family originated at the city of Arras located in the French province of Artois in the Middle Ages. At present Arras is within the border of Belgium, adjoining France. Arras is derived from the ancient Roman name meaning "place of the arts and artists." The French Arras armorial shield is red, crossed at the top with an ermine stripe emblazoned

COIN ROUNDUP

Coin Booklet

By Maurice M. Gould

MAURICE M. GOULD, author of Southland Magazine's feature, "Coin Roundup," has written a 34-page booklet, "Coins of Special Value," which is now available to readers.

The booklet is divided into ten chapters and deals with the entire subject of coin collecting, with Chapter 1 "Beginning Your Collection" telling how to plan for a complete coin collecting program

It is very informative on all phases of the subject and tells about the mints now in operation, how to check mint marks, how to judge the condition of coins —including foreign coins—and how to find and identify the ones that are most valuable.

IT ALSO COVERS the history of numismatics and tells about proof sets and coin collector-dealer organizations. One of the important phases of the booklet explains the process in caring for valuable coins, including cleaning.

Three pages are devoted to the important subject of the market prices and estimated values of popular U.S. coins. A Flying Eagle one-cent piece of 1856, for example, in uncirculated condition is currently valued at $3,000, the Buffalo nickel of 1918-over 17-D in perfect condition is valued at $4,500; the 1918-S over 7 25-cent piece is worth $3,000; and the 1895 silver dollar in perfect condition is valued at $4,000, etc.

The Lincoln one-cent piece, for instance, with a small date of 1960, in perfect condition is valued at $10. Many of these coins are still in circulation and knowledge of the ones that are valuable can prove most profitable to readers if they happen to find one among their change. The 25-cent piece of 1927-S, for instance, is valued at $575, and the 1916 Standing Liberty quarter is valued at $1,100.

MOST PEOPLE think the age of a coin determines its value in coin collecting, but this is not necessarily the case, as indicated in the listing in Gould's booklet. It seems that many of the most valuable coins have been produced since the turn of the century; at least, those are the most likely ones to be discovered by a person who is not already an accomplished collector.

Gould's booklet, "Coins of Special Value," is available to readers of this newspaper at 50 cents each, and they may be ordered by sending 50 cents to COIN BOOKLET in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801. Allow three weeks for delivery of Coin Booklet.

COIN ROUNDUP

Coin Booklet

By Maurice M. Gould

MAURICE M. GOULD, author of Southland Magazine's feature, "Coin Roundup," has written a 34-page booklet, "Coins of Special Value," which is now available to readers.

The booklet is divided into ten chapters and deals with the entire subject of coin collecting, with Chapter 1 "Beginning Your Collection" telling how to plan for a complete coin collecting program

It is very informative on all phases of the subject and tells about the mints now in operation, how to check mint marks, how to judge the condition of coins —including foreign coins—and how to find and identify the ones that are most valuable.

IT ALSO COVERS the history of numismatics and tells about proof sets and coin collector-dealer organizations. One of the important phases of the booklet explains the process in caring for valuable coins, including cleaning.

Three pages are devoted to the important subject of the market prices and estimated values of popular U.S. coins. A Flying Eagle one-cent piece of 1856, for example, in uncirculated condition is currently valued at $3,000, the Buffalo nickel of 1918-over 17-D in perfect condition is valued at $4,500; the 1918-S over 7 25-cent piece is worth $3,000; and the 1895 silver dollar in perfect condition is valued at $4,000, etc.

The Lincoln one-cent piece, for instance, with a small date of 1960, in perfect condition is valued at $10. Many of these coins are still in circulation and knowledge of the ones that are valuable can prove most profitable to readers if they happen to find one among their change. The 25-cent piece of 1927-S, for instance, is valued at $575, and the 1916 Standing Liberty quarter is valued at $1,100.

MOST PEOPLE think the age of a coin determines its value in coin collecting, but this is not necessarily the case, as indicated in the listing in Gould's booklet. It seems that many of the most valuable coins have been produced since the turn of the century; at least, those are the most likely ones to be discovered by a person who is not already an accomplished collector.

Gould's booklet, "Coins of Special Value," is available to readers of this newspaper at 50 cents each, and they may be ordered by sending 50 cents to COIN BOOKLET in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801. Allow three weeks for delivery of Coin Booklet.

The South and the Civil War

"THE BEST of Jim Murray" (Doubleday, $4.50) is a collection of sports columns written by Murray (above) over a three-year period for the Los Angeles Times. It answers such urgent questions as "How I kicked the football habit" and "Should boxing belong to the 20th century?"

PETER GEORGE, author of "Red Alert" which became the movie "Dr. Strangelove" has written another nuclear novel: "COMMANDER-1" (Delacorte, $4.95). This one begins with the sudden disappearance of New York, the president's home and an Alaskan radar post. The Pentagon unleashes its megatons against Russia, which replies with its megatons.

The scene shifts to three men and three women encased in a capsule in a submarine under polar ice. The commander delivers his six "guinea pigs" to a tropical island where they adjust to fragmentary word that civilization has been wiped out.

DOMINICAN FATHER R. L. Bruckberger interprets the immediacy and power of Christ's teaching and conveys the human aspect of the suffering and triumphant man of the gospel stories in "THE HISTORY OF JESUS CHRIST" (Viking, $8.50).

CARLETON BEALS doesn't subscribe to the cherished belief that the SOUTH, in the Civil War, was so united that it would have won if it hadn't been for economics. That's mere legend, he thinks. In "WAR WITHIN A WAR" (Chilton, $3.95) Beals shows the Confederacy with never a moment free from army desertions in vast numbers, and from sabotage wracking its nerves. Many of the citizens were apathetic toward the war effort, Beals points out. And worst of all for the South, there were numbers of Union pockets of armed resistance, and in the end they played a major role in bringing the Confederacy down.

East Tennessee, for example, "was always an embattled pro-Union area, one that never submitted to the Confederate government. The resistance movement remained alive and fighting throughout the war. When the region was occupied by Confederate forces, many Unionists were assassinated, but in reply bridges were blown up, soldiers attacked and killed..."

Much of the "war within a war" was carried on by secret peace societies, "which soon riddled the whole South." One such society was the Peace and Constitutional Society, formed as early as the fall of 1861 in Van Buren County, Arkansas, and sworn to encourage Confederate army desertions and promote Union army enlistments. Gov. Pettus of Mississippi, as did Gov. Brown of Georgia, became "obliged to oppose the Confederacy down the line on almost all crucial matters because of the increasingly rebellious attitude of the people and the peace groups..."

Carleton Beals has dipped deeply to bring to light a hitherto little-stressed phase of the Civil War, and he has done so with a lively pen.

RALPH OAKLAND'S job in the State Department of Rehabilitation, is to find and wangle jobs for the misfits, the ones from the human scrap heap who couldn't possibly get jobs for themselves. He has some weird ones: a babyish 20-year-old on the way to being an invalid, an ex-convict who runs smack into prejudice and distrust, a sweet young thing with the serene calm of a madonna and an utterly vacant mind, an epileptic and casual prostitute, an illiterate bean-picker with a gift for fixing cars' innards.

"THE MONDAY VOICES" by Joanne Greenberg (Holt, Rinehart, $4.95) about these misfits and the man who sweats blood and cuts mountains of red tape to help them, ostensibly is a novel. It reads a lot like a documentary.

MORMON UTAH at the turn of the last century and 20 years into this one is depicted in "A HOUSE OF MANY ROOMS" by Rodello Hunter (Knoph, $4.95). It glorifies one father and one mother in a household of many children — some born and some "borrowed" as orphans—with affection and kindness, tragic and comic moments, a lamp-lighted tale of old songs, old customs, old values.

EVER HEAR of Pelorus Jack, a dolphin? For more than 27 years, from 1888 onwards, the story goes, he met and accompanied the ships that crossed Cook Stralt between the two main islands on New Zealand, on the run between Wellington and Nelson. He did this in a stretch of water near the entrance to Pelorus Sound and nowhere else.

The story of Jack and many other dolphins is told in "DOLPHINS—Sea People" by Esse Forrester O'Brien (Naylor, $3.95).

THE GREAT personalities who shaped the ancient world and moulded Western thought are identified in "THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF THE CLASSICAL WORLD" edited by J. H. Croon (Spectrum, $5.50 clothbound, $2.95 paperbound). Rulers (Alexander the Great, Caesar Augustus), philosophers (Aristotle, Sophocles) and playwrights (Aristophanes, Euripides) are among those described in extensive articles. Plato's dialogues and the masterpieces of the great Greek dramatists are discussed. Illustrated with maps, charts and genealogical tables.

HELMA DE BOIS, Dutch staff member of the United Nations in Geneva, has created, with her first novel, a new insight into the French Reign of Terror.

It's a story of that arch-enemy of aristocrats, Maximilien Robespierre, "THE INCORRUPTIBLE" (Crown, $5.95). All, that is, except one, young Marc de Guemont, charming, daring and dashing scion of the Seventh Century line of noblemen, who makes use of his strong friendship with Robespierre to save blue-bloods from the guillotine by smuggling them abroad.

As Miss De Bois' story goes, Marc, as a boy, knew Robespierre as his family's lawyer and, despite a dislike for politics per se, formed a close, although argumentative, bond with the brooding revolutionary.

This version is somewhat sympathetic to Robespierre, catching him up in the turmoil of the revolution, rather than holding him responsible as its prime architect.

The characters are neatly drawn and move credibly in a drama of excitement, suspense, humor and horror. Down to Robespierre's destruction, when Marc wipes the blood from his friend's guillotined head.

WILLI HEINRICH'S previous novels, like "Crack of Doom," "Rape of Honor" and "The Lonely Conqueror," were Wagneresque pictures of crumbling Nazi Germany. In his new novel, "THE DEVIL'S BED" (Dial Press, $4.95), he still hovers over the last days of the war and the months thereafter. But Sicily, not Germany, is the scene.

The Sicilian-born husband of Helen Brazzi, a woman, rich, young, beautiful, from Toledo, Ohio, has disappeared from the American lines in 1943, in the campaign of Italy. A few months after the war's end, Helen goes to Sicily to learn how and why her husband vanished. Wealth and a feeling of great boredom with the narrowness of her social millieu propel her on her way into adventures as taut as any Willi Heinrich has given in his previous novels. From the sullen and dark suspicion of the Sicilian natives she wrests surprising facts about her husband. It is an enthralling story.

CHARLES ISRAEL probes the complexities of a disturbed personality and its effect on the lives of ordinary people in "SHADOW ON A WALL" (Simon and Schuster, $5.95).

with five black ermine tails. The Norwegian-Scandinavian source of Arras was a warrior name, "Artz" signifying "Strength."

MISS RULE: Please inform us on BODE, BOEDE. —K.B., Lakewood; N.B., San Pedro.

BODE and BOEDE refer back seven centuries in Germany. The source word "Bodo" was a hero name meaning "royal herald and messenger." The Bode armorial shield from Belgium is silver, crossed by a checkered gold and red stripe. The Boede lineage, originally called Van der Boede, achieved a coat-of-arms in Zeeland, Holland. This shield is composed of six triangles, three of black issuing from the left side; three of silver issuing from the right.

MISS RULE: May we have the source and data on CARRICO.--R.K., Compton.

CARRICO originated in medieval Spain although this name is also recorded in Italy and France. Carrico is a short spelling of "Carricoche," a term for a unique type of old Spanish coach. The first possessor of this surname was a coach builder who received his name from his trade. The builder of substantial and handsome coaches was a highly skilled and honored artisan.

MISS RULE: What is the genealogy on HENSON. —L.H., M.H., Long Beach.

HENSON began in 12th century England as "Henry's-son." The root name Henry deciphers as "ruler of an estate or of private property." Remote ancestors include William Henson, a spice-seller by trade, of Yorkshire in 1379. The Henson shield is blue with an ermine border. Crossing it is a gold chevron between three gold suns.

MISS RULE: Please give data on CRESPIN, CRESPIEN.—C.C., Long Beach; M.E., Buena Park.

CRESPIN and CRESPIEN from France commemorate a forefather baptized as Crispin, named for St. Crispin, a 3rd century martyr of Soissons, France, whose name signified "fuzzy-haired one." The Crespin shield is blue, decorated with a golden chevron between three pine cones.

MISS RULE: May we have the source and data on CARRICO.—R.K., Compton.

CARRICO originated in medieval Spain although this name is also recorded in Italy and France. Carrico is a short spelling of "Carricoche," a term for a unique type of old Spanish coach. The first possessor of this surname was a coach builder who received his name from his trade. The builder of substantial and handsome coaches was a highly skilled and honored artisan.

MISS RULE: What is the genealogy on HENSON. —L.H., M.H., Long Beach.

HENSON began in 12th century England as "Henry's-son." The root name Henry deciphers as "ruler of an estate or of private property." Remote ancestors include William Henson, a spice-seller by trade, of Yorkshire in 1379. The Henson shield is blue with an ermine border. Crossing it is a gold chevron between three gold suns.

MISS RULE: Please give data on CRESPIN, CRESPIEN.—C.C., Long Beach; M.E., Buena Park.

CRESPIN and CRESPIEN from France commemorate a forefather baptized as Crispin, named for St. Crispin, a 3rd century martyr of Soissons, France, whose name signified "fuzzy-haired one." The Crespin shield is blue, decorated with a golden chevron between three pine cones.

Maoris Coming With Dances

By Hal Wiener

THE "American influence" has been felt, and welcomed, in New Zealand from the earliest days of this young and expanding Pacific nation. American whalers and sealing ships in their exploration of waters around New Zealand in the early 1800s, began the long association.

The little vessels of the American whaling and sealing fleets were first seen around New Zealand about 1800, and were frequent callers at the Bay of Islands, then a chief outfitting and supply port.

In 1806, an American ship brought 60,000 skins into Port Nicholson (the old name of Port of Wellington, the capital city), and the cargoes of American ships calling at the Bay of Islands in 1839 were estimated to be worth $1,636,335—a lot of money in those days.

ALTHOUGH many Americans visited New Zealand, comparatively few stayed to settle. In 1839 a detailed count of American settlers numbered about 50. Today, of course, with jet planes, Air New Zealand is inaugurating a twice weekly flight from Los Angeles in December, more Americans are finding New Zealand a delightful land to visit, with many unusual attractions, and likewise New Zealanders are coming to the United States in greater numbers.

The "Land Down Under" is sending its first major cultural attraction—the National Band of New Zealand with a traditional Maori group of dancers and singers—to the United States and Canada for a coast to coast tour.

First appearance in the Southland will be in the International Beauty Pageant parade in Long Beach next Sunday afternoon. The same evening the band will be in Hollywood Bowl to offer not only world famous classics, but also original musical art of the Maoris, those native New Zealanders whose ancestors are believed to have traversed the Pacific in seven canoes more than 1,000 years ago, landing in this land of the long white cloud from Tahiti and Hawaii.

New Zealand is sending a band to the United States because, in New Zealand, band music is a way of life. It is said to be their most important form of music. The National Band of New Zealand is both a symphonic sit-down band as well as a marching unit, that has won international first place prizes in Edenburgh Festival, and the Band Festival in Holland competing against more than 220 bands from all parts of the world.

New Zealand stands indebted to the United States for the defense guaranteed by her during that difficult period of the last war, and today is a partner with the United States and Australia in the Anzus Pact. New Zealand and the United States are also partners in Seato the military alliance which protects the Asian part of the world from aggression, and the South Pacific Commission.

Nancye and John Hanify, band trombonist, demonstrate ancient, official Maori greeting.

A Place to Grow In

Playhouse for kids to grow in keeps them off the grass, out of traffic and away from trouble. This one is easy to build with a detailed plan.

By Steve Ellingson

CHILDREN need their play to grow in just as much as milk and spinach. So why not keep them off the grass, out of traffic and away from trouble with a playhouse of their very own? They'll love the feeling of privacy, and get an education to boot in pride of ownership, sharing the wealth, and getting along together under the same roof. Furthermore, it will make mother's job as recreation director much easier. Once the house is built, she doesn't need to worry about planning activities to keep the youngsters busy, the house does that.

Unlike most children's playthings, this one (see illustration) has many useful years after the children grow up—as a potting shed and garden-tool storehouse; as spare storage for outdoor furniture, swimming pool supplies and the like. It's an easy project and designed for economy as well as appearance. You will notice it has dutch doors, windows, a large overhanging roof the same as an adult's home. Here kids can play at housekeeping, hold court, have club meetings and give tea parties to their heart's content without interfering with adults or having adults interfere with them.

THE HOUSE is easy to construct when an easy-to-follow plan is used. The principal material used is exterior plywood. Any Dad can complete it in two or three evenings. A list of needed materials along with easy-to-follow directions and illustrations are always included. The design is such that the walls and roof may be made inside, in the workshop, and taken outdoors for quick assemblying.

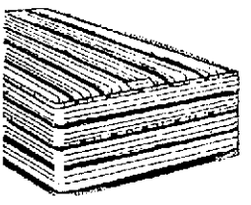

To obtain the easy-to-follow plan No. 224 for building the playhouse shown here, send $1 by currency, check or money order to: Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409.

When Towser Travels

By Eleanor Avery Price

Taking a pet along on a vacation trip is not as troublesome as it may seem, if prepared with a case of pet's needs, as pictured here.

ARE YOU staying home all summer because you have a pet? Oh, come, now, you know this isn't necessary. Many pets enjoy traveling. Make an immediate date with your veterinarian for your pet's certificate of health and for any booster shots needed. Buy a collar and lead for the dog if the old ones are frayed, and fasten the dog's license to the collar. If the pet is a cat, get a cat carrier. Goldfish can stay home in a full bathtub if you give them plenty of underwater plants to nibble on. You're practically on your way already.

But first put all of the pet's belongings in one container so you won't be standing on your head trying to find his things. You'll need pans for food and water unless you want to rely on hubcaps, a can opener, mixing spoon, thermos bottle, first-aid kit, mineral oil in case the pet eats sand or to help back out porcupint quills, an insecticide for ticks, fleas, etc., tweezers, spray Bactine for rash or sores, bicarbonate of soda to make a paste for bee stings, ammonia (one cup per bucket of water for a bath in case your dog meets a skunk), grooming tools and anything else you can think of.

CANNED PET food is best if you are going where there are bears and squirrels. A folding dog crate with bedding is handy if you can spare the room.

Keep the pet under control at all times, even in the car. And he really should not meet a skunk if you're careful. Do you know the spray from a skunk can kill your dog if it gets in his mouth? A metal ground "corkscrew" with a chain attached (not rope which a dog can chew) is a real necessity. Your pet shop has it.

Cats seldom get car sick, but a dog may. Dramamine is good, or consult your veterinarian. Try to travel when the dog has an empty stomach, but take along some old cloth in case. Limit water, too. Stop now and then enroute so the dog can have a few laps of water, stretch, and relieve himself. If the weather is hot, keep cold water in his thermos and pour it on his head and body now and then. He may even like to recline on a wet towel on the floor.

VERY IMPORTANT — never leave a pet in a car parked in the sun, and remember, shade can disappear while you're eating in an air conditioned cafe. Roll windows down at least an inch, but close wing vents if the dog can push his head through and hang himself.

If you go near water watch your dog. If you let him go in salt water, you will need to rinse him off afterwards.

Respect motels or hotels that accept your pet. Keep him quiet and don't let him be destructive in any way.

Blankets and Pets

By Ruth C. Ikerman

ONE of the best ways to provoke an argument among otherwise good natured people is to get into a hassle about whether or not an adored pet should be allowed to sleep on a bed. And even among those who do permit such indulgence there is far from unanimous agreement as to whether pets should be allowed to sleep on beds with electric blankets.

The problem at our house is to how to explain all this to the pet, who is really just permitting us to live in the house with him. He considers every new item purchased to be something secured for his express and exclusive benefit, and far be it from him to stay off the bed when it has a new electric blanket. Who knows, he might find it infinitely preferable to the couch where he has been sleeping on the best wool afghan, the one with red roses on the black background. At least, he likes that better than the little basket all fitted out with his own blankets.

So the problem for the adults of the house is how to keep the pet from sleeping in the very center of the blanket, and crowding them off the side. They can pick him up in their arms and gently lift him down off the bed, or they can swat him a good swift one with the newspaper they were reading just before switching off the light. If he wants to sleep on the electric blanket, he will climb back up again the very moment he hears their deep breathing, telling him they are once more unconscious, and this might be a good time to either wake them, or steal up quietly to the top of the quilt pile.

ONE PET OWNER in desperation built a little fence around her bed, using chairs and dresser, but the pet found a way to climb to the top and jump kerplop right onto the ample stomach of the sleeping friend. For a while it looked as though she would have to go sit in the pet's chair all night, while he enjoyed the new blanket.

Ultimately, it is a matter of compromise which means that the pet owner learns how to sleep through the antics of the pet in climbing onto the electric blanket. Lately our pet has been observed watching the way we poke the buttons to turn the blanket on and off, and we wouldn't be at all surprised to come home someday and find it had been turned on for his comfort at a time of his own choosing.

Culture of Sweet Peas

By Joe Littlefield

IT'S said that sweet peas can't be grown in the same area for more than a few seasons, but Milton Seidel, a retired banker and garden hobbyist, disputes this.

"Sweet peas can be grown for many years in the same trench. I grow mine about 14 feet tall, use an eight-foot stepladder to pick the flowers, and have grown them in the same trench for the past 43 years, on the south side of a garage wall. The trench runs east and west and is 18 feet long. Blooming begins in January and at the peak of the blooming season we pick three or four, sometimes up to six bouquets. One year we had a flower stem with eight blossoms, and have had stems 19 inches long."

Seidel was in the banking business for 38 years, and has hobby-gardened longer than that. He has carried business thoroughness into his garden, specifically to sweet peas. His other favorite flowers are roses, chrysanthemums, camellias, gardenias and blooms of bulb plants.

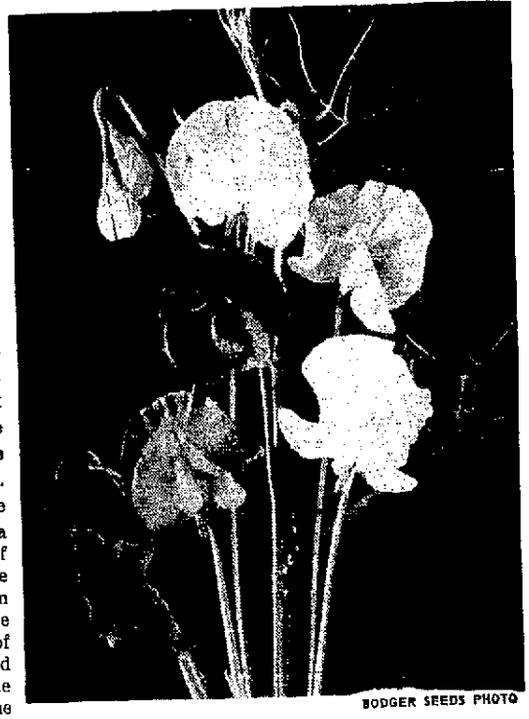

HE PULLS down the faded vines in June, digs the trench three feet deep by two-and-one-half feet wide and cuts up the vine branches into small lengths. He fills the trench nearly to the ground level with four to five-inch layers of short cut branches, alternating with three to four inches of soil. He spreads three sacks of steer manure when within four to five inches of the top of ground, covers it with a layer of soil and soaks it down. He soaks it once a month to keep the area moist and to encourage breakdown of the materials. During the summer he spades over the trench a shovel depth a couple of times, and cultivates the area once a week. Late in September he sows the seeds, separate colors of red, pinks, few white and lavender. He notes that the lavender variety is the weaker in bloom, the white variety just fair.

Currently, we are too late to start the "Seidel System" this year, but we should be preparing trenches now for sweet peas. Here are two methods. A new trench should be dug about 18 inches deep by 12 inches wide. Fill it half full of steer manure, scatter two cupfuls of bone meal to a 10-foot trench, cover with soil to within two inches of ground level, dig over, slowly soak down. Dig over again a week to ten days later and soak again. Several weeks later repeat. Sow the sweet pea seeds about mid-September.

THERE'S AN easier way to prepare older established sweet pea trenches. Dig out a two inch layer of the soil, apply the bone meal and sack of manure to a 10 foot trench. Dig in the materials a shovel depth and soak down. Repeat again about 10 days later, then sow the seeds about mid-September.

SUMMER ANNUALS . . .

It isn't exactly late to set out summer flowering annuals if you plant flat size plants right away. Gay color flower zinnias grow quickly and soon blossom in hot weather. So do petunias. Asters, too, brighten the sunny flower bed. Bright orange and vivid yellow marigolds add their own touches of "sunshine" to that garden. You'll be sorry if you miss planting some beautiful fall blooming chrysanthemums. Select some mid-season bloomers, and late season flowering varieties, too, if you don't live in an area where early frosts occur. Late blooming mums provide attractive bright colors during a period when the young winter-spring flowering annuals are growing on to bloom after the first of the year.

Be a Mixer

Mix it before you start to paint. That's the advice of the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. In new cans of paint, or in paint that has been stored for a long time, some pigment will have settled to the bottom. This should be thoroughly mixed in—either by the mechanical shaker at your paint dealer, or by hand, stirring.

Summer Care of Roses

Vigorous grower, flamed-flowered Tropicana rewards generously for attentive culture.

By J. Awdry Armstrong

President, Armstrong Nurseries Inc.

ONCE having experienced its benefits, most any gardener who grows outstanding roses will tell you that a good mulch goes a long way toward easing the problems of summer care. Here are just a few of the reasons why mulching is nearly always a headliner in any smart rose grower's bag of tricks.

1. Rose roots generally spread fairly close to the soil surface and direct sun on the root area can literally bake them. A good mulch protects and keeps the surface soil cool.

2. Many soils will form a hard baked crust under dry summer conditions. A mulch keeps the surface of the soil "open," allowing the root aeration necessary to all plant life.

3. Roses need moisture, a good deal of it, and a good mulch will reduce the amount of watering necessary. This is extremely important in arid climates.

4. A mulch is the easiest and best way to keep weeds out of the rose garden. Weeds not only rob the rose bushes of moisture and soil nutrients but hoeing them out is a tedious chore and sometimes can damage some of the rose roots. A mulch also eliminates hand cultivation.

5. Mulches break down gradually, providing the humus badly needed in loose sandy soils. It isn't easy to hold moisture and slow down the leaching out of the costly plant nutrients which we buy and apply, but a generous amount of humus in the soil will certainly help to that end.

You need not be too particular about the type of mulch you use. Wood shavings make a neat looking and very economical mulch. Straw of various types, shredded bark and even volcanic rock are used successfully. I hesitate to recommend grass clippings because if not spread thinly at each application, they will heat the soil.

It goes without saying that roses must be given adequate water — especially during the summer months when transpiration is rapid. And it is important that each irrigation penetrate as deeply as the lowest roots—at least a foot or more. Make it a point to learn how long this soaking takes in your particular soil. Also, learn how frequently such an irrigation is needed to keep the soil from drying out. This is important because some soils will hold water two or three times as long as others. Obviously the hotter the weather, the more often you will have to irrigate. And in periods of low humidity, you will have to step up the frequency of irrigations.

ROSES ARE heavy feeders, and fertilization at bimonthly intervals during the growing and blooming season will keep them in top condition. In most areas, a balanced commercial fertilizer used according to directions will give excellent results. Well rotted manures will improve the soil texture and also may act as a mulch. However, most of them are fairly low in nitrogen and better results will be obtained if you apply some chemical fertilizer, too. However, do not overdo the nitrogen or you may get too vigorous growth and smaller flowers.

Some very vigorous growers, like Eiffel Tower, Buccaneer, Tropicana, El Capitan and Queen Elizabeth, are often benefitted by a light summer pruning. This should consist mainly of cutting back long ungainly canes to promote additional bloom breaks and to keep these very strong growing kinds more in conformity with other varieties in the rose bed.

Pest and fungus attacks vary with the seasons, although in milder coastal areas there is little change. Consulation with your nurseryman should answer questions of maintaining adequate controls. Summer care is important to fall production of roses, oftentimes the most perfect and colorful of the year.

Experience has proved that Pink Parfait is a highly rewarding rose to grow in the moist climate of low-lying Long Beach gardens. The plant produces many beautifully formed pink buds of florist quality, not over-large, if properly fed and watered and a spray program to control the aphis and mildew is adhered to during the warm season.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week . . . If grassy weeds are making gravelled areas unsightly, control them the easy way with a combination weed killer and soil sterilant available at all C.A.N. nurseries.

You can get a tropical effect in your July garden by planting Rice Paper Plant, bamboo, small palms, New Zealand Flax, and other exotics on display at your nursery now.

For something different in late summer and fall, plant the Scarborough Lily (Vallota) from containers now. It will produce brilliant orange-vermillion flowers this year in clusters of four or five on short, heavy stalks. It likes to be grown in pots and don't be afraid to use a small one as crowding produces better blooms.

A mulch around shrubbery plantings, and on flower beds will help to hold moisture in the soil and keep the surface looking neat and clean. Best of all, it keeps down weeds. Check with your C.A.N. nurseryman on the different mulches available.

All trees and shrubs can be planted in containers, now. Keep them well watered through hot weather.

Loud-mouthed, cocky, but no fool, the blue jay is a sagacious bird.

The Sagacious Scamp

By Bob and Jan Young

THERE was a raucous note of confidence in the blue jay's voice as he dispersed the frightened smaller birds and settled down for a feast at the newly-installed feeder. After selecting choice seeds from the wild-bird mix, the jay paused and studied the gravity-fed gimmick. He wanted the sunflower seeds—all of them; none of that small-bird grain for him. If a jay was going to share a gnat, he would keep the breast for himself.

In a minute, the jay had solved the puzzle. Using one claw he jiggled the dispenser so that the smaller seeds spilled out and left the sunflower seeds. He set those aside, then repeated the theft. When the jay had stolen all of the largest seeds, he munched some. Full, he flashed up from the tray carrying some seeds in his bill. But he didn't fly far, just to a hanging basket of ratrail cactus. There he hid the seeds for another day. At least no one else would get them and that satisfied the bird who is as cocky as a bookmaker backing a fixed race.

FORTUNATELY, this selfish squirreling away of seeds is an enormous help in perpetuation of forests by scattering seed, and it also reveals the scope of the jay's intelligence applied to secreting tidbits.

But before that aspect is considered, the observation of conservationists should be considered in that many decry efforts to eliminate this colorfully decorated bird, despite the fact jays are accused of nest-robbing and killing smaller birds for food. Bird populations are controlled and marginal birds are eliminated. Jays also devour huge quantities of pine beetles and a myriad of other harmful insects. These saucy jabberers lend weight in the over-all balance of nature.

The jay's strident, double-fluted notes are as distinctive as its blue, black and white plumage. One penetrating cry sends jays, game and song birds fleeing for cover because the noise signals danger from a hawk, hunter or cat. While other birds consider the jay as self-centered as a loan shark, they trust his interest in perpetuity and heed the warning call which, curiously, seems to be universally understood.

BEING KIN to crows, ravens and magpies, the jays naturally are among the egg-heads of the egg-layers. A captive jay caged near a robin learned to mimic its call note but it always came out something like moving a rusty hinge. Ornithologists believe that jays are gradually developing a unique language, such as the alert. Though usually as harsh as a carny spieler, the jay's calls modulate to low, warbling notes in the mating season.

Even determined "Blue Jay Shoots" have failed to appreciably discourage or decimate these complex birds. When the ranks of this crafty bird are thinned, the reduction is nullified by an influx of jays from surrounding areas. Probably comparable amounts devoted to conservation would be more productive.

Jays seem as determined to prevail as hard-core Communists and even mute themselves when mating or nesting. Gone are the gay days with the gang and their spectacular aerial antics and excited, pompous posturing and preening. A way-out jay may nest on a fire escape occasionally but they usually build a sturdy twig nest near a house where the inhabitants may not even be aware of the birds. No sound is made by either parent near the nesting area. The saucy scamp has become a sly skulker.

HIGH SPIRITS and restless intelligence make jays easily-trained, interesting pets. They are as mischievous as small boys and have a puckish sense of humor.

On hot days, jays will impudently walk along in the shadows cast by grazing cattle, occasionally fluttering up to peck small flies from legs or body without the least concern for the animals' discomfiture.

A pair of jays ganged up on a wood rat, nesting in the eaves of a mountain cabin. Pixies, the jays plagued the rat almost out of his mind by flying at him and gently pecking the back of his head each time he emerged from hiding.

JAYS HAVE the charm and understanding of a psychiatrist when they beg or blackmail morsels from picnickers. At first, the jays posture prettily and get handouts because they are handsome. When that gets old, they scold and scream and are silent only when the edible blackmail is continued. But the scheme is twofold. They eat their fill, then wing away with snacks. They hide bits of bread or cracker under leaves, sticks or other flimsy cover.

Anyone who thinks the jay is such a scatterbrain as to forget or misplace these treasures sadly underrates him. His edible caches eventually attract ants or other bugs. Then he swoops down to gobble this tidbit now frosted with tasty insects!

A loud-mouthed fool? A more accurate appraisal might be that all of his brilliance isn't limited to his colorful plumage.

Loud-mouthed, cocky, but no fool, the blue jay is a sagacious bird.

The Sagacious Scamp

By Bob and Jan Young

THERE was a raucous note of confidence in the blue jay's voice as he dispersed the frightened smaller birds and settled down for a feast at the newly-installed feeder. After selecting choice seeds from the wild-bird mix, the jay paused and studied the gravity-fed gimmick. He wanted the sunflower seeds—all of them; none of that small-bird grain for him. If a jay was going to share a gnat, he would keep the breast for himself.

In a minute, the jay had solved the puzzle. Using one claw he jiggled the dispenser so that the smaller seeds spilled out and left the sunflower seeds. He set those aside, then repeated the theft. When the jay had stolen all of the largest seeds, he munched some. Full, he flashed up from the tray carrying some seeds in his bill. But he didn't fly far, just to a hanging basket of rattail cactus. There he hid the seeds for another day. At least no one else would get them and that satisfied the bird who is as cocky as a bookmaker backing a fixed race.

FORTUNATELY, this selfish squirreling away of seeds is an enormous help in perpetuation of forests by scattering seed, and it also reveals the scope of the jay's intelligence applied to secreting tidbits.

But before that aspect is considered, the observation of conservationists should be considered in that many decry efforts to eliminate this colorfully decorated bird, despite the fact jays are accused of nest-robbing and killing smaller birds for food. Bird populations are controlled and marginal birds are eliminated. Jays also devour huge quantities of pine beetles and a myriad of other harmful insects. These saucy jabberers lend weight in the over-all balance of nature.

The jay's strident, double fluted notes are as distinctive as its blue, black and white plumage. One penetrating cry sends jays, game and song birds fleeing for cover because the noise signals danger from a hawk, hunter or cat. While other birds consider the jay as self-centered as a loan shark, they trust his interest in perpetuity and heed the warning call which, curiously, seems to be universally understood.

BEING KIN to crows, ravens and magpies, the jays naturally are among the egg-heads of the egg-layers. A captive jay caged near a robin learned to mimic its call note but it always came out something like moving a rusty hinge. Ornithologists believe that jays are gradually developing a unique language, such as the alert. Though usually as harsh as a carny spieler, the jay's calls modulate to low, warbling notes in the mating season.

Even determined "Blue Jay Shoots" have failed to appreciably discourage or decimate these complex birds. When the ranks of this crafty bird are thinned, the reduction is nullified by an influx of jays from surrounding areas. Probably comparable amounts devoted to conservation would be more productive.

Jays seem as determined to prevail as hard-core Communists and even mute themselves when mating or nesting. Gone are the gay days with the gang and their spectacular aerial antics and excited, pompous posturing and preening. A way-out jay may nest on a fire escape occasionally but they usually build a sturdy twig nest near a house where the inhabitants may not even be aware of the birds. No sound is made by either parent near the nesting area. The saucy scamp has become a sly skulker.

HIGH SPIRITS and restless intelligence make jays easily-trained, interesting pets. They are as mischievous as small boys and have a puckish sense of humor.

On hot days, jays will impudently walk along in the shadows cast by grazing cattle, occasionally fluttering up to peck small flies from legs or body without the least concern for the animals' discomfiture.

A pair of jays ganged up on a wood rat, nesting in the eaves of a mountain cabin. Pixies, the jays plagued the rat almost out of his mind by flying at him and gently pecking the back of his head each time he emerged from hiding.

JAYS HAVE the charm and understanding of a psychiatrist when they beg or blackmail morsels from picnickers. At first, the jays posture prettily and get handouts because they are handsome. When that gets old, they scold and scream and are silent only when the edible blackmail is continued. But the scheme is twofold. They eat their fill, then wing away with snacks. They hide bits of bread or cracker under leaves, sticks or other flimsy cover.

Anyone who thinks the jay is such a scatterbrain as to forget or misplace these treasures sadly underrates him. His edible caches eventually attract ants or other bugs. Then he swoops down to gobble this tidbit now frosted with tasty insects!

A loud-mouthed fool? A more accurate appraisal might be that all of his brilliance isn't limited to his colorful plumage.

This computer can absorb 29,000 words a minute and the developers have slowed this down to 900 words per minute (the other 28,000 are stored for later use on magnetic tape) so the machine can scan written copy such as this and convert it to punched tape to operate typesetting machines which will make the type that created these printed words without use anywhere of human hands.

SOME restaurant-goers prefer dining rooms as spacious as the palace at Versailles, France. Others enjoy smaller rooms, equally splendid, but more subdued.

After dining out extensively for the better part of two decades, I have come to prefer dining rooms of unpretentious size, finding them to have more warmth and sociability. In recent years the trend in restaurant styling has been toward smaller dining rooms, with some of Southern California's newest establishments offering dining in two or three distinctive rooms instead of in a single, extravagantly large one.

The Cafe Lafayette in downtown Long Beach's Lafayette Hotel is a foremost example of this. The hotel has several ballroom-sized rooms for formal banquets, but also offers epicurean dining in smaller rooms like the Cafe and the Ivanhoe Room. The Cafe was created by hotel manager John McKennon as a distinctively regal place where guests with a knowledge of fine dining can enjoy the very best in continental dining and service. Offered for dinner are seven exceptional entrees (all $4.50) prepared under the direction of Swiss executive chef Peter Hirsbrunner. Included are elegant roast prime rib of beef au jus with Yorkshire pudding, veal escallop cordon bleu, Dover sole belle meuniere, beef fondue bourguignonne, stuffed brook trout au beurre, beefsteak tartar and veal Oscar.

These include delightful petits d'oeuvres (such as thin slices of salmon or shrimp aspic, plus carrots julienne, white onion rings and lettuce); fresh spinach salad, baked potato or rice, vegetable, beverage and dessert. Closed Sunday, the Cafe serves luncheon and dinner daily.

Open daily and Sunday is the plush Ivanhoe Room, where the features are superb charcoal-broiled steaks and continental dinners, priced from $3.50, including wine.

SUNDAY TREATS—With its bright coral decorative touches and unusually fine food, the Coral Room, 4130 Paramount Boulevard, near Carson Street, is an excellent choice for Sunday dining. Manager Bill Cheatly, a slim blonde personality, offers such treats as chicken Mandarin with pineapple sauce, $3.25; roast prime rib au jus, $3.75 (or $5.25 for the gigantic Jim Brady cut); petite top sirloin, $3.25, and tender filet mignon wrapped in bacon, $4.50.

Q. Is it true that photographers covering Lyndon Johnson have been ordered to photograph only his left profile, that in fact the President is a most vain man?—D.L., Washington, D.C.

A. In San Francisco when Johnson spoke at the 20th anniversary of the United Nations, Secret Service agents grouped all the photographers so that only the President's favorite side, his left profile, could be photographed.

Q. Yul Brynner, the actor, recently renounced American citizenship. Wouldn't it be a good idea for American citizens to now renounce Yul Brynner films? Also what makes the Swiss tax setup so advantageous that so many film stars like Brynner, Elizabeth Taylor, Bill Holden, Richard Burton, etc., establish residence in Switzerland?—Gertrude Klein, Chicago, Ill.

A. Brynner is worth comparatively little at the U.S. box office. Film stars establish residence in Switzerland where they form personal corporations and have their incomes paid into them. Such corporations pay only two-tenths of one per cent corporate tax. No tax is collected on undistributed profits, and the profits never have to be distributed. As for Swiss income taxes, they are negligible. One tax authority estimates that by renouncing her U.S. citizenship and maintaining residence in Switzerland, Elizabeth Taylor will pay less than one-tenth of what she had to pay in U.S. taxes.

Q. Hasn't Jackie Kennedy secretly been dating orchestra leader Leonard Bernstein?—F.L., New York, N.Y.

A. Bernstein is a happily married man, an old friend of Mrs. Kennedy's. There has been no secret dating. They have attended several public functions.

Q. What is the ratio of doctors to people in this country and in the Soviet Union?—Don Clark, Baltimore, Md.

A. There is 1 doctor for every 714 people in the U.S., 1 doctor for every 350 persons in the Soviet Union.

Q. Was Doris Day ever married to a Negro? Has any member of her family ever been married to a Negro?—Harry T., Columbus, Ohio.

A. Miss Day has been married three times but none of her husbands is a Negro. Her father some years ago married a Negro barmaid.

Q. Can you tell the inside story of how Frank Sinatra's son got slapped by that actress in South America when he got too fresh?—A. Cousins, Miami, Fla.

A. Young Sinatra did not get fresh with anyone. In Buenos Aires, a blonde young starlet Mabel Luna, probably searching for publicity, squeezed through a mob of autograph hunters who were milling around Sinatra. Suddenly she slapped the young singer twice, screamed, "Send that to your father—for all he has done to women."

Q. How is Groucho Marx doing in England with his TV quiz show?—Leon Gordon, Hollywood, Calif.

A. He's laid a bomb. Typical criticism: "Groucho's quiz show is just one big yawn."—Clive Barnes in the London Daily Express.

Q. Barbara Walters of the Today TV program—is she married? Is she any relation to Lou Walters who owns the Latin Quarter night club in N.Y.?—Lou Garber, Staten Island, N.Y.

A. She is married to producer Lee Guber, is the daughter of Lou Walters.

Q. In all the millions of words written about the Rockefellers, why has nothing ever been printed about the Rockefeller rape trial?—F.L., Albany, N.Y.

A. There was never any Rockefeller rape trial. In 1849 John D. Rockefeller's father, a con man who sold quack medicines in the Midwest, was indicted for the alleged rape of a house maid. The case never came to trial. Mention of the scandal is contained in many histories of the Rockefellers, most recent of which is The Rockefeller Billions, by Jules Abels, publisher: Macmillan.

Q. There is a very famous anecdote about actress Katherine Hepburn and her reluctance to have anything to do with press agents, especially Hollywood press agents. Would you find out what it is and print it? Thank you.—Lois James, Denver, Colo.

A. Several years ago when she reported to work at Paramount Studios for her role in The Rainmaker, Katharine Hepburn was greeted politely by a young man who said: "I am Bob Fender, press agent on this picture." The actress quickly replied: "I am Katharine Hepburn, actress on this picture. And you realize, of course, that this is the last conversation we will have." It was.

Q. The late Marilyn Monroe left an estate of $500,000 when she died. In the creditors' claims on the estate, I understand there is one by her former drama coach, Paula Strasberg. I would like to find out how much Mrs. Strasberg is asking for her lessons.—Diana Clark, Oakland, Calif.

A. Her claim on the estate for drama coaching is $22,209. The estate, however, is virtually bankrupt owing to large federal and state income tax and estate tax payments. Mrs. Strasberg and other creditors will probably get little or nothing.

Q. Is it true that Albert Einstein, the great scientist, never wore socks?—Sal Fiore, Atlantic City, N.J.

A. It was true while he lived and worked at Princeton.

Q. Who said: "Avoid popularity. It has many snares and no real benefits."?—Frieda Henschel, Wellesley, Mass.

A. William Penn.

what's wrong with our teenagers' diets?

by JACK HARRISON POLLACK

Today in the United States, this land of abundance, a higher percentage of teenagers may be suffering from poor nutrition than in the so-called backward nations. Six out of 10 teenage girls and 4 out of 10 adolescent boys have poor diets. Millions of America's well-fed but ill-nourished young people now receive fewer than two-thirds of the nutrients recommended by the National Research Council.

These startling findings are based upon U.S. Department of Agriculture evaluations and other studies of many new teenage nutritional surveys across America. Experts agree that today's adolescent eating habits are probably worse than those of a generation ago and that the long-range implications for the nation are alarming—unless teenage diets are speedily improved.

Undernourishment, malnutrition and obesity may be shortening many teenagers' lives. Heart disease and other killers are increasingly being linked with poor nutrition. Dr. Robert E. Hodges, who codirected a nutrition study of 2,000 Iowa junior and senior high school students, concluded, "Possibly the dietary habits of today may be contributing to coronary disease over the next two decades."

Despite the decline of scurvy, which was so prevalent in the 1930's, today many young Americans—living in a nation with food surpluses—are suffering from other equally serious nutritional deficiencies.

One of the most disturbing findings of the new research is its implications for future motherhood. Studies show conclusively that girls with nutritional deficiencies in teenage may be adversely affected throughout their childbearing years. As young mothers—and one out of every four mothers bearing a first child is under 20—they are poor obstetrical risks. "The babies of these young mothers may be premature, have congenital defects or inadequate nutritional reserves to protect them through the birth and first few days and months of life," Dr. Evelyn B. Spindler, a top Department of Agriculture nutritionist, told PARADE.

WORST-FED MEMBER

All the recent nutritional studies show that the family's worst-fed member is the teenage girl—and that the older the child, the poorer the diet. Furthermore, as youngsters move from elementary to high school—from childhood to teenage—the number with careless eating habits increases sharply. Even teenagers who eat a lot are undernourished, investigator after investigator found.

Teenage girls commonly lack calcium, iron and vitamin C. Adolescent boys are often short on calcium, thiamine and vitamin C. Experts explain that boys generally choose better diets than girls because physical fitness is more important to them and they aren't as weight-conscious.

Why are America's teenagers so poorly fed? Here, summarized by Dr. Spindler, are the main reasons:

1. They skip breakfast. A vast number of teenagers do not eat in the morning—because they stay up late at night and oversleep, because they want to spend the time dressing, because breakfast isn't ready and they don't want to take time to prepare it or because they want to lose weight and think skipping breakfast is the way to do it.

A study of a Flint, Mich., high school with 2,000 students found that nearly two-thirds regularly ate no breakfast!

Skipping breakfast is more common among teenage girls than boys. In an Illinois study, more than five times as many girls as boys ate no breakfast. One girl admitted, "I usually eat junk so late at night that I'm never hungry at breakfast." But most girls skipped breakfast for weight reasons.

Yet to start a day at top physical and mental efficiency, boys and girls need nourishment. Breakfast-skippers, studies show, rarely make up in later meals their needed daily amounts of calcium, vitamin C, iron or thiamine. And because they are hungry, they nibble snacks which are high in calories but low in nutrients, and wind up the day with more calories than the breakfast-eaters!

2. They choose snacks unwisely. Snack-time is important to teenage boys and girls, whether they are out with friends or raiding the refrigerator at home. One-fourth of teenagers' calories—equivalent to an entire meal—come from snacks, reveals an Iowa study. Most adolescents eat one to three snacks daily, an Illinois investigation found. And a Berkeley, Calif., survey found a teenage boy who admitted eating 17 snacks every day!

Take my two teenage daughters, who were recently left a steak and green salad in the refrigerator and told to eat them for dinner. Did they? Hardly. Instead, they went out and wolfed a pizza.

"There's nothing wrong with teenagers eating a pizza if they eat a green salad, banana and milkshake with it," explains Dr. Spindler.

Because a teenage girl requires only 2,400 calories daily, this lack is more serious for her than for a boy, who needs 3,600. The fewer calories you eat the more important it is to make all of them count. So if a girl gets most of her calories from snacks, she feels little need to consume other foods which provide more protective nutrients.

Some snacks, of course, provide valuable nutrients: Hamburgers and hot dogs are favorite sources of protein; fresh fruits and vegetables like apples, bananas, apricots, celery and carrot sticks provide important minerals and some vitamins. Unfortunately, snack items are often limited in variety because teenagers cluster around drugstores, drive-ins or short-order eating establishments which specialize in "empty calorie" items.

FEAR FAT

3. They drink little or no milk. A third reason why so many teenagers are badly nourished is that they no longer drink milk, or don't drink enough of it. Nearly everyone knows that milk is an important source of calcium which is necessary to build firm bones and teeth. But few realize that calcium also helps nerves and muscles to react normally and blood to clot.

A major co-operative study of 800 teenagers made in 11 Western states found insufficient calcium intake in half of the girls and in one-fifth of the boys. Countless shortsighted teenagers refuse to drink milk because they consider it a child's drink, foolishly fear that it will hurt their complexions or are afraid that it will make them fat.

Teenagers should drink milk at every meal. Experts suggest regular vitamin D milk for most adolescents, a milkshake or malted for underweight youngsters and skim milk or buttermilk for those trying to lose weight.

4. They are indifferent to meals. Many teenagers in theory know what to eat but really don't care much about food. Why? Partly because of social pressures, their growing independence and their hurried sched-

Teen in typical pose: young girls have worst-balanced diets in the family, alternately skip meals and gorge themselves.

FEAR FAT

3. They drink little or no milk. A third reason why so many teenagers are badly nourished is that they no longer drink milk, or don't drink enough of it. Nearly everyone knows that milk is an important source of calcium which is necessary to build firm bones and teeth. But few realize that calcium also helps nerves and muscles to react normally and blood to clot.

4. They are indifferent to meals. Many teenagers in theory know what to eat but really don't care much about food. Why? Partly because of social pressures, their growing independence and their hurried schedules. If a teenager has a date, a chance to be with the "gang" or to drive the family car, meals become secondary.

Some teenagers leave for school at 7 A.M. and don't return until 7 P.M. because of studies and extracurricular activities. "I'm in such a hurry, I don't have time to eat," explains a 16-year-old Michigan boy. A 15-year-old Pennsylvania girl adds, "I often skip lunch because the school lunchroom line is too crowded and I only have a half hour."

A study of Guilford, N. C., high school students found that 15 per cent missed at least one meal daily. Moreover, the higher the grade, the higher the percentage who missed meals. Twenty-five per cent of the seniors missed at least one meal daily. A University of California study found a large proportion of teenagers "who never really had one organized meal."

"Many teenagers indulge in the self-deception of believing that there is a unique magical quality to their own endurance which enables them to get along on inadequate diets," points out Dr. Rhoda Lorand, a New York analyst specializing in adolescents, in her new book, Love, Sex and the Teenager.

5...They fear fat. Many teenagers—especially girls—are poorly fed because of the national fear of fat. Numerous adolescent girls go on fad or crash diets in an effort to shed pounds speedily. The result is they often deprive their bodies of much-needed nutrients. And, ironically, they starve themselves only to get so hungry that they gorge and grow fatter.

Curiously, the obese girl isn't usually as afraid of fat as the thin one. Older girls fear fat more than younger ones because a higher percentage are overweight. For example, in a study of Iowa 9-year-olds, 19 per cent of the girls were overweight. But this jumped to 44 per cent at age 16.

More teenage girls than boys are overweight. Studies of 15- and 16-year-olds in these three states showed the following percentages overweight:

Iowa 44 per cent of girls, 19 per cent of boys.
Maine 30 per cent of girls, 10 per cent of boys.
Oregon 39 per cent of girls, 29 per cent of boys.

Because teenage girls need about a third fewer calories than boys of the same age, they can't eat as much or as often without gaining weight. But activity as well as calories influence weight. When the two balance, weight remains steady.

The important message of the fat story is that millions of teenage girls need to understand nutrition better so that they can both keep their calories down and have good diets at the same time.

Student of teenage diets, Dr. Evelyn Spindler is U.S. Department of Agriculture nutritionist.

What can be done to improve teen eating habits? In Rock Island County, Ill., a unique program called Teen Time Food Fare is attacking this problem. It was sparked by community leaders, representing schools, churches, PTA's, Girl Scouts, YWCA, 4-H Clubs, the United Way, National Dairy Council and public health nutritionists.

FOOD SOCIALS

Teen Time Food Fare consists of a series of social gatherings. Clever, attractive invitations are signed by popular teenagers. Some of the social events are dubbed "Pineapple Whirl," "Kabob Kapers" and "Barbecue Ball." Some catchy titles for lessons in calories include "Kookie Kalories," "Sprat Spree," "Pro-Teens for Go-Teens." Through group quizzes, experts teach nutrition facts, including balanced diets, keeping food records and how weight, complexion and appearance even affect securing a job. Interesting, nutritious foreign and regional foods are planned, prepared and served by teenagers who have visited the areas.

The result? Many teenagers have dramatically changed eating habits.

Thanks to this imaginative program, the idea has spread throughout Illinois. Today about two-thirds of the counties in the state have teenage nutrition programs.

How can teenagers elsewhere be encouraged to develop better eating habits? Dr. Spindler suggests through the following five channels, which are important to all teenagers.

1. Friends—The habits of friends often influence teenagers far more than others. All of us want friends and in our culture we share food and drink with them. If teenage leaders can be motivated to choose food wisely, they in turn can influence other kids to eat better-balanced diets.

2. Group Activities—Teenagers are developing socially and want to be with others of their age group. At most social affairs, food and drinks are served. Teenage leaders can make it "the thing to do" to serve nutritious foods at parties, dances, barbecues and other social events.

Boys can help improve girls' nutrition. Though the average teenage girl is poorer fed than the boy her age, she is frequently influenced by him.

3. Appearance—Teenagers need to know how sensible nutrition contributes not only to correct weight, but to clear skin, shiny hair and good posture. By convincing youngsters of the relationship between appearance and nutrition, we can help motivate them toward improving their diets.

4. Vigor—Teenagers admire others with vigor and want it for themselves. But they may not always connect lack of energy with poor nutrition. We can help them see this relationship. Boys particularly admire athletes, cheerleaders and "guys well-built but not muscle-bound."

5. Popularity—Teenagers want to be popular. The individual they generally most admire isn't a movie or TV star but a popular classmate, outstanding athlete, student or class president who almost always has energy and good looks. Teenagers can be shown how improving their food habits can also help them develop more popular personalities.

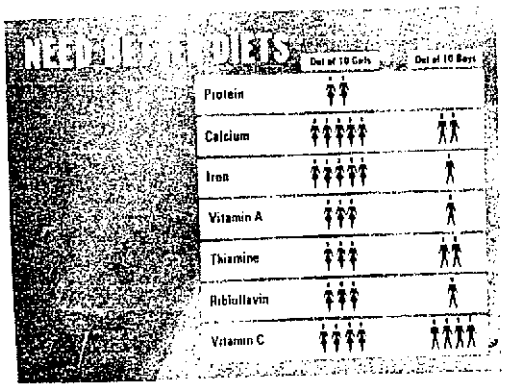

What can adults do to help teenagers eat better-balanced meals? Find out if your town has a teenage nutrition program. If not, you can help to start one. You will eagerly be aided by home economics teachers, county extension home economists, your local dairy council, nutrition council, dieticians, doctors and public health nutritionists. You can get help from Dr. Evelyn B. Spindler, nutritionist in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

Dr. Spindler, who recently received the Superior Service Award from the U. S. Department of Agriculture for her nation-wide efforts to improve teenage nutrition, has this final advice for PARADE readers: "Don't preach. Teenagers usually resent being told what is 'good for them.' They're interested in facts. Give them the facts, guide them but let them draw their own conclusions."

Three aspects of malnutrition among U.S. teenagers

ules. If a teenager has a date, a chance to be with the "gang" or to drive the family car, meals become secondary.

Some teenagers leave for school at 7 A.M. and don't return until 7 P.M. because of studies and extracurricular activities. "I'm in such a hurry, I don't have time to eat," explains a 16-year-old Michigan boy. A 15-year-old Pennsylvania girl adds, "I often skip lunch because the school lunchroom line is too crowded and I only have a half hour."

A study of Guilford, N. C., high school students found that 15 per cent missed at least one meal daily. Moreover, the higher the grade, the higher the percentage who missed meals. Twenty-five per cent of the seniors missed at least one meal daily. A University of California study found a large proportion of teenagers "who never really had one organized meal."

"Many teenagers indulge in the self-deception of believing that there is a unique magical quality to their own endurance which enables them to get along on inadequate diets," points out Dr. Rhoda Lorand, a New York analyst specializing in adolescents, in her new book, Love, Sex and the Teenager.

5...They fear fat. Many teenagers—especially girls—are poorly fed because of the national fear of fat. Numerous adolescent girls go on fad or crash diets in an effort to shed pounds speedily. The result is they often deprive their bodies of much-needed nutrients. And, ironically, they starve themselves only to get so hungry that they gorge and grow fatter.

Curiously, the obese girl isn't usually as afraid of fat as the thin one. Older girls fear fat more than younger ones because a higher percentage are overweight. For example, in a study of Iowa 9-year-olds, 19 per cent of the girls were overweight. But this jumped to 44 per cent at age 16.

More teenage girls than boys are overweight. Studies of 15- and 16-year-olds in these three states showed the following percentages overweight:

Iowa 44 per cent of girls, 19 per cent of boys.
Maine 30 per cent of girls, 10 per cent of boys.
Oregon 39 per cent of girls, 29 per cent of boys.

Because teenage girls need about a third fewer calories than boys of the same age, they can't eat as much or as often without gaining weight. But activity as well as calories influence weight. When the two balance, weight remains steady.

The important message of the fat story is that millions of teenage girls need to understand nutrition better so that they can both keep their calories down and have good diets at the same time.

A FIRSTHAND REPORT ON HER MILITARY POWER 20 YEARS AFTER V-J DAY

HOW STRONG IS JAPAN TODAY?

by ED KIESTER PARADE MANAGING EDITOR

Japanese-built tanks of nation's Self-Defense Force roll through streets of Tokyo. Japan also builds its own rifles, machine guns, jeeps, antitank missiles, boasts a home-built destroyer fleet.

TOKYO.

It was a scene to strike dread into the heart of any American, Filipino or Chinese with a long memory. The assault boat crunched onto the sand, the bow opened and a swarm of short, stocky, fatigue-clad men, helmeted and carrying rifles at high port, stormed ashore. Yelling, they ran through the surf and up the beach and flopped down in assault positions. Their automatic weapons began to chatter. One of them raised the emblem under which they served: the red-and-white flag of the Rising Sun.

This tableau took place not 20 years ago, but happens regularly in the Japanese home islands. It represents not a great military machine, as Japan was before its surrender Aug. 14, 1945, but a small force dedicated to defense and idealism. The occasions are routine practice exercises conducted by elements of the Japanese Self-Defense Force. Yet they dramatize questions that are among the foremost before the world today.

HOW POWERFUL?

Twenty years after V-J Day, how strong is Japan militarily? At a time when the Far East is the scene of mortal combat between the free world and Communism, is Asia's foremost bastion of freedom powerful enough—and willing enough—to do its share of the fighting? In a showdown, how much help could Japan's present forces be? Should Japan be encouraged to beef up its strength? And if it did, would it lead to more Pearl Harbors, more Bataans?

These are vital questions for Americans, for what Japan does can affect our own commitment in Asia—in terms of men and in terms of dollars. They are being asked in Washington and in other capitals—and in Tokyo as well. After World War II, at the instigation of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Japan adopted a constitution which formally renounced war. Whether that constitution, and the policy it represents, should be changed is one of the most divisive issues in Japanese politics.

Where does Japan stand militarily today? And what are the chances of its coming back as a world power? I have just toured this nation investigating that question. I talked to officials of the Japan Defense Agency, to government leaders, to military officers, to U.S. observers. I toured Japanese ground, sea and air installations. And the picture I saw shows Japan a minor-league military power today—but one that could be major league in the future.

JAPAN RATTLED

To begin with, the detonation of a nuclear device by China has definitely rattled Japan—the only nation which knows firsthand the horror of atomic warfare. It caused some Japanese to campaign for abject appeasement of China—and others to suggest it was high time Japan, the most technologically advanced nation in Asia, built a bomb of its own. ("One day," one Japanese said to me, "our pacifistic country may realize that the most moral attitude of all may be a nuclear offensive against a possible aggressor.")

The United Nations peacekeeping role in the Congo and elsewhere has also raised the issue of military force. By law, Japanese troops cannot serve outside the homeland—even for the UN. In keeping with Japanese idealism, some people feel, the stipulation should be waived and Japan should play a bigger part in international affairs.

On the other hand, the minority Socialist Party and its followers believe Japan should continue its pacifist course and hold military force to a minimum. The Socialists have demonstrated against alliances with the U.S. and U.S. bases here. They even argue that the whole present Self-Defense Force is illegal.

Actually, the Japanese force was a departure from the famous declaration of pacifism. It came about in 1950 when the Korean War broke out and U.S. troops here were all dispatched to that tragic peninsula. It was decided that a domestic police force was needed to preserve order—particularly since there were 600,000 Koreans in Japan. After a good deal of debate, a force of 75,000 men was authorized.

Today that strength has grown to about 260,000. It is divided among a Ground Self-Defense Force, Maritime Self-Defense Force and Air Self-Defense Force. They are crack units, made up completely of volunteers, officered at the top in many cases by men trained in the imperial forces of World War II. The GSDF consists of 13 divisions, including an air-borne unit and a mechanized division. The maritime force includes 18 destroyers and destroyer-escorts, 7 subs and a flotilla of mine-sweepers; the air force is now being equipped with 200 F-104 jet fighters.

Much of this equipment is Japanese-built. Proudly, for example, MSDF men showed me around the destroyer Anayami, a product of Japan's shipyards. The F-104's are built by Mitsubishi under contract with Lockheed. Japan also builds its own tanks, armed personnel carriers, rifles, machine guns, jeeps and antitank missiles.

Moreover the Japanese point out that theirs is the fourth nation in the world in rocketry and that although these rockets have been used mainly for atmospheric exploration to date, they could be adapted for other purposes. Japan, it is also noted, has its own atomic industry, which produces isotopes and has atomic power stations.

THE JAPANESE IN WORLD WAR II

	Strength	Losses
ARMY PERSONNEL	5.5 MILLION	350,000
ARMY AIRCRAFT	35,500 PLANES	25,500
NAVY AIRCRAFT	31,495	25,609
NAVAL VESSELS	1,217	684

Japan's military strategy today rests on its alliance with the U.S. We have seven air bases, an Army headquarters and two key naval bases. This pact comes up for review in 1970 and has already been the target of protests. Recently it was attacked when a noted strategist declared that "to count on another country for vital national defense is nothing but abject colonialism."

The Self-Defense Forces today are operating under a five-year plan that expires in 1966, but already Defense Agency officials are drawing up its successor, which would expand the forces further. It also is expected to call for more expenditure—Japan now spends only 8.5 per cent of its budget for the military, compared to 50 per cent in the U.S., 35 per cent in Britain and 35 per cent even in Switzerland—and for elevation of the Defense Agency to ministry status in the cabinet.

What may be more important, the military life is becoming respectable in Japan once again. Those military men I talked to were hardly warlike or militaristic, but they were proud of their service and uniform.

WAR GAMES

Furthermore, this attitude seems to be permeating the country more. You now see boys playing war again—"playing self-defense," one Japanese says derisively—there is great interest in the self-defense academy at Obaradai, and last fall, when the last example of the famous Zero fighter was put on display at a Tokyo department store, the first time one had been seen in Japan in 20 years, more than 160,000 visitors a week came to see it.

"These guys, don't forget it, put up a tremendous scrap in World War II," one American here said to me. "They can be just as strong as they want to be, today or tomorrow." And that seems to size up Japan's military posture today. Twenty years after the war, she is still a force to be reckoned with.

Who says there's no difference in margarines?

BRANDS TESTED	% POLY-UNSATURATES
Saffola	42.1%
Mazola	38.5%
Fleischmann's	37.4%
Imperial	33.3%
Kraft (CORN OIL MARGARINE)	29.6%

Because the poly-unsaturation content of individual margarines may vary slightly between production runs, the percentage figures above are averages of the total samples of each brand, and are based upon the most recent analysis by the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute.

If you buy margarine for poly-unsaturation—as well as for flavor and quality—the results of a new laboratory test by the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute are important to you!

In recent tests by America's leading independent testing laboratory, margarine samples were picked at random from grocers' shelves all across the country. These tests revealed an important difference: Saffola has more poly-unsaturates than Mazola, Fleischmann's, Imperial, Kraft and other national brands—and by a considerable margin. At the same time, the tests show that Saffola has 14% less saturated fats than any of the other premium margarines above.

Why is Saffola both highest in poly-unsaturates and lowest in saturated fats? The answer is on every package you buy. Light, golden Safflower Oil is the main ingredient that goes into Saffola margarine. And Safflower Oil is 36% higher in poly-unsaturates than Corn Oil—principal ingredient of the other premium margarines.

A flavor every other margarine would like to have!

Whether you use Saffola as a spread—or in cooking—its light, golden flavor will surprise even the most loyal dairy product user. For taste, and for superior quality, Saffola gives you more reasons to buy margarine than you've ever had before.

James Bond, agent 007, hits teen knees and fad crew shirts.

THIS SUMMER'S FADS:

KNEE MAKE-UP AND CREW SHIRTS

by LLOYD SHEARER

How do fads begin in this country?

Most of the time their origin is economic. A manufacturer develops a new gimmick, a new product, or refurbishes an old one. He promotes it through various media, makes a fortune if and when it catches on.

At other times the incubus of a fad is an almost untraceable fluke which somehow tweaks the public fancy.

This summer two of the most popular fads among teenage females are knee make-up and crew shirts, one a commercial gimmick, the other a reborn fluke.

The knee make-up is the idea of a suburban Pittsburgh housewife, Mrs. Mary Metzler, who with her husband Don distributes Viviane Woodard cosmetics in Pennsylvania.

"This past spring," says Mrs. Metzler, "I was trying to think of an interesting gimmick, some way we could sell more cosmetics. My husband said, 'Those new dress styles women are wearing—they show so much of the knee. Couldn't we do something about that?'

"I thought about it for a while. Then I came up with the idea of knee make-up to match the personality. I introduced the idea at a make-up show on May 4th. We held it at the Holiday Inn in Oakdale, and the teenagers seemed to like it. They called it fun stuff and began making up their knees at beach parties, country outings, swimming pools. The company got up a make-up kit called, 'The Eyes Are on the Knees,' and the teenagers have been buying it up like mad.

"They paint their knees with figures of birds, bees, hearts, flowers. Some print their boy friends' names. Others duplicate a bathing suit or dress motif. It gives them something to do at the beach, but most important it's the kind of gimmick which helps them attract boys. That, after all, is the primary purpose of most cosmetics."

Norman Schneider, head of Allison Manufacturing, largest producer of novelty polo and sweat shirts in the country, attributes the popularity of collegiate crew shirts this summer to the same reason.

"These crew shirts," Schneider admits, "have been around for years. But somehow this season they've suddenly caught on with the girls. They wear them with shorts, slacks, blue jeans, and they wear the long ones at the beach so that they look as if that's all they're wearing.

BOY INTEREST

"My personal opinion is that the girls are buying them because the boys are interested in the emblems. They constitute an opening conversation gambit. Boy sees girl on beach with, say, a University of Minnesota crew shirt. Right away he asks her if she's from St. Paul or goes to the university. That's the kind of thing which leads to a date."

Schneider says it's particularly difficult to spot potential teenage fads. "We came out with a Fink University sweat shirt," he explains. "The collegiate seal says, 'Once a fink, always a fink.' We thought it would develop into a runaway best-seller everywhere in the country. It's doing very well in the East, not too well in the West. On the other hand the reverse holds true for our shirt with the two words, 'Cavalier Charlie' across the front. We're also getting a big play on our 007 or James Bond crew shirt, very big everywhere."

Any chance that the knee make-up and crew shirt fads will last beyond this summer?

"I certainly hope so," says Mary Metzler.

"I doubt it," declares Schneider. "Teenagers as a rule are not interested in last year's gimmick unless of course, they overlooked it to begin with."

If you buy margarine for poly-unsaturation—as well as for flavor and quality—the results of a new laboratory test by the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute are important to you!

In recent tests by America's leading independent testing laboratory, margarine samples were picked at random from grocers' shelves all across the country. These tests revealed an important difference: Saffola has more poly-unsaturates than Mazola, Fleischmann's, Imperial, Kraft and other national brands—and by a considerable margin. At the same time, the tests show that Saffola has 14% less saturated fats than any of the other premium margarines above.

Why is Saffola both highest in poly-unsaturates and lowest in saturated fats? The answer is on every package you buy. Light, golden Safflower Oil is the main ingredient that goes into Saffola margarine. And Safflower Oil is 36% higher in poly-unsaturates than Corn Oil—principal ingredient of the other premium margarines.

A flavor every other margarine would like to have!

Whether you use Saffola as a spread—or in cooking—its light, golden flavor will surprise even the most loyal dairy product user. For taste, and for superior quality, Saffola gives you more reasons to buy margarine than you've ever had before.

LOBSTER ROLLS

- 4 frozen rock lobster tails, about ½ lb. each
- 6 to 8 cups boiling water
- 2 envelopes instant chicken broth mix
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 6 frankfurter rolls, heated
- Savory Sauce*

Place lobster tails in kettle; add just enough boiling water to cover; add broth mix, lemon juice, parsley flakes and salt. When water reboils, lower heat and boil 10 to 12 minutes. Drain; drench with cold water. Cut through under-shell with kitchen shears. Insert fingers between shell and meat; pull firmly, to remove meat in one piece. Cut crosswise into bite-size chunks; chill. To serve, fill rolls with lobster chunks, top with a ribbon of sauce.

*SAVORY SAUCE

- ½ cup mayonnaise
- ½ cup creamed cottage cheese
- 3 tablespoons minced celery
- 2 tablespoons snipped parsley
- 3 tablespoons minced sweet gherkins
- 3 tablespoons minced stuffed olives

Combine all ingredients. Makes about 1⅔ cups.

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

How do fads begin in this country?

Most of the time their origin is economic. A manufacturer develops a new gimmick, a new product, or refurbishes an old one. He promotes it through various media, makes a fortune if and when it catches on.

At other times the incubus of a fad is an almost untraceable fluke which somehow tweaks the public fancy.

This summer two of the most popular fads among teenage females are knee make-up and crew shirts, one a commercial gimmick, the other a reborn fluke.

The knee make-up is the idea of a suburban Pittsburgh housewife, Mrs. Mary Metzler, who with her husband Don distributes Viviane Woodard cosmetics in Pennsylvania.

"This past spring," says Mrs. Metzler, "I was trying to think of an interesting gimmick, some way we could sell more cosmetics. My husband said, 'Those new dress styles women are wearing—they show so much of the knee. Couldn't we do something about that?'

"I thought about it for a while. Then I came up with the idea of knee make-up to match the personality. I introduced the idea at a make-up show on May 4th. We held it at the Holiday Inn in Oakdale, and the teenagers seemed to like it. They called it fun stuff and began making up their knees at beach parties, country outings, swimming pools. The company got up a make-up kit called, 'The Eyes Are on the Knees,' and the teenagers have been buying it up like mad.

"They paint their knees with figures of birds, bees, hearts, flowers. Some print their boy friends' names. Others duplicate a bathing suit or dress motif. It gives them something to do at the beach, but most important it's the kind of gimmick which helps them attract boys. That, after all, is the primary purpose of most cosmetics."

Norman Schneider, head of Allison Manufacturing, largest producer of novelty polo and sweat shirts in the country, attributes the popularity of collegiate crew shirts this summer to the same reason.

"These crew shirts," Schneider admits, "have been around for years. But somehow this season they've suddenly caught on with the girls. They wear them with shorts, slacks, blue jeans, and they wear the long ones at the beach so that they look as if that's all they're wearing.

BOY INTEREST

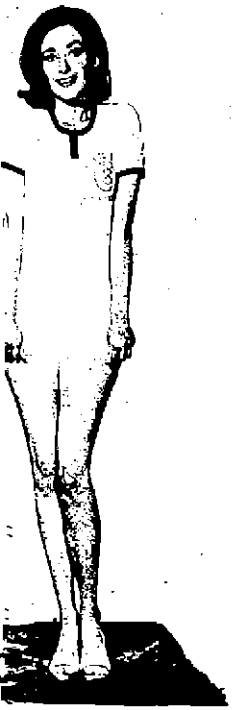

"My personal opinion is that the girls are buying them because the boys are interested in the emblems. They constitute an opening conversation gambit. Boy sees girl on beach with, say, a University of Minnesota crew shirt. Right away he asks her if she's from St. Paul or goes to the university. That's the kind of thing which leads to a date."

Schneider says it's particularly difficult to spot potential teenage fads. "We came out with a Fink University sweat shirt," he explains. "The collegiate seal says, 'Once a fink, always a fink.' We thought it would develop into a runaway best-seller everywhere in the country. It's doing very well in the East, not too well in the West. On the other hand the reverse holds true for our shirt with the two words, 'Cavalier Charlie' across the front. We're also getting a big play on our 007 or James Bond crew shirt, very big everywhere."

Any chance that the knee make-up and crew shirt fads will last beyond this summer?

"I certainly hope so," says Mary Metzler.

"I doubt it," declares Schneider. "Teenagers as a rule are not interested in last year's gimmick unless of course, they overlooked it to begin with."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dave Astor, who's no relation to those other Astors, was born in the wilds of Brooklyn, N.Y. Approaching 40, Dave claims his middle initial is "C" which stands for "Caboose." "I got the name," Astor explains, "when my old man took one look at me and said, 'This is the end.'" Dave attended school in Brooklyn and quit to join the Army when he was barely 17. The Army found out and discharged him in 5 months whereupon the youngster entered drama school in New York. Some of his classmates were Harry Belafonte, Tony Curtis and Tony Bennett. For a while Astor was a Shakespearean actor, then migrated to the Catskills as a social director, one of the greatest switches of all time. While emceeing shows at the mountain resort, he turned to comedy to make life bearable. Dave has appeared on all the major TV shows: Ed Sullivan, Jack Paar, Jackie Gleason, etc., and works regularly at the hungry i in San Francisco, the Shamrock Hilton in Houston, the Deauville in Miami Beach. He was packing them in at the Playboy Club in Hollywood when we took down the following jokes from his routine:

The latest statistics I've read indicate that there are more than 3,900,000 people unemployed in the country today. The reason is that they can't read the want ads. Recently, I read a want ad that went like this:

WANTED — Senior Physicist for analytical work. Primarily on instrumentation for electromagnetic propulsion in theorematic microwave systems. High school education helpful.

Our economy is affected, of course, by the large number of foreign car imports. Detroit had to fight back with our own economy car market. Ford has the Falcon—Studebaker has the Lark—and even Cadillac feels the pinch. They're making a car called the Vulture—it eats Falcons and Larks . . . I saw an enormous Lincoln Continental at a stop light the other day. It was surrounded by five small foreign cars. The Lincoln signaled for a turn to the right and the other five vetoed it.

The stock market, of course, has a drastic effect on our economy. AT&T is in terrible shape. I put a dime in a pay phone the other day and a voice said, "Bless you, bless you."

Don't invest all your money in one or two stocks—diversify them! I know a man who put all his money in just two stocks—a paper towel company and a revolving door outfit. He was wiped out before he could turn around.

We can save an enormous amount of money on our space program by giving up liquid oxygen and switching to horseradish. One big spoonful of horseradish will get any astronaut off the ground.

Since 1948, the cost of living has gone up $1.23 a fifth.

Women spend most of the money in our country, today on things like wash-day products. I heard of a woman who took all the wash-day products in her confusion and threw them in the machine at the same time—new blue detergent; old pink detergent; middle-aged green detergent; liquid bleach; tablet bleach; water softener. It all came shooting out again. She told the repairman, "My washer broke down." He replied, "Madam, your washer did not break down—it threw up."

A tremendous amount of money is being spent on cosmetics. There is a lipstick called Sunburst Red and an eyeliner called Nuclear Blue. There's a rouge called Ionosphere Pink. People who want to neck in the future will have to take precautions against radiation burns.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF LARGE MAIL VOLUME, PARADE CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

TYCOON HOPE. One of the wealthiest men in the nation, with an estimated fortune of $100 million, comic Bob Hope plans to compete against Walt Disney in the playground business. Hope has just purchased for close to $3 million a 1,600-acre park in Los Angeles known as Corriganville. He plans to develop it into another Disneyland, will undoubtedly get NBC to invest a sizable share of the $10 million necessary to get the place shipshape. Hope's son, Tony, a graduate of Harvard Law School now in the Air Force, will probably run Hopeland for his dad.

BAN LIFTED. The Mexican government has finally lifted the censorship ban on the Beatles' first film, A Hard Day's Night. The picture has been approved for viewing by adults and teenagers, but is still taboo for children.

JOHNSON TRAVELING. Unless a domestic crisis arises, President Johnson will probably fly to Europe this fall, confer with Charles De Gaulle, other European leaders.

BIRTH CONTROL—ITALIAN STYLE. Until recently the dissemination of birth control information in Italy was punishable by a fine of 400,000 lire and 1 year in jail. Such punishment has now been declared unconstitutional by the Italian legislature on grounds that it violates the nation's right to opinion and information. Henceforth, Italian women will be able to receive information on planned parenthood so long as the authorities classify it "nonobjectionable to the morality of sex." The revised attitude of the Catholic Church on the entire birth control problem is what made the ruling possible.

HOW MANY GI'S WILL MARRY VIETNAMESE WOMEN, AMONG MOST BEAUTIFUL IN ASIA?

GI BRIDES. Some of the most beautiful women in Asia are the Vietnamese. To date, however, remarkably few of the U.S. servicemen in Vietnam have married local women. Last year 28 American GI's married Vietnamese women. In the first 5 months this year, another 33 followed suit. As the U.S. continues to build up its forces in Vietnam, GI marriage figures could zoom. When an American serviceman wants to marry a Vietnamese girl, he must obtain the permission of his commanding officer. His fiancée must then be checked for security by the U.S. embassy in Saigon. She must also be cleared by the Vietnamese police which issues certificates of good conduct to approved, prospective brides. Generally, those GI's who marry Vietnamese girls, after filling out 15 different forms, find that their brides spring from the lower classes. The upper-class Vietnamese girls usually refuse to date enlisted GI's, and most of our officers on duty in Vietnam are already married. The situation, however, could rapidly change --especially if we pour another 75,000 troops into the country.

INDUSTRIAL SPYING. French Prime Minister Pompidou has ordered the intelligence service to protect France's domestic industries with extra vigilance. Systematic checkups are to be conducted at all those companies employing foreigners, especially Americans. The French don't want any of their know-how stolen.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF LARGE MAIL VOLUME, PARADE CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

TYCOON HOPE. One of the wealthiest men in the nation, with an estimated fortune of $100 million, comic Bob Hope plans to compete against Walt Disney in the playground business. Hope has just purchased for close to $3 million a 1,600-acre park in Los Angeles known as Corriganville. He plans to develop it into another Disneyland, will undoubtedly get NBC to invest a sizable share of the $10 million necessary to get the place shipshape. Hope's son, Tony, a graduate of Harvard Law School now in the Air Force, will probably run Hopeland for his dad.

BAN LIFTED. The Mexican government has finally lifted the censorship ban on the Beatles' first film, A Hard Day's Night. The picture has been approved for viewing by adults and teenagers, but is still taboo for children.
